Pathetic Stories Are Told In Lost and Found Columns

columns a lifet of the story behind, There is a touch of tragedy, a suggestion of drama in the lines, always there is the possibility of remance

The little gods or things as thay men, haunt the columns, loying its possibilities. Hope scans it and memory, with sad eyes, reads every word ory, with and eyes, rends every word of it caparity.

If there be truth in printer's ink, the lest and found volumn contains it. Here are spread abroad for all the world to see, the follies and hibles of the genus home. His greediness and his sympathy are here; his love of money and his love of pets; but above all his invincible belief that misfortune will not come to him personally, no matter what happens to the rost of the uniwhat happens to the rost of the un-

It is a liberal education in the quee It is a liberal education in the queer-twists and turns of human nature, to read carefully, the lost and found column of this paper. The significance lies, not so much in the number of the ads, as in character they display. Their range is so wide. It takes in everything. Some mather who has lost nor baby's ring, grieves and begs the Times to find it for her. Another wants the finitant return of her yallowheaded parrot. Yet another wants his false teeth returned.

LOSSES ARE HEAVY.

A study of the column in the Times for 10 days post shows an astonishing result: approximately $7,300 worth of property was lost during that these.

Est. Values

This large sum is conservatively stated. The real value of the 15s articles is unquestionably such higher Or course the sentimental value. In some instances, capnot be represented by mency. Thus, somebody advertised repeatedly for "three baby rings."

WHERE DO DOGS GO.

The Less and Found commit would indi-cate that somebody is making a live-lihood by returning tost dogs. Else if seems incredible that, in 10 days, 29 valuable pups should go astray.

The dog owners show more interest their watches during

Some advertised in Show and arched worth $1,000 to their
them were attached
In the 10 days, only vertised as "found."

than any other class sustaining aginution there comes, with the reading of the Bittle blocks of type in the Local and Found umms a hint of the story behind, ere is a touch of tragedy, a suggest of drama in the lines, always there the possibility of remance. The little gods of things as they so haunt the columns, loving its with sad eyes, reads every word it eagerly.

The degree struck in printer's ink, the column, and trish spaniel.

The degree the return in printer's ink, the colleges. In the 10 days, there were constant in the columns are the buildogs. In the 10 days, there were constant in the columns are the constant in the columns are the columns and the capacity.

bulldogs. In the 10 days, there were exactly 11, some of them undoubtedly worth hundreds of dollars. All are on the list of the "missing." Rewards run from 35 to $50.

from 35 to 550.

During the 10 days, II horses were reported "lost." Their value must easily lave been $1,000 if not much more.

Assuming that losses are equally great during the year the total would be $124 objects worth about $266,450.

If the tale told by the Lost and Found column be true, women lose the majority of the things advertised. They are expecially thoughtless with their majority of the things advertised. They are expecially thoughtless with their watches and rings. Such carolessness as going into the lavatory of a department store, taking off one's rings, and leaving them beside the basin is a common occurrence. Placing hand bags on the counter, while shopping, has brought grief to hundreds of shoppers.

brought grief to hundreds of shoppers, each year.

Buildogs have a strange way of "going astray." Of the 20 dogs advertised in the 10 days, 11 were valuable buildogs. Towser is a home-loving dog and his frequent disappearance raises the question as to whether or not there he men in Los Angeles who make a husiness of stealing dogs, for the reward. A peculiar feature of the missing-dog problem is the fact that if a horse is lest or stolen, the police will help look for the animal. But a buildog valued at $500 is of no more interest, as a piece of property, to the police, than would be a homeless, guitter-fed cur.

In view of the immense amount of stuff missing, each week, it would also seem that a "professional searcher" might make a fine livelihood if he had good luck. Of course, somebody must find the

MANY LOST, ONE "FOUND."

Thirteen ladies reported having lost their watches during this 16-day period. Some advertised three and four times, showing anxiety to recover their property. These watches were probably worth $1,000 to their owners. Many of them were attached to pins of value. In the 10 days, only one watch was adSix valuable pieces of diamond jew-elry disappeared on the streets, in the 10 days. The cash value of these is of course conjectural, but a conser-vative estimate would be $1,200; for one is of course conjectural, but a conservative estimate would be $1,290: for one of the pieces is said to be worth $350. Here are some of the more attractive losses. A flat round gold pin, with small diamond center; a diamond and pearl crescent pin; a diamond-shaped college pin; a gold horseshoe, set with choice diamonds; a three-stone diamond ring, value, $250; a gold monogram locket, with four diamonds.

Forty other pieces of jevelry, ranging from pearl necklaces to watch foba, are listed "lost." The real value may only be surmised, but $2,000 would doubtless be low.

Some of the more important losses are, a solid gold-link nocklace set with turquois; heirloom pins; three rings in a case; amethyst and pearl bracelet; gold cont button, gold bangle bracelet; gold cont button, gold bracelet; amethyst rosary; pearl and opal brooch; turquoise necklace; three-stringed pearl necklace, with cross; turquoise set locket; gold band bracelet.

PURSES VANISH.

PURSES VANISH.

Twenty pocketbooks were lest, in the fateful ten days. The value of this property may run into the thousands; a conservative estimate would be $1,000. One purse contained a rall-road ticket to New York City, and $20 in cash. The ticket alone is worth $108; but another held only a Santa Moniea commutation ticket. These are extreme instances of values. Several of the "ads" report "small change" or "valuable keys."

or al of the "ads" report "small change" or "valuable keys."
One advertiser lost a pocketbook containing a "certified deed," possibly representing thousands of dollars. The lady that lost her handbag is present in three instances showing that handbags, especially of the crocodile order, have a way of crawling away from the owners. A pathetic "ad" refers to a pocketbook containing "three baby rings."
There are two "threatening" ada, such as, "The gentleman who picked up the purse on Spring street is known," but these are very uncommon.

The lady that kept her diamonds in The lady that kept her diamonds in a charnois bug, around her neck, met the inevitable loss. Another lady advertises $100 reward for the return of a "small bug containing a diamond cross and four diamond rings. No questions asked." One loser reports a purse "containing $50," which he is anxious somebody should return. Another nurse held $10.40. other purse held $10.40.

CLOTHES GO ALSO.

parel disappeared in the 16 days. One lady advertised, for 16 days in succession, for the return of a "valu-able piece of Spanish lace." doubtless able piece of Spanish lace," doubtless worth a large sum or she would not have been so insistent. Most of the articles, as usual, are lost by women. Here are some. Fur box with two mink heads; brown fur collar; large cut steel and gold button coat; a red leather belt, of oriental design; child's pink-lined cape; hat wrapped in a newspaper; black silk umbrella, with gold handle, an "ad" that appeared three times in the 10 days; a case of clothes; black furs, and lady's long black monkey-skin collarette.

HENRY M. HOYT. SOLICITOR GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES, POSSIBLE ATTORNEY GENERAL UNDER TAFT.

MISSES FALSE TEETH.

Seventeen "miscellaneous" losses are set forth, some rather amusing, others exceptional, to say the least.

One man advertises the loss of a "span of white nutes". His neighbor is looking for a "side rule." Another person is seeking a pair of false teeth. Several bleydes are reported missing. Kodak films, and unmounted pictures, are on the list. Four losers of eye-glasses are now squinting around town, trying to see.—Los Angeles Times.

DANCING.

Monday, Thursday and Saturday nights at Conservatory hall, 68 P. O. Admission 50c per couple

. IMAGINATION AND THE VERITIES

Bret Harte is on trial for the verities, and while the chances are that "The Luck of Roaring Camp" will continue to be read long after a disillusioned public has ceased, to accept Luck as an historical baby and to accept the Luck as an historical designation, Bret Harte's cause remains the cause of every one who dresses up dusty fact with the charm of imagination.

No one ever pretended to have seen a Turner sunset. The question is, as the artist himself is said to have re-torted on a critical old woman, "Yes, but, wouldn't you like to have seen such a sky?" It is worth nothing that the charge of falsity is brough! against Bret Harte's mining camps by one whose business is philosophy, which is to say, the antithesis of fiction. The philosopher may not arrive at fact, but his business is to try. But the teller of takes is interested not in what netually happened, but in what metually happened, but in what metually happened, but in what metually happened, the grown-up make-believe. Indeed, his greatness depends on his ability to make you helieve with implicit confidence, a most monstrous fib. The philosopher deals with the general; the story-teller with the particular; the philosopher will tell you that Fanuel Hall Market is an episode in the dietary scheme of things; the novelist (as Zola did) will sit up all night to watch the wagons come in, and then spend hours cataloguing the produce. By an odd coincidence, Brot Harte's mining camps are charged with being a "social order 'that never was on sea or land"—"The consecration and the poet's dream," is the rest of Wordsworth's fine couplet.

The trouble comes in trying to prove of Wordsworth's fine couplet.

The trouble comes in trying to prove your fairy tales. If you could prove them they would cease to be fairy tales. All the fun lies in believing them without proof. Life is disorderly. It will not make a tidy narrative. Let him who thinks it will, try. Realistic novels, even, will not stand this test of fact, much as they vaunt their ability to do so. Of George Elliot's "Middlemarch" Islies Ferry has remarked that if one cared to know what the people of an English provincial town that if one cared to know what the people of an English provincial town were like in the middle of the last century, one might learn by reading the novel, though there might be some question of whether one would like the people. But, supposing the Middle-marchers were able to read of themselves, it is extremely doubtful if they would have been satisfied with the would have been satisfied with the truth of all particulars.

truth of all particulars.

To conclude with an allegory: A local scholar proved that the midnight ride of Paul Revere was a miserable fizzle. He roused only a relatively small portion of the countryside, and never really reached Concord at all, if he did not ignomiously full into the hands of the British But Longfellow's harmeless helled is chanted in every shameless ballad is chanted in every schoolroom, while the scholarly docu-ment rests in the annals of the historial society.-Boston Transcript.

Many little lives have been saved by Foley's Honey and Tar, for coughs, coids, croup and whooping cough. It is the only safe remedy for infabts and children as it contains no opiates or other narcotic drugs, and children like Foley's Honey and Tar. Careful mothers keep a bottle in the house. Refuse substitutes. F. J. Hill Drug Co. "The Never Substitutors.")

Hurst Photo Studio, 212½ So. State Big discount to Missionaries.

LAND OPENING

At Gooding, Idaho, February 8th.
25,000 acres to be opened under the
25,000 acres to be opened under the
Carey Act. Reduced rates via Oregon
Short Line, February 5, 6 and 7, Limit
February 15th. See agents for rates and further particulars. City Ticket one Office, 201 Main St.

age of the person reading this, W. B. Caldwell, of Monticella, w. B. Caldwell, of Monticetto, In has practiced medicine, and the sething that forced itself on his aim was the urgent need of the hambody for something that we all self thirdly regulate the digestre is game—the slomach, here and hower These years of study developed I Caldwell's Syrup Pepsia, new proquies as the national safeguard of result; thousands of good American homes free it is today, as it always ha beat the best laxative tonic for women, the dream and old folks, for these especial need a gentle, safe laxative tonic this sure in results and does not grip It is because the doctor has seatent its good work for all those years as believes in the merit of his remedy the offers to send a free trial bottle, his own expense to anyone who with him. You have simply to send we name and address. On the strength what these free trial bottles have done in the server of the strength what these free trial bottles have done and thousands have been given according to the distribution of the strength what these free trial bottles have done or widely used than any other according to the distribution of the strength what the send of the strength what these free trial bottles have done or widely used than any other according to the distribution. By a time to the late of the strength what the send of the strength was the send of the strength when the figure of the strength was the send of the strength what these free trial bottles have done in the strength what the send of the strength was the send of the strength when the send of the strength was the send of the send of the strength was the send of the strength was the send of the s similar disarders of the atomics, live and bowels. It can be obtained of any druggist at 50 cents and $1 a bottle, will do you a hindred time the amount of good is costs you.

People like Mrs. M. L. Graves, cakewood Ave. Toledo, O. G. B. House, ton, Bessimer, Ala. William Redd. Choodman, Miss., once sent for a free test bottle and now have their entire family using it as needed. If there is anything

"Can you send us a load of coal today?"

"Of course we can."

WHY USE YOUR

Letterheads for scratch paper when we can sell you scratch paper so cheap?

Formal Opening of the

At 234-236 South State Street.

Monday morning, February 1st., residents of Salt Lake City and neighborhood are cordially invited to visit us, whether they intend purchasing or not, at our new home, 234-236 South State Street, where the Harris Furniture Company were formerly located. New goods have been arriving daily for weeks past, and you will be delighted with the stylish showing that awaits you.

5,000 of the Celebrated So-Easy Long Handle Dust Pans will be Given away-One to every Lady visiting the store Monday

The demand for these souvenirs will be so great, it will be absolutely impossible for us to give them to children.

Our increasing business necessitated more commodious premises. Weeks and months of careful planning have brought together a line of absolutely new and up-to-date furniture, equal to anything ever shown in this city. As heretofore our store will be the center of money-saving opportunities in the furniture line; broad and well lighted aisles make purchasing easy and pleasant, the splendid facilities for displaying goods will be an agreeable surprise to you, and above all the reesonable prices asked for our goods will be appealing. Come Monday and participate in our opening and take home a useful souvenir.

Fair and honest treatment to all. If diss tisfied money back if you want it. All goods marked in plain figures and there is always a large assortment to select from.

Courteous intelligent attention to every cus-

Our goods represent good workmanship and the best materials. Our deliveries are always prompt.

C. E. DAVEY, Manager,

We believe in the goods we are selling, and in our ability to get results. We believe honest goods can be sold to honest people by honest methods.

W. L. CHAWFORD.

Nebraska Furniture Co.

234-236 South State Street. SALT LAKE CITY.

H. J. SMITH, Secy & Tre-