About the Silver Bill—Letters of Intent.

WASHINGTON, 27.—The early adjustment of the House not only prevented action on the pending committee's silver bill, to-day, but probably throws it over till next week, with greatly diminished prospects of its passage. The special assignment of to-morrow's session is for the consideration of the naval committee reports on Robeson, and the pendency of the contested election case as unfinished business, together with the fact that to-morrow and Saturday, under the rules, will, it is believed, render unavailing any attempt to bring up the silver bill this week. On Monday, if the Senate overweighs the adoption of Holman's amendment partially repealing the specie resumption act, it has a chance of passage. The committee's suspension of the rules, as Kelly's similar bill for the revival of the old silver dollar lacked only seven votes to pass, and it is believed Monday, but if it awaits the morning hour of Tuesday, Garfield and other prominent opponents of the bill, in preventing its passage by a vote less than two-thirds this session, and they believe two-thirds cannot be secured.

Letters on land embraced with in the patented survey of Milpitas ranch, having been asked, for proceedings in the name of the United States, to issue a writ of habeas corpus, Secretary Chandler had presented prepared to grant their application. His decision, however, has now been reversed, and instance of the ranch owners until further argument. The Department meanwhile has protected the settlers, and has now decided that the ranch owners will not be disturbed until after the final decision.

Secretary Chandler has still under consideration the question affecting the California school indemnity selections. He is inclined to make a decision so early as today, to confirm only such selections as were purchased in good faith by third parties and those occupied by actual settlers, and to reject the good faith from the State. He will, therefore, draw the line sharply against so-called settlers, who are merely jumpers.

Chinese Immigration—Failed to Vote.

Official returns made to the Bureau of Statistics show that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1876, the total immigration to the United States, 22,572 Chinese immigrants, of whom only 259 were females.
During the corresponding period of 1875, the total immigration to the United States from China was 16,437, of whom eighty-two were females.

The committee on banking and currency again failed to vote on the currency question to-day, Cox being absent on account of illness.

Bluford Explains—The "Sylph" Story.

Bluford Wilson, late Solicitor of the Treasury, appeared to-day before the House committee on wis-key revenue in St. Louis, and gave in detail his knowledge in regard to the late whiskey prosecutions in the West, and particularly in regard to the connection of General Babcock with the late whiskey prosecutions, with great minuteness, various conversations which he had with General Horace Porter, Bristol, Pierpont, and finally with the President himself, on the subject.
It seems that a letter of his to the prosecuting officer in St. Louis, in which he had acknowledged his part in bringing to justice everybody from the lowest to the highest, engaged in the conspiracy, was obtained by Babcock, and that he interpolated the letters "W. H. S." in so as to make it intimate his belief in the participation of the White House in the conspiracy, and also to the President, and also to the President, and although the press copy of it in Wilson's letter-book was produced to prove the forgery, he seems to have been unable to shield himself from the charge of having obtained the letter by means of a subterfuge, and that he had thereby no lack of co-operation on the part of the President in the whiskey cases generally, until Babcock's second investigation, when the coolness between the White House and the Treasury Department arose. He also testified that in connection with the Horace Porter case, soon after the discovery that the Sylph telegram was in Babcock's handwriting, Porter had been plotting to get the Sylph dispatch to the effect that it related to the movements of certain parties going to St. Louis on bridge business, and that the signature arose in this way: There was a certain woman who had given the President much trouble. Babcock and McDonald being together in Washington one day, saw her and Mc-Donald recognizing her, exclaimed, "There is Sylph!" Babcock said, "Do you know that woman?" McDonald replied, "I know her very well."
Then said Babcock, "I wish you would get her away from here. She is annoying the President."
"Certainly," said McDonald, said, "I can manage her," and he did so. The letter "Sylph" became a sort of standing joke between Babcock and McDonald, and they then addressed each other by the name of "Sylph" and "Mc-Donald" in that way. When charged with setting up on the President, Wilson, in self-defence, told the President of his suspicions of Babcock, and related the explanation of the "Sylph" given by Porter.
The President indignantly denied the charge, and said that he had a contemptuous gesture and proceeded with his remarks on the subject of the fraud, saying that he believed that if guilty he was a certain guilty wretch in the country, and that no punishment could be too severe for him. When he first heard this story from Porter, he believed it to be false, and he still believes so. He will be further examined to-morrow.

Democratic Caucus.

A democratic caucus was held in the hall of the House, to-night, continuing from eight until eleven.

The question of repealing the decision of the House of the resumption of specie was, after discussion, voted on, with the result of about fifty members for repeal and twenty-five against. This, however, does not afford a test of the result in the House, as not one-half of the Democratic members were present at the caucus.
