Chicago Daughters of the Revolution are undecided whether to give of their substance to the Continental hall in Washington or to the work of the juvenile court in their home city. The amount in hand, $600, is not large, but it would be of material help if devoted to carrying on the work of the court. Many of the daughters feel that they have long enough subscribed money for a building which will do no benefit to the masses, and the favorite candidate for the presidency of the body has announced that unless the society undertakes a practical plan for the people's work she will not accept the office. It has been suggested by others of the daughters opposed to the diversion of the $600 from its original purpose that the annual dues of the organization be raised from $3 to $5 a year, which if done would net the society $1,000 increase of income; and that this sum be devoted to the carrying on of the court work.

It is claimed that the clubwomen of Chicago have not been as liberal in their responses to the request for money for the payment of the salaries of the juvenile court officers as had been expected. Mrs. Bowen, president of the court committee and responsible for the $1,000 which the court officers has presented the cause before all of the clubs, but has not received from them the substantial help which was expected. A new office, that of student of the court, and a new office of new methods, has been created, and Henry W. Thurston, formerly instructor in the city normal school, has been made incumbent. The court has opened new offices downtown where secretaries whose business it is to keep in touch with the paroled boys and girls and business establishment will be found. It has been suggested to the clubwomen that a big friends committee, each member of which would be pledged to look after the welfare of one boy or girl, be formed. Judge Mack of the court has given this scheme his hearty approval, and is suggesting it to business men of the city, many of whom have endorsed the idea and give promise of their hearty cooperation.

In the small city of Manchester, N. H., is a busy philanthropic society known as the Civic federation. In Pittsburg the joint committee of Women's clubs for betterment of children's playgrounds and vacation schools, is delighted over the appropriation of $5,000 for the season's work made by the central board of education. This news, following the action of the common council in refusing its aid, is particularly welcome.

Strength and Endurance

Are factors of the greatest success. No person can do full justice to himself without them. In no season of the year are they more easily exhausted than in the spring. We need not discuss the reason for this here. It's enough to say that one, and that Head's Sarsaparilla gives strength and endurance, as thousands annually testify.

SECOND WEEK OF LEYSON'S GREAT SALE

All the big things we had to offer we did not give last week knowing that the public would get better service in having a two weeks sale than by trying to crowd all our reduced lines into one weeks buying.

Monday at 9 o'clock we will open our one half price slaughter sale of umbrellas and leather goods. These two lines are on display in our north show window and we ask the most fastidious to examine carefully the lines and note that all are new and stylish. The leather goods here displayed we import direct from Germany and they represent the highest standard of excellence, but owing to the fact that more are expected this month we let our patrons have their choice at one half regular price of all bags, card cases and purses.

The umbrellas range in price from $8.00 to $30.00 and are the finest that can be made—with silver, gold, ivory and gun metal handles. This line will be sold at one half price to make room for another shipment.

The Best Ever!

Our south window contains fifty genuine American Cut Glass bowls of standard size artistically cut, bright, white and brilliant, elegant enough to grace the table of the most fastidious, which we will sell at $3.50 each. Do not confound this with cheap yellow bowls offered by others as this bowl stands alone in intrinsic worth.

Take a silver dollar, look at it carefully then look at the 150 Sterling Silver sugar and olive spoons, cream ladles, pickle and olive forks, sugar sifters, sugar tongs and bon bon spoons in our south window and see if you would not like to exchange.

Every piece full size and made of solid sterling silver with French gray handles and gilt bowls and tines and going Monday at $1.00 each.

The throttle is wide open at LEYSONS and "the survival of the fittest" jewelry establishment in the intermountain country is evident to all those who investigate.

High class goods and lowest possible margin of profit makes of our house a popular place for shoppers.
