THEATRE.—The performance last evening was more satisfactory than on Monday. Mr. Montague excelled his gyro feet successfully; the apparatus having been altered to his mind.

There will be a matinee on Saturday, or there will be a change of new acts to satisfy new dramatical tastes, new Dutch characters, new songs and dances, new Ethiopian sketches, new Irish comedies, new ditties and ballads, and the new fare of "old old."

There will be a matinee on Saturday.

GAMBLING.—Yesterdays Matinee to-day, by President Brigham Young, D. B. Benedict and Miss Oliver, daughter of President Joseph Young.

ROBOTS OVER.—Clint Floyd, the principal character who figured in the Commercial-street cutting and shooting scene of Saturday morning, had an examination before Justice Clinton yesterday afternoon. The cutting of Charles Mingo with a razor, with intent to kill, shooting Bill Gale, and shooting at Stingo with intent to kill the latter. In default of finding $1,000 bonds, Floyd was committed to jail to await his trial in the Probate Court.

HAGGARD.—The "Concord Sun," a new rough-and-ready weekly, published at Concord, N. H., by Chas. F. Hulbert, editor and proprietor.

"Concord," a collection of four part songs for male voices, with English and German words also No. 3 of our Dictionary of the English and German and German and English words, and a specimen of the English words differently pronounced by different orators, by Chas. F. Gieseke, revised and enlarged by Chas. F. Gieseke, published and sold by Chas. F. Gieseke, publisher of the Concord Sun, 100 pages each. $1.00. A. W. Corbin, Fourth and Wood Street, Concord.

A. W. CORBIN, Publisher.

"Knightley's City Advertiser," a new monthly advertising journal, E. T. Knightley & Co., editors and proprietors, Indianapolis, Indiana.

"Knightley's Monthly," full as usual of advertisements of all kinds.

"Appleton's Journal," the weekly number of this excellent magazine.

"The Galaxy" for May, besides continued series of scientific miscellany, etc., has "The Letters of Juana," "Casual Cogitations," "The Art of Writing," "How to Write," and "Gossip About Authors," "Fiction and Contingencies," "Women as Workers," etc.

BEAUTIFUL.—The city begins to assume its summer aspect. The blossoms of the trees, and the spreading of fresh green vegetation, towards the Summer, when the weather becomes warm and the air is altered and plentiful, the coolness is increased; Salt Lake City may not boast of as fine specimens of architecture as the majority of other cities of its size, but its spacious streets, sparkling with streams of water, and the surrounding mountains which its citizens are surrounded, make it at some seasons of the year, one of the most pleasant and inviting places in this little world, and renders it a constant source of admiration to all.

A walk on the beach besides these fine spring mornings, when the air is clear and balmy, is very pleasant recreation, the view from that locality being exceedingly nice, especially having a seat of repose, and with the sun at its meridian, the moments in forms a very desirable scene to those capable of appreciating the beauty of nature.

THE WEATHER.—During last night there were alternating sprinklings of rain, hail and snow. During most of to-day the weather has been very "springy," changing between cloud and sunshine, while the air has been refreshingly cool.

NOTES.—We are informed by dispatch from Wm. H. Pendleton, that he has received last evening, that Brother Calista C. Pendleton died at Parowan, Iron Co., of interstitial fever, on Monday night.

ORDERS.—The following are from the Junction of April 1st.

"We regret to hear that Mr. Ambrose Grant, son of Mr. Grant of Greenwell & Wright, of this city, was killed in the terrible storm which has recently swept over the region of the Plate. A large number of beef cattle, which he was preparing to ship to the market, were lost, and incurred a heavy loss.

"A young woman named Mary Cooper, from Scotland, was a passenger on the Union Pacific Emigrant train that arrived here on Saturday night. She was on her way to Oakland, Oregon, where her husband, Mr. John Cooper, had located at North Plate bridge last Saturday, she came to the mother of a girl. The passengers made up a party, and the two were sufficient. Mrs. Field, who was on her way to Salt Lake City, kindly assisted the young couple immediately upon their arrival here. Mr. Pratt, Assistant Superintendent of the G. & P. road, with his usual considerateness, sent a telegram to the mother to accept no mission, and that his intention is to return to the practice of law. All reports floating about his appointment to the office of attorney general, however, President Grant's sons, who were with him, are to be his guests during the summer."

"An Interim Paper," a copy of the Deseret Standard, a newspaper published in connection with the Sunday School of the sixteenth Ward, of which Edward Schoenfeld and Mary Williams are the editors, and Joseph Bryam Parry is the critic.

The paper contains some well written and interesting articles. Here is an extract from one entitled, "Domestic School for Young Ladies," by Miss Williams:

"These occupations which are open to women are not many, but among these are some of the like, which are equally good, and which will become the property of the young and the care and healing of the sick, and the equalizing of the sexes.

The peculiar sphere and province of women, which has been far removed from the household. It embraces duties, which are the most important of all, and those which are the most difficult to perform, those duties are equally in women's sphere.

All women, at some time of life, are, or at least have been, called upon to bear the responsibility of the household, with its cares, and the care of the members of life.

The woman of the last century lived not so long as we do at present, but they were, however, as far as we are concerned, more superior to the latter. They had good, well-constructed houses, and excellent presents and examples of their work, and all the branches thereof were quite well known.

The present day young women have frequently to bear the responsibility of the household, and themselves, household cares and responsibilities without having received that proper training, and are compelled to acquire themselves creditably. This is a most remarkable attention of all sensible people, people, the most important branch of education."

Besides the above, there are a large number of other articles embodying practical common sense ideas on every day affairs.

DEPARTMENT.—A deplorable case of youthfulness and idleness was related to us this morning, by a party acquainted with the boy, the author of the affair. A boy, about ten years old, who lived with his parents in Frederick's Grove, Eleventh Ward, was filling two cans with water, at the office, on Sunday; about noon, when two other boys, a little older than himself, came along, one of whom snatched one of the cans, and the boy, who was holding the other, remonstrated against the scoldings with the stick knocked his down, not on top of him, and struck at him with a knife, the blade of which penetrated the little fellow's hat and made a gash in his ear, covering his face with blood. When the young rascal got up and was about to leave after thus performing this vicious act, he
