

The able lecture was greatly appreciated. Dr. Kingsbury will lecture before the club on the 20th.

The Nineteenth Century club met Friday with Mrs. Havercamp. The following program was rendered: "Alexander, Prince of Parma," Mrs. Nema A. Thurman. "Prince Maurice," Mrs. Anna B. Marwick. "The DeWitts," Mrs. S. H. Goodwin. "William III—The Dutch King of England," Mrs. Josephine K. Beesley.

A happy wedding reception was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Flygare of the Second ward, in honor of the marriage of Miss Frances Peay and Mr. O. S. Pratt, which was solemnized Wednesday in the Salt Lake temple. The bride is the daughter of the late Edward Peay and Mrs. Amanda Peay, and the groom the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clark, and both are highly respected by a large circle of acquaintances, many of whom were present to extend congratulations and good wishes to the happy couple. The usual wedding festivities were enjoyed and a fine wedding dinner was prepared for the guests. Many valuable and beautiful presents were received. Musical selections by Prof. Lund and Miss Arvilla Clark, sister of the groom, added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Sutton, of this city, and Mr. Orlando J. Bateman, of South Jordan, is announced to take place on the 20th at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Sutton.

A pleasant family reception was given at the home of Mrs. Eliza E. Ashworth, Thursday evening in honor of the marriage of her son, W. Ray Ashworth, and Miss Eliza E. Mangum, who were married in the Salt Lake Temple Thursday. The happy couple have left for Eureka, where they will make their home for the present.

Cards are out announcing a wedding reception at the home of C. P. Konow, of Panna, Nevada, on November 27th, in honor of the wedding of Miss Clara Konow and Mr. Arthur V. Lee. The bride and groom have both been students of the Brigham Young academy and have many friends in Provo.

A happy home wedding was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Aquila Collins of the Third ward Wednesday evening, when Miss Matilda Barrett and Mr. Jonas Collins were married. Bishop Thomas N. Taylor solemnized the marriage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Collins and Miss Barrett, who passed a delightful evening with music, song and games. A fine wedding supper was enjoyed. Many beautiful presents were received by the happy couple.

The pupils of the public schools held enjoyable parties in the Mozart hall Friday afternoon and evening.

CLUB CHAT.

The Daughters of the American Revolution met at the home of Mrs. George Y. Wallace on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. W. W. Chisholm having charge of the program.

The session opened with a piano selection—Tausig's "One Lives But Once"—waltzes, by Miss Mary Olive Gray, a brilliant piece beautifully rendered by the talented pianist. Another selection given by Miss Gray was "Schumann's 'Romance,'" and both renditions elicited the warmest admiration and praise from her audience. Mrs. Percy Somers' "Cockade" was three selections in her usually charming style—"Last We Forget," "If No One Marries Me," and "The Swallows," and the program closed with an admirable address by Mrs. C. E. Allen on the "Pilgrimage and Puritans." Her talk being accompanied with interesting readings from history.

This afternoon the Daughters of the Revolution met with Mrs. K. H. Walls in the Exponent office, the occasion being in the nature of a New England Thanksgiving celebration. The rooms were decorated with a profusion of vines, flowers and American flags, with the club colors, blue and buff, used with them in pleasing effect. After the program, which consisted of a patriotic paper, a banquet was served, the table being spread with Thanksgiving entertainers. Toasts were made and responded to by various members and the affair was in all ways a delightful one.

The Daughters of Utah Pioneers will meet on Tuesday the 26th of November, as the 21st, which is the usual day of meeting, falls on Sunday. Mrs. Harter will entertain the club on that day.

The Woman's club held an interesting meeting on Tuesday afternoon, the feature of the occasion being an address by Rev. Mr. Thatcher, who spoke upon the subject of the "Sacrificed Woman in Modern and Ancient Times." He spoke of the unequal conditions forced upon woman from earliest times, down to the present, mentioning specially the unequal salaries received by women for work of an excellence comparing equally with man's. He declared that woman's intelligence is equal to man's and she should receive the same compensation for her efforts. She is fitted to hold political office and there is no reason why she should be debared. He spoke with emphasis upon the subject of woman's social debasement on social lines for sins for which man is equally culpable, and said that unceasing effort should be waged until such conditions are erased, and a single standard of morality maintained. His remarks were most interesting and much enjoyed by the class.

The Reviewers' club met with Mrs. John Cain on Monday afternoon, the topic of the day being "Recent Electrical Discoveries" by Miss Della Snow. The Tourist section of the Ladies' Literary club will meet at the club rooms on Monday morning at 10 o'clock sharp. The topics will be "The German People," by Mrs. S. F. Fenton, and the "Nibelungen Lied," by Mrs. Flora Woodruff.

The Georgia Federation has undertaken to raise $50,000 for the establishment and maintenance of a model school somewhere in north Georgia—a country school in which children may get the right kind of an education. Georgia clubwomen have been persistent and untiring in their efforts in behalf of educational projects for the state. The record of their achievements is most impressive. It is designed to make the new school a place where wood-carving, weaving, drawn-work, crocheting, toy-making, pillow-lace making, and other handicrafts may be taught to provide village industries and profitable occupation for time otherwise unemployed in farm life. The clubwomen will work in connection with the county school commissioners of the state, who are deeply interested in the plan. One county has already offered to the Federation any one of their schools which may seem to the federation committee suitable for the purpose. When this model school is established, graduates from it will be sent all over the state as teachers. The federation expects to raise the money by January 1, 1901, and already contributions have begun to come in. The Cherokee club, of Cartersville, belongs the distinction of sending the first gift, one of $250.

An occasion of patriotic and national interest was the dedication recently of the first monument erected to the heroic dead of Valley Forge by the General Society of the Daughters of the Revolution. The idea had its inception two years ago at the time of the annual meeting held in Philadelphia, when the Daughters went on a patriotic pilgrimage to Valley Forge. The ground on which the memorial stands was dedicated to the society on condition that a suitable monument should be erected within two years. The members went to work with a will, and within the prescribed time raised the necessary sum, $5,000.

The monument is a handsome obelisk of granite, 50 feet high. On the pedestal is a bronze bas-relief depicting a scene of the winter of 1777-78; at the base of the shaft is the seal of the society. Above this is carved the Continental flag with its thirteen stars in a circle. On the first base is the inscription, "Erected by the Daughters of the Revolution, 1901." On the second base is, "To the Soldiers of Washington's Army Who Slept in Valley Forge." Directly behind the monument is the only grave of the hundreds on the hillside which is marked; it is the resting place of Lieut. John Waterman, who died in April, 1778.

A special train from Philadelphia took out a large number to Letzwood, where coaches were in waiting to convey the members to the grounds. From the country far and near, in every kind of a vehicle, the residents had gathered to take part in the ceremonies. While the audience was gathering a band played the national airs and other suitable selections.

The New York City Household Economic association, which has recently been dissolved, appointed at its last meeting a committee with discretionary power to decide upon the best disposition of the small fund and household effects of the organization. This committee, after careful consideration and conference with those who have had practical experience in such work, decided to rent and furnish a small flat in the most congested part of the lower East Side, where young girls and mothers may be trained in the best methods of housekeeping, and taught, so far as practicable, all that makes for the betterment of the home. A meeting for the furtherance of this work was held in Thursday of this week at the residence of Mrs. J. W. Tilton, No. 31 East Thirtieth street, at which ways and means were discussed. It is proposed to ask an annual subscription of $2 from the old members of the N. Y. C. H. E. A., and as many new friends as possible, which, with the good start that can be made with funds and furnishings now on hand, will, it is expected, adequately support the enterprise. The plan seems a thoroughly practical and commendable one, and may develop into just the lines of work that the founder of the association, Mrs. W. G. Shaffer, now president of the state association, had in mind when she brought the society into existence, almost single-handed, five or six years ago. If only one school or home of this sort survives, the organization will not have been in vain.

Even a young club woman can remember the time when the woman's club was nothing if not literary; when the work of the club was confined to the writing of essays and the ransacking of encyclopedias, and when such a thought as public work for the public good had never entered the head of a club woman. It was in these early days of the club that Nast and other cartoonists found Sorosis alluring subject for caricature. But, like many another movement, the woman's club has passed the stage of caricature and reached the point where only respectful and dignified consideration is in order. A record of woman's club work reads like a tale of good fairy magic. The vacation schools, free kindergartens, curfew laws, marriage and divorce laws, playing women on school boards, sloyd plants, sand gardens, traveling libraries, civil service reform, household science play groups for children, sociology, village improvement, mothers' meetings, hospitals, homes for children, social purity work, free scholarships for poor students, free libraries, industrial schools, industrial farms, city improvement, public health, temperance, jail and hospital work—what is it that the club woman is not interested in and working for?

It is noticeable that club work, as it is understood now, includes every variety formerly done by the much-reviled woman "reformer" and the "short-haired woman suffragist." In ceasing to be purely literary the club had to become something else, and such was and is the spirit of the time that it had to become progressive. It is never likely to be less progressive than it now is, and municipal and state governments are likely to feel the power of organized womanhood more and more as woman herself realizes this power and grows skilled in its use. Last year the Indiana federation had four bills pending in the legislature; Illinois and Wisconsin federations were busy with the legislature all winter; legislative work is a prominent feature with the Alabama club; the New Orleans club woman is a most adorable type of the political worker; the Kentucky federation is interested in "Forestry," a subject that carries with it opportunity for much legislative work; and one of the most conservative clubs in Kentucky—a club so conservative that it stays out of the federation for fear of getting too progressive and advanced—recently enlarged its borders by petitioning the town council to pass a stock law prohibiting stock from roaming the streets and destroying the shrubbery, etc. And when one considers the comfort, safety and beauty that would result from such a law it does seem that municipal work like this is just as worthy the attention of cultured women as the writing of essays on the motive of a Browning poem or an Ibsen drama.

FEMININE FLOTSAM.

Some of the rather expensive fabrics of French or India wools in robe patterns to be used this fall have the usual number of yards of combination in rare and beautiful Persian effects, showing delicate designs in blue and low relief in shaded silks and velvet cut work; the devices in French arabesques, and also in Grecian and Moorish styles are embossed work. One beautiful sample of pale pink silk (test-rose) has a silver leaf and English rose bordering along its selvage. A delicate sage green wool, as soft as velvet and as fine as silk, is bordered with sprays of hellebore, with delicate designs in blue and foliage. Faced cloth, Venetian wool, new nun's veilings, Henriettas, eolennies, mohairs, and cravenettes furnish an advance list of elegant and durable fabrics that grade from weaves designed for fall traveling and shopping to those fit for dressy autumn wear.

All sorts of gauzy materials are in as great demand as ever for fancy waists and evening gowns, and many line brilliants, which has a mercurized finish, is especially effective and pretty. The most novel decorations for the handsome crepe de Chine of the season are the velvet broadened gauzes in monochromes or lovely Persian tri-color effects, or the gauze Louise with silk applique designs on a satin-striped surface, and a mouseline de soie, patterned all over with the silk cord, made over white with delicate floral and twice-around sashes of embroidered tulle. This textile is a favorite dancing toilet for debutantes; and for matronly women are fancy black-silk grenadines, woven with coral silk flowers, and decorated with black chiffon laid over color, and point de Venise lace.

New laces of every description appear this season in more beautiful patterns than ever before, and their uses are legion. Entire waists of lace are the very height of dainty fashion, and many lace waists are used with skirts of cloth or silk, and partly covered with a fancy belone. There are lovely insertions to match most of the laces, also applique embroidery, which are almost transparent in effect, and which appear in nearly every conceivable design and color. Pretty dress trimmings, also, are the silk and chiffon pleatings, edged with narrow black satin or velvet ribbon, or with narrow cream or black lace. A simple little French waist worn with a skirt of black tulle and a wide made of coral-silk tulle, trimmed with a silk fichu, and draped girde of coral chiffon edged with very narrow black velvet ribbon.

It is well, just now, while there are animated discussions and differing theories with the fashion powers that be, over the question of shortening the length of women's skirts for late fall and winter wear on the streets, to repeat the statement, made in the Springfield Republican, that Dr. Casagrandi, in reading a paper before a medical association in Rome, stated that he had employed a number of his assistants to long skirts to walk for one hour through the streets of the city, and after the promenade was over, he had taken these skirts had them submitted to a very careful bacteriologic examination. There were found on every skirt large colonies of noxious germs, including those of typhoid fever, consumption, influenza, and tetanus (or lock-jaw). Numerous other bacteria were likewise well represented on each skirt.

Dr. Casagrandi maintained that, in view of these facts, women, and especially mothers, should at once discontinue wearing trailing skirts, and other members of the Medical Congress unhesitatingly expressed the same opinion, and passed resolutions to that effect. That women should subject themselves to the filth, to say nothing of the possible dangers of trailing gowns, has long been a wonder to those acquainted with bacteriology. For street wear, they cannot possibly be considered in any sense either cleanly or hygienic. However, we cannot expect radical reform in this matter unless those who set the modes can be influenced, for the great majority of women are bound to be in the fashion regardless of any ordinary considerations. There is some encouragement in the fact that many of the younger women of the present wear their golf and bicycle skirts throughout the day, and merely dress for dinner and the evening, and the hope is that shorter skirts for street and traveling uses will become universal, for while we are not aware that any previous scientific investigations have been undertaken in this direction, any well-informed medical man could have readily predicted the result of such investigation.

To the Public.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I can recommend it with the utmost confidence. It has done good work for me and will do the same for others. I had a very severe cold and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the Chamberlain's Cough Remedy I felt better, three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, HALPH S. WHEELER, W. Va. For sale by all Druggists.
