The Eagle Rock Register of the 19th says that while out surveying on Sand Creek on the 18th, Surveyor Clark came across the body of George Riches who was drowned in Willow Creek on May 1st. It was about three miles below where it was drowned and was lodged against the willows in the middle of the stream. Mr. Clark says the body was considerably decomposed and presented a horrible spectacle.

Today's Fire.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon a fire originated in the cellar of P. W. Madsen's large furniture establishment, on First South Street. An alarm was given, and the fire brigade were on the ground in short order and had a stream of water started in six minutes from the first signal. The fire was a most difficult one to handle, as the cellar was 1 and with such dense smoke that the aremen could hardly remain in it to work. To make matters worse, the place was jammed with furniture, packed and unpacked, and the men were placed at a great disadvantage. Chief Ottinger bandled his men in excellent shape, and but for the promptness and care shown, a disastrous conflagration would have been the result. As it was, the fire been the result. As it was, the fire was extinguished in about twenty minutes, and with comparatively little ly estimated this afternoou, but will aggregate several hundred dollars. Much of this is from water, and of course could not be avoided. There was considerable window glass destroyed in the upper stories of the building, in efforts to open the windows that the smoke might escape.

The exact cause of the fire is unknown, though it was discovered almost instably. It started near the gas meter. There was also a gas jet burning, but whether the burlap used in the packing of the trainiture caught from this or not cannot be told. One of the workmen saw a flame start up, and gave the alarm. Mr. Madsen, Mr. Rossiter and others went to work with buckets, but in less than a minute the flames had spread over the whole room.

A crowd of people rushed to the building when the alarm was given, and some of them created a tittle trouble, but this was soon checked by the police, who kept the crowd outside.

AN ECCENTRIC RUNAWAY.

An Excited Horse Plays Some Strange Antics.

Strange Antics.

At three o'cteck this afternoon a great flurry of consternation was caused in the store of Mr. S. P. Teasdel. A horse that was standling in the back yard rushed into the packing room. Its further progress was timpeded by a door, the upper part of which was of gisss. It didn't propose to stand upon trifles, so it dashed its devoted head through the glass, wrenched the door from its hinges, and rushed through the grocery department carrying the door on its neck. It dropped this improvised collar when it reached the sidewalk. It dashed across the street to the east side, then turned north up the sidewalk to the exchange corner. There it deflected and rushed over to the elephant corner, where it tumped over Cunnington's delivery wagon, doing some ground and lofty tumbling. The venicle was somewhat demoralized by the collision. It was temporarily stopped at this point but broke away again, its mad career being ended close to R. K. Thomas' store.

The route taken by the mad brute was a scene of bustle for some time, some of the pedestrians making excellent time in getting clear of its track. We understand that the horse had belonged to Mr. William Neslen, but he had just sold it. It is probable that the huyer will now be hunting a purchaser. suppose will reach here some immuted into the cussory of the custory of the custo

The climate is much the same as that of the Bear Lake region. The resources of the valley are untried excepting the last season when an average yield was realized of cabbage, ruta bagas, peas, small grains and garden stuff. It is the lieved they can, at least, raise anything that nature will yield in Bear Lake. The water of the Salt River which furrows the narrow and picturesque valley is, contrary to the suggestion of the name, entirely wholesome and abundant for irrigating purposes. Though wild hay land is limited, a much greater area of meadow may be artificially created.

Sanpete Items.

"R." writes from Moroni, Sanpete County, as follows:

On the night of the 16th inst. dcputy marshals entered the town of Moroni and searched several houses, going through the Jolly house and examining the lodgers. They arrested Christen P. Neilson, (better known as Christian blacksmith). He was to have a hearing next day at Spring City.

The dawn of better times will come, and greater prosperity with actual and lasting booms, when we produce more and import less. Pcople here complain of a scarcity of cash and the youth and strength of the country is going elsewhere to find employment, and simply for want of the development of the resources of the vicinity where they dwell. If we ever see our territory thrive it will be through the thrift, economy, industry and enterprise of our citizens in creating employment for idle hands.

Meadowville Jots.

The water carrying capacity of the ditch that supplies Meadowville has been doubled.

The town has been located along the bottoms near to Bear Lake. A couple of years ago, when the late President Taylor visited the place, he advised the people that if they would enjoy good health, they had better move back to higher ground. They have become convinced by subsequent experience (that the advice was good, and on June 1st, next, the whole town will "take a ride," Mr. White, of Montpelier, Idsho, has the contract to move the whole settlement, houses, barns, etc., on that day, to the rising ground to the west of the present location.
