

SELECTIONS.

A MODEL DICTIONARY.—It is refreshing to turn from the warfare between the publishers of "Webster and Worcester," to the waggish suggestions of Horace and James Smith, for a dictionary which should give him the meaning of things as well as words. We publish a few specimens:

Argument.—With fools, passion, vociferation and violence. With ministers, a majority. With men of sense, a sound reason.

Bachelor.—Plausibly derived by Junius from the Greek for foolish, and by Spelman from Baculus, a cudgel, because he deserves one. A poltroon, who is afraid to marry, lest his wife should become his mistress, and who generally concludes by converting his mistress into a wife.

Baker.—One who gets his own bread by adulterating that of others.

King.—According to the modern doctrine, the hereditary proprietor of a nation; according to reason, its accountable first magistrate.

Bed.—An article in which we sleep and pass the happiest part of our lives, and yet one which we never wish to keep.

Babies.—Noisy lactiferous animals much desiderated by those who never had any.

Esquire.—A title much in use among the lower orders.

Face.—The silent echo of the heart.

Faction.—Any party out of power.

Infant.—A mysterious meteor sent to us from the invisible world, into which, after performing the evolutions incidental to the seven ages of man, it will finally return.

THE BRIGHT SIDE.—Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine, and not the cloud, that makes a flower. There is always that before or around us which should cheer and fill the heart with warmth. The sky is blue ten times where it is black once. You have troubles, it may be. So have others. None are free from them. Perhaps it is as well that none should be. They give sinew and tone to life—fortitude and courage to man.

That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. It is the duty of every one to extract all the happiness and enjoyment he can without and within him; and, above all, he should look on the bright side of things.

What though things do look a little dark? The lane will turn, and the night will end in broad day. In the long run the great balance will right itself. What is ill becomes well—what is wrong right. Men are not made to hang down either heads or lips, and those who do only show that they are departing from the paths of true common sense and right. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom.

Therefore, we repeat, look on the bright side of things. Cultivate what is warm and genial—not the cold and repulsive, the dark and morose.—[Anon.]

A SAGACIOUS DOG.—We have heard many instances of wonderful sagacity in dogs, but that which we are about to relate, caps the climax. Two families reside in the same dwelling on Front Street, near Mill. One of them—Christie Doyle—occupies the first floor and takes the 'Enquirer.' The other—a German—lives up stairs, and is a subscriber to the 'Volksfreund.' Both papers are thrown into the same hall every morning by the carriers. The German has a dog, a species of 'setter,' that is known throughout the neighborhood for his sagacity. When his master rises in the morning, the dog marches down to the hall for the paper, and invariably returns with the German sheet! He has never been known to make a mistake between the two.

Having been educated in the Teutonic family, he doubtless understands German, but the fact which we have related certainly looks as though he could read it.—[Cin. Gazette.]
