BUST WHICH GAINED A PLACE IN THE SALON. (The Subject is Miss Irene Dickson, Da ughter of Judge Dickson of this City.)

A recent issue of the San Francisco | hundreds of homes copies of his Dewey bust may be seen as the budding fruit Bulletin contains a flattering notice of Earl Cummings, Utah's young sculptor, who went to Paris two years ago to study his art in the academies of the great metropolis. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin E. Cummings, formerly of this city, now residing in San Francisco, and a large number of Salt Lakers will be pleased to learn of the young sculptor's success. The bust of which a reproduction is given below, is that of Miss-Irene Dickson, daughter of Judge Dickson of this city.

'Some two or three years ago a young man, a mere boy in fact, went into Nathan-Dohrman's, accompanied by his mother, and nervously asked to see the manager. Upon meeting the manager the lad produced a bust of Admiral Dewey, a bust perfectly modeled and presenting a lifelike portrait of the country's favorite naval hero. The lad explained that he had been taking les-sons in modeling at the Mark Hop-of genius. "For two years past Earl Cummings has been studying and working in Faris. There is no royal road to learning, even for genius, and he has plodded the painful way of experience, ever learning until today, while yet on the threshold of life he has before him, a future as a sculptor which none can deny. A brilliant demonstration of the excellence of his work was received in this city from Paris a few days ago and is now on exhibition in Nathan-Dohrman's window on Sutter street. It is a life size portrait bust in purest marble of a beautiful young California girl. The work was completed in time for this year's Paris Salon, and there, in competition with the work of the most renowned sculptors in the world, it won an honorable mention. Nor need anyone be so unlearned in matters artistic as to fail to appreciate the excel-lence of the work. Aside altogether from the mere physical beauty of the face, the delicacy of the poise of the head, the softly rounded curves of the neck and shoulders, the remarkable handling of the masses of hair and the

ame. I have fought them to save the ives of women and children. And now ofter all this they want to take what, little I have accumulated in my old age and give it to these sons of mur-derers. Uncle Sam will never do it." The petitions or affidavits previously drawn up were then signed, setting forth the condition of things there, re-affirming that the Mohave-Apache Inclans were engaged in petty thleving, turning their horses into corn fields and E to hay stacks, begging and using abu efused their wants, and that the con-lition instead of getting more harmoous was becoming more strained, un-il grave fears were entertained lest some overt act on the part of the In-dians would result in the loss of life, tc., asks that the Indians, who have nothing to gain or lose by remaining, while they have all that is near and lear to them, their property and wivese and families, be returned to the San Carlos reservation, pending the action of Congress on the future of the mili-ary reservation. The signers were all tonn fide settlers of land, and who were entitled to homestead or soldiers were entitled to homestaal of solders rights to entry of public land, and who had resided on the land from two to lo years. But some had resided on the land for 20 years. After all of the pa-pers were signed, Mr. Gill being pres-ent, the letter he had written was read. and as the writer was leaving that gen-teman was asked to explain himself thus defaming the people of Me Dowell

GRANT WANTED THE HORSE.

When Ulyssea S. Grant was a small ocy, living in Georgetown, O., he wanted. like most boys, to own a horse, and one particular colt belonging to a man named Ralston he wished especially to have. To indulge the boy's taste and buy the colt his father offered Mr. Ralston $20. But the owner valued the colt at $25, and refused the offer, aking the animal home with him. As the hours passed after the little horse had trotted away with its owned U(vases' disappointment and eagerness for possession increased, and he finally begged his father to pay the $25 de-manded. His father said that $20 was il the animal was worth, but sinc lysses desired it so much he might go to Mr. Ralston and offer $20 again f, his father added, he could not buy for $20 he might offer $22.50. And if the owner would not let it go for $22.50 he might, in order to obtain it, give Ulysses, therefore, mounted a horse and set out for Mr. Ralston's. He was t that time probably about 8 years

When he found the owner he toll him: "Papa says I may offer you $20 for the colt, but if you won't take that to offer you $22.50, and if you won't (a're that to give you $25."

The eagerness of the boy to gain the norse could not brook any barrier. It s needless to say that he paid $25 and ed the animal home.

Grant said, in writing his "Memoirs," that the story of this purchase of his got out in the village, and it was long before he heard the last of it. The schoolboys delighted in teasing him about it; schoolboys are very often littie barbarians for tormenting one an-other and they did not let Ulysses forget this one instance when he was be-hind the rest in cleverness. He kept the horse for several years and finally sold it for $20, the poor ani-rual having become blind. Later he rial having become blind. Later having found it taken from the road and work ing the treadwheel of a ferryboat which plied between the Ohio and Kentucky anks of the Ohio river .- Baltimore Sun.

steads when the land is thrown open for settlement. The action of the whites is a well drawn exemplification of the story of the wolf and the lamb, and will most probably end the same WAY:

Mesa, Maricopa Co., Ariz., Sept. 26.-A trip to old Fort McDowell would not be considered, under ordinary circumstances, a very interesting one, as time has made but few changes in the road and scenery, but it became full of interest when Jeff Adams came into my office and asked for the services of your correspondent as a notary public in whalf of the whites and Mexicans in the Verde valley, whose lives and pro-Terty were being jeopardized by the lest growing numbers of Mohave-Apache Indians assembling in that vicinity, and their increased insolence toward the old settlers, on account of their continued occupancy of the land which they had been led to believ would soon be divided among them.

The gathering at McDowell was called to order, and the object of the preeting was explained, and a letter from Indian Commissioner W. A. Jones was read in reply to a previous petition signed by "44 citizens of Arizona, resitients of McDowell," complaining of the annoyance caused by the petty thievng and malicious destruction of prop erty by some Mohave-Apache Indians onging to the San Carlos Indian agency, and stating that these Indian "are devastating corn crops and melon fields, and curse and threaten the owners: that there was no necessity for their leaving the San Carlos reservaion, and asking that these troublesom vards of the government be returned their reservation to their reservation." In reply to the above petition, the commissioner reports a letter from Gov. A. O. Brodie, in which the gov-ernor states that "four Indians from McDowell had called on him saying they forme to see him because they had learned that the whites at McDow-II had here "making means" observitions. Il had been 'making news' about them. They denied committing any thefts; that they had permission from the au thorities at Washington to leave the reservation; and that they understood that at some time they were to be given hard near Fort McDowell for agricul-tural purposes." Also a letter from Rev. W. H. Gill, missionary Sunday School union, at Fort McDowell, who requests that it be filed with the peti-tion, "as it shows the other side of the superior of the letter." juestion." The following is the letter "Reports have gone out from time to time derogatory to the character of the Mohave-Apaches at this place, and having been told by one of the In-your ears, I take pleasure in bearing my testimony to the reputation of these reople. In the opinion of reputable cltizens here, in which I heartily con cur, the Indians in question are peace able and honest. They kill no cattle steal no farm produce, and do not offer violence to any man under any provocation. I do not claim that they are perfect in every respect, but that they are law-abiding, as far as their knowledge extends, is beyond all ques-tion. Having no irrigable lands at present, basket making principally stands between them and starvation, However, when any ranches has more clarids between them and starvation. However, when any rancher has more work than he can do, there are a dozen Indians at hand glad of the job. Every dollar they receive is promptly spent for dry goods and groceries with the merchants of the valley, and but little. Jerhaps no credit asked. These Apache-Mohaves came here over two years ago by permisison of the government and under passes from the Indian agent at San Carlos, in fulfillment of a promat San Carlos, in fulfillment of a prom ise made many years ago that when they became far enough advanced in morals, industry and education of their children, they would be returned to the Verde valley, the home of their foreathers. Hence, it is manifestly unjust to abuse these poor people for living to abuse these poor people for living there. The controversy is clearly be-tween the whites and Mexicans on the one side, and the government on the other as to the faiture occupancy of these lands. The Indians desire to know the names of those who origin-pited defamatory charges against them for the purpose of having them re-turned to San Carlos. They say they cannot stand it any longer, and if they can have acess to the courts they will be gliad to have a trial with the people.

be gliad to have a trial with the people of McDowell as to character. Asking your consideration and aid for the Mc-Dowell Indians," etc., etc.

The commissioner, after referring to other charges against these Indians "In the present case it is not says: "In the present case it is not seen that there is any more foundation or the complaints about these Indians than there was heretofore. They are aw-abiding and industrious, and every effort should be made to obtain homes on the lands of the said abandoned military reservation for them. It is therefore recommended that the mat-ter be brought to the attention of Congress at its next session, and favorable action urged on behalf of these worthy wards.

W. A. JONES.

The people expressed considerable in lignation toward Mr. Gill's giving the he to their petition, after only two months' residence among the Indians there, and comparing the character of of McDowell with the the people of Apache Indians.
