

Thursday, October 9, 1908.

THE MAILS.

WHEN THEY ARRIVE AND DEPART.

MAILS.	ARRIVE.	CLARE.
Eastern.	8:05 am.	8:30 am.
California and west.	10:05 am.	10:35 am.
Mountain and north.	11:05 am.	11:35 am.
D. & G. E. S.	12:05 pm.	12:35 pm.
Ogden, Utah.	1:05 pm.	1:35 pm.
Alta, Utah.	2:05 pm.	2:35 pm.
Park City, Utah.	3:05 pm.	3:35 pm.
Tooele, Utah.	4:05 pm.	4:35 pm.
Alta, Utah.	5:05 pm.	5:35 pm.
Richmond, Utah.	6:05 pm.	6:35 pm.
Alta, Utah.	7:05 pm.	7:35 pm.
Millard, Beaver.	8:05 pm.	8:35 pm.
Iron and Ashcroft.	9:05 pm.	9:35 pm.
Box Canyon, E.	10:05 pm.	10:35 pm.

The above is standard mountain time.

JOHN T. LYNN, Postmaster.
Salt Lake City, Utah, September 17th, 1908.

FRAGMENTS.

ROSE EYTINGER, the great emotional actress, at the Opera House next week.

A CASE of disturbing the peace and using threatening language was fined $10 to-day by Justice Spillers.

PETER PETERSON formerly of Denmark now of Cache County was admitted to citizenship yesterday.

A NUMBER of petty cases were tried in the Police Court, this morning, and others were set for later in the day.

SCANDINAVIAN party, for the benefit of their Musical Society, in the Salt Lake Music Hall, (15th Ward) Friday evening.

THE Reds and Buttes paraded the streets to-day with hats, balls and hand of music. The visitors will get their pictures taken at Fox & Symons', after to-day's game.

THE "Merry War" is being presented to a rousing mountain audience this afternoon. Mr. Rattenberry is in the role of the General, Carleton resting himself for to-night.

LAST night a satchel containing a return railroad ticket for Payson, two Temple receipts and a small handkerchief, was lost. The finder will confer a favor by leaving it at the Juvenile Instructor office for the owner.

THE case of the People vs. Rudolph Winger, for petty larceny in the theft of four cheap watches—total value $25—came up before Justice Hume last evening. The defendant was fined $64.10. Also for stealing a gold watch valued at $49 he was fined $89.10.

THE Revenue of the city from fines in county cases, money and labor combined, from October 1, 1903, to September 30, 1908, amounts to $8,144.05, an increase over the former year of $4,575.90. The number of cases tried the year just ended was 348; that of the former year, 231.

LOCAL NEWS.

High Priests' Quorum.—The High Priests' Quorum will meet at the Social Hall at 7 o'clock to-night.

A Tribute.—A Pleasant Grove correspondent writes thus of Sister Marie H. Booth, who died on the 7th inst. at Provo: "She was the daughter of Elder Lewis Harvey, of Pleasant Grove, where she was born and reared, and there was ever a truly good woman. Sister Booth could be styled, among the noble few, by that appellation."

"A Celebrated Case."—Nellie Boyd and her efficient company continue to make things lively at the Opera House and in the vicinity. Last night the historical tragedy of "Lucrèce Borgia" was rendered, and to-night "A Celebrated Case," a very beautiful and interesting play, is to be presented. It is a great favorite here and should be witnessed by an audience commensurate with its merit and popularity.

Important to Sheep Men.—Messrs. Targy & Phillips of San Francisco, the purchasers of the Promontory, Hassell Springs and Blue Creek ranges from the Central Pacific Railroad Company, and in to-day's issue have an advertisement of great importance to sheep men throughout this and adjoining Territories. The ranges controlled by these gentlemen are the finest known in this Territory.

Rose Eytinger.—This powerful actress has been engaged by the management of the Opera House and will make her opening appearance on Monday evening next. The Youngstown News Register says:

A very large and enthusiastic audience assembled at the Opera House last night to witness the presentation of "Leah, the Jewess," a play by Rose Eytinger and her excellent company of dramatic artists. The place was admirably filled. Miss Eytinger assayed the title role and exhibited a force of action that called forth the warmest commendation from the audience, eliciting rapturous applause. Her portrayal of conflicting emotions was simply superb, and in the course of the play she rose even above herself and executed a piece of acting that has never been surpassed on the Youngstown stage. Twice she was called before the curtain, something rare in this city.

The Opera.—The splendid military opera, "The Merry War," was witnessed last evening by an audience almost equal, since it nearly filled the theatre, to the desert of the entertainment. We no longer wonder at its being called the masterpiece of the "waltz-king" Strauss, for it sustains its reputation and bears the "finger mark," so to speak, from beginning to end. It certainly fails nothing below the purpose of its author and composer, as interpreted by Carleton's talented company.

The principal characters and their delineations are as follows: "General Spaulding," Mr. Carleton; "Colonel Violetta," Miss Wiley; "Elo," Daniel "Elo" Carleton; "Miss Beaumont," Marjorie Sebastian; "Mr. Golden," and last but not least, "Balthazar Groot," by Herr Adolph, an excellent Dutch comedian. Every part was a gem, and shone out as brilliantly. The choruses of soldiers, noblemen, etc., in their dazzling costumes, were scarcely second in appearance to the gorgeous principal parts, in their dress and action, were all that could be desired. The march in the third act was one of the finest things of the kind we have ever seen on any stage. Miss Wisdom, as the Captain of the Guard, made a splendid appearance, particularly in the scene of the "Merry War," when she was the center of attraction. It was a magnificent performance.

To-night, "Fra Diavolo," with Miss Alta Norman and Mr. Alonzo Hale, two stars, who have not yet appeared, will complete that Carleton engagement. The song "Rose Marie" will be introduced by special request.

PERSONAL.

Dr. O. C. Connelley, of Logan, returned yesterday from a professional visit to St. Louis, Toledo, Ohio, and will return to Logan this evening or tomorrow.

Counselor John Best, of Box Elder State is down from Brigham City, and was making her callers to-day.

IN MINNESOTA AND WISCONSIN.

AMONG CUTLERS, MORMONS AND MORMONISM.

Elder I. Chas. M. Nielson, of Springfield, Utah County, returned last Tuesday from a mission to the North-western States, upon which he started April 10th, 1883. While away he labored in Minnesota and Wisconsin, and returned, but mostly in the latter State. He baptized fourteen persons, confirmed six others, and assisted in the baptism of six others, besides blessing eight children.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.

During his travels in Minnesota he paid a visit to the Cutlerites, followers of Alpheus Cutler, an early Mormon apostate, who have now dwindled to twenty or thirty families, and are dwelling in and about Clifton and Girard, Otter-tail County. They have long since ceased to exist as a religious body, but still have a hall, which they call the "Mormon Hall," where they hold their meetings.