

COURT TO VISIT DISPUTED GROUND

Progress Company's Suit Continues to Occupy Judge Morse's Attention.

DEED FROM BRIGHAM YOUNG.

Document is Introduced in Evidence To Show Origin of Water Rights in Cottonwood Stream.

The hearing of evidence in the case of the Progress company against Salt Lake city was continued before Judge C. W. Morse in the Third district court today.

The witnesses called yesterday and today testified regarding what they have always regarded as their rights in the big Cottonwood stream.

J. P. Cahoon, treasurer and manager of the Progress company, testified that in 1874 he had obtained from Gordon the rights in what was known as the Gordon ditch, which were given to Gordon in a deed over the signature of Brigham Young in 1874.

Cahoon testified regarding the diversion of the water from the stream into the canal as a part of this city's water supply. He said that when the electric power from the plant operated with his former water power became dimmed and almost of no use.

DESECRATED GRAVEYARD.

Judge Gowans Will Hold Court at Brigham to Try Vandell.

Probation Officer Gardello Brown found a great many cases of juvenile delinquency at Brigham on his recent trip.

One case in which some portion of the delinquent's mind seems to be a fault with discovered by Mr. Brown. He found a youth old enough by far to know better who had entered a grave yard during the dark hours of the night.

Woman Lion Tamer at Fair Does Not Dare to Show Fear

"Look here, baby Prince, if I should die no one would take care of you as I do."

Adgie, the lion tamer at the State Fair was removing the bones from the cage after her big lion Prince and her two lionesses, Trilby and Victoria, had eaten the last of their 40 pounds of beef for the day.

"You see," said Adgie, "the reason I have to take the bones from them is that they would choke to death. I have to wait on them like babies. Boy look at many of his big fat heads butting their heads into the bars of the cage."

"If I should be afraid I would not dare show it to the lions. Just as soon as they know I was afraid they would not obey."

"They are just like babies, you know. When they hear a strange noise—they would not notice it unless they were hurt or put to bed before I leave them. That is the reason I have been successful."

"When asked as to the danger of entering the cage and whether she possessed the least bit of fear, Adgie replied: "I should be afraid I would not dare show it to the lions. Just as soon as they know I was afraid they would not obey."

ALL ROADS LEAD TO FAIR GROUNDS

The evenings for the fair of the Fair these pupils will show how expert they are with pianos, penicils, typewriters and at reading, writing, sewing, dress-making, carpentering, printing, barbering, gardening, shoe-making and in every art and science.

Miss Short will show how the deaf hand are taught how to see (observe) and feel. The next step, which has been sharpened, they are taught to watch and learn the motions of the lips and by touch the vibrations of the throat in speech. The next step, as will be demonstrated, Miss Bowles who takes the class here, is to teach the deaf to utter sounds, leading gradually to speaking words and sentences.

Prof. Briggs with the aid of Miss Cutler show what years of training does for those born helpless or rendered so in infancy. Miss Rossberg will show what the blind are taught, and how, leading through various stages until the pupils can do everything they more fortunate play-mates with sight can do. The pupils will model clay, cut patterns and Miss McClelland, acknowledged to be one of the brightest blind girls in the United States, will use the typewriter and piano skillfully as if she had possession of sight.

A unique feature of this department will be the appearance of a 12-piece string orchestra, Friday. With the exception of one player, a teacher who leads—the entire orchestra will be composed of blind musicians.

The school is the handwork of the pupils of the school is getting more attention than any other in Manufacturers' hall. Crowds stand around the platform during the entire day admiring the cabinet work, furniture made by deaf carpenter students; dresses; lace-work and needlework by deaf and blind girls; preserves, jams and jellies by the deaf and blind.

Two cabinets forming a portion of this display are furnished with the work of the deaf and blind. Exhibits of the work of eye-blind and deaf and blind. Two cabinets forming a portion of this display are furnished with the work of the deaf and blind.

More than a dozen gold medals and silver medals were awarded to the exhibitors with this exhibit. These awards were won by the exhibitors taken to the St. Louis, Portland and other World's fairs.

A pretty, pathetic little story was told this morning by Prof. Delegs as he arranged the exhibit. Matilda Ziegler, an eastern woman, published a magazine printed in the little blind eye school of printing and publishing every school for the blind with copies each month. When the magazine puts in an appearance at the Ogden school the little blind girls in the playground or beneath a shade tree out on the grounds and there one of the advanced pupils sits and reads to the other in the school around her. As they read they laugh and talk and often a stranger changing to pass by would never dream the world is nothing but a dark blank to these poor little babes. Poor little stories, even maps and drawings with explanatory side notes are read eagerly.

The samples from the printing shop are worthy of attention. The school has its own printing, barber, blacksmith, carpenter and similar shops, where the pupils learn to be useful and skilled men and women. When they leave this institution they are equipped with a better education and training than many thousands of other more fortunate children. When they go out in the world, instead of being dependent upon charity they enter trades and professions. The girls can cook, sew and keep house, while the boys can enter a trade, the graduates of the school are seated in the shop of his own son of a local candy manufacturer is one of the best horticulturists in the state; he has won prizes for attractive lawns and gardens in this city. Others have become carpenters, blacksmiths, tailors—seven artists. It is hard to believe they have not sight or hearing, when one sees samples of their work.

The exhibition and demonstrations to be given on the platform in Manufacturers' hall will be one of the events visitors will think about and ponder over long after the present fair is a part of the state's history.

DOG SHOW PROCLAIMED A HOWLING SUCCESS.

While there are not as many dogs entered in the fair dog show as were entered at the show held upon some months ago the fine animals entered make this show one of the best yet in the opinion of experts. The new breed of dogs entered in this city, others being ranging from over 100 dogs—all beautiful, from a dog standpoint and all barking from mere dog-crazed. There are 100 different classes of dogs entered, ranging from the great serious Dane and Newfoundland.

These classes cover St. Bernards,

VISITORS POUR INTO THE CITY

Although Conference is Several Days Away, People Are Arriving by Thousands.

IN ATTENDANCE UPON FAIR.

Indications Point to the Coming Church Gatherings As Being the Largest in History of Church.

Notwithstanding the fact that the first session of conference is several days distant, it is estimated that at least 6,000 visitors are now in Salt Lake, and every train that arrives from now until late Saturday night will add hundreds to the numbers already here.

"The influx is simply marvelous for a date so early in the week," remarked an official of the Rio Grande Western this afternoon. He said that his road had brought in upwards of 2,000 up to noon today. More than that number is reported as having come in on the Short Line, while the San Pedro is little if any behind either of the others. There are three in the Salt Lake & Ogden, which is also running special rates, and getting its due share of patronage.

CROWDS FOR CONFERENCE.

All indications point to the fact that the conference which convenes on Friday will be the most largely attended in the history of the Church. The people of this and the surrounding states are so anxious to attend that the full work is in a condition to permit the farmer, his family and his aids to enjoy a brief respite, and besides having the enjoyment of three days of spiritual refreshment there is the fair and other attractions to bring hither people who perhaps have not seen the city for six months or even longer.

These semi-annual gatherings of country folk with city folk and kin are both pleasant and profitable, and warm the heart oftentimes as nothing else can. The pathetic may frequently be overcome as one nears a little group on the street. Some who came to last conference will come no more, having gone to the land that knows no sickness or perchance hands that were extended in hospitality to the conference visitor six months ago, are now cold in death, and the exchange of news, joyful or sad, as friend meets friend, shows how much akin are mortals, no matter what distances separate, or what conditions surround each individual.

MAN DIES FROM LOSS OF BLOOD

C. E. Barber, a physician of Warren, Wis., who has been stopping at the Sanitarium, fell on the street last across from the police station late this afternoon, and was attacked with a series of hemorrhages. The unfortunate man was picked up and carried to the emergency hospital, where Dr. Beer attended him, but the loss of blood was so great that the doctor says he cannot live.

Dr. Barber was a sufferer from tuberculosis, and was stopping here for his health. Later—Dr. Barber died at 2:48 p. m. A letter was found on his person addressed to his wife in Wisconsin, while a fine gold watch and $2.15 was found in his pocket. From all appearances Dr. Barber was a highly reputable physician, and was in the west seeking to recuperate his health.

DID YOU ATTEND THE GREAT PIANO SALE YESTERDAY?

If So, We Know You Selected a Nice Instrument. Buyers From Far and Near Were There and Many of the Great Bargains Were Taken.

A FEAST FOR PIANO BUYERS

The Most Sensational Happening in the History of Piano Selling in the West. Clayton Music Co. Decide to Close Out Entire Stock on Account of Extensive Store Repairs Soon to Begin.

Everything is Marked for the Slaughter. Many Pianos at Less Than Half Price; Others Going at a Positive Loss on Cost. Don't Miss This Sale If You Need a Piano. Open Evenings, 109-111 Main.

We venture the assertion that never before has there been attempted a sale of the proportions this sale will assume. Think of it, an entire stock of over 200 instruments to be closed out in ten days.

It seems almost impossible to accomplish such a result, but nevertheless we fully expect every instrument to be taken long before the time limit of the sale expires.

Of course, we realize that prices on everything must be so deep that the instruments would really sell themselves. We know that the great value must be so apparent to all that every buyer could see at a glance what a piano opportunity this really is.

So we simply shut our eyes to cost of former prices and cut and slash prices almost to the vanishing point. Judging by the results of the first day's selling, we predict a quick sale of the entire stock. Really, at the prices marked on these instruments it ought to be a grab game.

The buyers were here from far and near yesterday and many pianos were selected. The store presented a busy scene all day, crowded with earnest seekers for the wonderful bargains and none were disappointed, for all found everything just as advertised.

You see we are about to remodel our warehouses. The contracts have been let and work must begin Oct. 14th. We are compelled to get this whole stock out of the way of possible damage, and rather than take any risk or cost the pianos to a storage house we decided to close out everything, sacrificing all profit.

We would rather take cost or less for the stock now and open our new store with an entirely new stock and have the instruments damaged while repairs are going on and then be compelled to sell them at a sacrifice. This is the simple story.

This explains why we are making such great reductions in the prices of the best pianos ever brought to Salt Lake.

How They Went Yesterday. Among the pianos selected yesterday were three of those fine durable uprights that usually sell at $250, $265, or $275. Two went at $97 each, the other at $112. The terms were $10 cash and $3 and $6 monthly.

Four Beautiful Mahogany Uprights. Went at $137, $158, $168 and $175, the price varying according to style and finish of case. The former prices were $300 to $350. Two went for cash and two on payments of $6 monthly.

Square Pianos—Used Organs. At $10, $12, $16, $18, $20, $25, $30, etc. Why not buy the children one of these? You can pay for it at $2 to $5 monthly.

Get Here Early. You want a good selection, of course, so come to the sale at once. Store is open evenings, 106-111 Main Street.
