THE PRESIDENT WOULDN'T TALK.

Refused to Discuss Tariff For Fear of Misrepresentation.

SAYS HE WAS MISQUOTED.

Henry M. Whitney the Guilty Party-Believes that He Deliberately Misrepresented Him.

Washington, Nov. 15 .- President Roosevelt was asked today to use his fluence to have the customs duties on hides removed in the interest of all the people of the country. A delegation of hoot and shoe and leather manufacturers, headed by Gov. W. L. Douglas or Massachusetts, called on the president by appointment and discussed with him pretty fully the proposed re-peal of the duty on hides. The dele-gation numbered 28 men, the majority being from New York and the west, and the minority from the New England states. In the course of the interview the president spake so frankly and sincerely to his callers that they burst into cheers that made the execuoffice ring.

After the delegation had presented its he told the members that, as a matter of concrete fact, the whole subject was one with which Congress must deal and he strongly impressed upon them that any action in the matter must criginate in Congress.

At the conclusion of the conference,
W. B. Rice, of the firm of Rice &
Hutchins of Boston, made a statement the newspaper men of the result of interview. He said:
We represent the majority of the ther, tanning and boot and shoe in-cests of the United States. We de-led to request the president to assist in procuring legislation placing hides the free list and to reduce the duty sole leather to 10 per cent, where the Kinley law placed it. I think every an present was impressed with the esident's desire to do the square thing

President Roosevelt authorized the publication of his remarks on the object of its mission.

In the course of his remarks he re-lated an experience he had last year with a committee from Massachusetts, of whom Mr. Whitney, recently a candidate for lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts, was one. He said Mr. Whitney has misquoted him in the campaign which closed a few days ago and dewhich closed a few days ago, and de-clured that he was "constrained to be-lieve" that Mr. Whitney had "deliber-ately misrepresented what had occur-red." With this experience in mind, the president declined to enter upon a dis-cussion of the subject of free hides at this time. The address of the president was in part as follows:

"It is, of course, unnecessary to point out that no change in the tariff can be made, keeping in view only the in-terests or desires of one state or one locality; the law must therefore roughcitizens of the several states as ex-pressed through their representatives therein. Where the interests, and therefore the sentiments based on these interests, are diverse, as is almost in-variably the case in reference to the details of all tariff matters, the law must normally although not invarably, represent a compromise and mu-tual concessions, and no one outside of Congress can definitely foretell the exact shape such compromise will ultimately take.

should like to discuss the whole situation with you freely and informal. y. But unfortunately my experience with a committee from your state, Gov. Douglas, which called on me in connection with tariff matters about a year ago, forbids my doing so. Such a free, full and necessarily informal and tentative discussion is obviously of benefit only if those joining in it recognize as a matter of honorable obligation the duty of not attempting to give from memory what must necessarily be an imperfect and garbled version of what takes place. When the president of the United States definitely and formally expresses himself for publication on a question of great national Douglas, which called on me in con standing by confusion in preparation and committal to writing.

"To try to repeat from memory what the president has said when a year has elapsed is to show entire indifference to accuracy as well as to propriety. Yet this is precisely what Mr. Whitney did in the Massachusetts campaign that has just closed. He pretended to quote what I had said during the course of the long and informal interview with his committee a year before, no notes of the conversation having been taken at the time. Not only did he misquote the words I used, but by suppressing almost all that I had said, and by giving what he purported to give entirely apart from its context, he absolutely, and as I am constrained to believe, deliberately misrepresented what had occurred, and he knew well that it was curred, and he knew well that it was impossible for the president of the Impossible for the president of the United States to enter into a personal discussion about the matter with him.

"With this experience in view, I cannot enter into any discussion with you on the president of th the merits of your porposal and must content myself with saying that it shall receive my most earnest, attentive and respectful consideration."

WHITNEY'S STATEMENT. Boston, Nov. 15 .- Henry M. Whitne Boston, Nov. 10.—Henry an Whitely, president of the Boston chamber of commerce, and Democratic candidate for Heutenant-governor of Massachusetts in the recent election, issued a statement tonight in reference to President and the commerce of the commerce ident Roosevelt's remarks to the committee of boot, shoe and leather manufacturers who visited the White House today. President Roosevelt told the committee that he could not discuss the committee that he could not discuss the question freely and informally, saying that a year ago Henry M. Whitney called on him with reference to tariff matters and later misquoted what the president had said.
After reading the Washington dispatch, Mr. Whitney prepared a state-ment, in which he denied that he had wilfully misrepresented the president or intentionally violated any confidence. the statement follows:

"Andrew G. Webster, J. M. Hall and I. constituting a sub-committee of the chamber of commerce committee of ington last winter for a conference with the president, touching especially the matter of the Hay-Bond treaty. I, as chairman of the committee, made an argument in favor of the treaty and in the argument made reference to the advantage of reciprocal treaties with Canada. We understood the president to express himself as unfavorable to the Hay-Bond treaty, but desirous of seeing and favoring also to fullest pos-sible extent freedom of trade with Can-

I was not aware that this was to be regarded in the nature of a confidential communication; quite the contrary, as we were there, as we stated to the president, as a committee of the chamber of commerce committee of 100, sent to consult with the president and to report the result of that conference to the full committee, which was equiva-lent to giving it to the public.

"While we may have misunderstood the president, I do not see how we could have done so. I absolutely deny any "wilful" and "intentional" misrepresentation of the president's attitude, and I have no recollection of what he refers to as the "context" which was calculated to modify the views he expressed. The committee at the time of our seturn from Washington, and the pres seturn from Washington, and the president's attitude, as we understood it, has been subject for congratulation among our people from the time of our visit to Washington until the present. It was, therefore, nothing new, and I did not regard my reference to it in my campaign a new matter.

"I regret extremely that the president should consider that I have misrepresent." should consider that I have misrepre-sented his attitude, and especially that he should feel that I have intentionally done so, which I aver is not true." Copies of this statement were sent to

Mr. Hall and Mr. Webster, who ac-companied Mr. Whitney to the White thouse. Mr. Whitney requested them to examine the statement carefully and inform Mr. Whitney if it corresponded with their recollection of the matter. Mr. Webster replied as follows:
"I have read your letter regarding the interview with the president last win-ter. My recollection of what was said at that time is substantially as you have written. I did not understand that it was a confidential interview."

Mr. Hall, in his letter, said:
"I have just received your letter concerning our conversation with the president last winter. My recollection agrees with yours. I had no conception that the interview was considered confi-dential by any one."

Callender and Judge Henry S. Dewey, who recently retired from the municipal bench.

WHY MISSIONARIES

WERE MASSACRED.

Result of Personal Quarrel and not Boycott or Any Race Feeling.

Washington, Nov. 15 .- No boycott, no race feeling, but a mere personal quar-rel, was the cause of the death of the five American Presbyterian mission aries recently at Lienchov, China, ac cording to the report made today to Secy. Root by Sir Chen Tung Liang Cheng, the Chinese minister here. The minister had with him when he came to the state department a copy of a long cablegram from the viceroy of Kwang Tung and Kwang Si, bearing on this subject. The viceroy reported that Dr. Machle and Miss Patterson, two of the missionaries who escaped massacre by reason of their temporary absence from Lienchow, had just reached Canton under a strong Chinese According to Dr. Machle, and his investigations were shared in by the Amer can consul's agent, the anti-American boycott had nothing to do with the tragedy. The trouble arose from the holding of a Chinese festival and fair. As an incident to this fair, the Chinese erected a pavilion or booth, which the missionaries claimed operlapped the mission hospital compound several feet. mission hospital compound several feet.

The missionaries expected the removal of that part of the building, but before this request could be compiled with one of the missionaries went into the pavilion grounds and seized severa small cannon with which salutes were being fired as a part of the festival.

These cannon were held to be sacred instruments by the Chinese. They were finely chased with symbolic designs and gorgeously ornamented for this particular occasion. The Chinese believed that such discharge blew away or destroye certain malignant spirits hovering about the place. Consequently, according to the report, the seizure of th cannon created at first consternation and then anger, and the ili-feeling cuiminated in the attack upon the mis-sionaries and their deaths.

"Labor union organizations constantly fan the fallacy that the employer are enemies of the men for whom the supply work. The organizers and walk ing delegates are really paid attorneys to stir up trouble. Labor union meet ings are always ex parte, one sided, be cause but one factor of the situation is represented. The labor union is a good thing with the open shop, but the closed shop is all wrong."
