A recent report of a census in Indis states there is a population of over 228,000,000, and there are 20,-938,626 widows. The reason of this abundant crop in India is the law that widows cannot marry again. But 18,000,000 can read and write, and but 4,900,000 under instruction. The table below gives the religious status of India:
