Morrill, from the committee on manufacturers, reported a bill to provide for the celebrating of the hundredth anniversary of American Independence by holding an international exhibition of arts, manufactures and products of the soil and mines, in Philadelphia, in 1876. He asked that it be postponed and made the special order for the fourth Thursday in January. Objections to its being made a special order were made by Mr. Allison, and the House proceeded to consider the bill. A lengthy discussion followed, but the bill finally went over until to-morrow.

The House then proceeded, at half-past one, to the consideration of the bill for a full and general grace, amnesty and oblivion of all wrongful acts, doings or omissions of all persons engaged in the war of the late rebellion.

Butler took the floor in support of the amnesty bill, and delivered a lengthy speech.
