TOENT BATES

HER SHAME WAS TOO HARD TO BEAR Letta Conner, Salt Lake Girl,

Wronged and Attempted Suicide.

IT IS THE SAME OLD STORY.

Heart Broken When She Learned the Man Had a Wife in the East.

Rather than be deserted by the man she had learned to love, Miss Letta Conner an attractive brunette, 25 years old, attempted suicide at an early hour this morning in her room at 1753 Curtis street. The prompt arrival of Dr. Theodore Siersdorfer, summoned by the young woman's companion, saved her life.

Letta Conner's love story is a tale of a wild infatuation for a traveling salesman, W. J. Patterson of Chicago. He is a married man and has a happy home and trusting wife back east. He comes to the western territory once a year. On his present trip he met Letta Conner in Salt Lake City, where she lived with her parents, said to be well-to-do and respecable people. An acquaintanceship of a few days brought them close together in the boods of an illicit devotion. When it came time for him to re-turn to his Chicago home, where he is to spend the Christmas holidays with the wife who is counting the days that separate them, Letta Conner in-sisted that she should go east with him. Patterson is young, fairly good looking as men go, and she knew looking, as men go, and she knew nothing of the wife.

nothing of the wife. All she knew or cared about was that she lovel W. J. Patterson and would sacrifice her all for him. Per-haps after a while she would become his lawful wife and would no longer need to avert her eyes from those of the inquiring mother and father in Salt Lake City. Happy day, she thought. Such love as hers could not help being awarded with the same strength of affection. But the dream of this young wo-man was shattered, just as nearly all such dreams are. The awakening came on the arrival of the couple here yesterday.

"This will be our last night to-gether," he told her, as gently as pos-sible, as they were eating an after-theater supper last night. "I go on to Chicago tomorrow. I have secured your return trip ticket to Salt Lake. I hone little cirl we'll meet again

I hope, little girl, we'll meet again on my trip out there next year." For the moment she was unable to make answer. Her very life seemed to leave her chilled heart. She thought to leave her chilled heart. She thought he was joking. But he was not given to facetious remaraks of that nature. "He meant it, my God, he meant it," her inner self whispered. Stunned, her soul blackened by the man she had sold herself to obtain, as in a terrible nightmare she arose from the table and groped her way into the night, followed by the man who was explaining to deaf ears the impossibility of taking her further east because of the wife that awaited him across the plains. Reaching her room she walked to the suit case containing her traveling apparel. Wonderingly he watched her, hoping that she might at least turn and confront him with his perfidy.

had arrived went on to "kill time" till others could arrive, and after they had done all they could, local talent was given a chance until the audience was almost ready to get up and go home on its own account. Then two more of the acts put in a belated appearance, and one of them, Miss Leah Russell in "The Belle of the Ghetto" was so good, that no one may cherish any doubt that the bill will be worth the price. Her act was so unlike anything that has ever been seen before it, that it seemed a creation of her own, in which she may achieve the fame of David Warfield himself. The jokeful conversation with dauc-

Warfield himself. The jokeful conversation with dauc-ing intermissions, between Chris Bruno and Mable Russell was put on under the handicap of hasty makeup and stage arrangement, but it went fairly well. Fred Zobedle, the hand balancer, was among those ready when the per-formance began, and he displayed rare skill and cleverness. Irene Beljea was acceptable, but nothing more in her impersonations, only some of which were especially clever. The full bill, which begins tonight, runs all week with dally matinees.

Grand—For those who enjoy mirth-provoking plays, there could be few shows more to their liking than "Ua-cle Josh Perkins," which is the bill for the first half of this week at the Grand. The house was filled last evening, and the audience was in an almost uninter-rupted roar of laughter from first to last. The place has been seen many last. The piece has been seen many limes in Salt Lake, but the interest in it never dies out. It is seldom that the characters of "Uncle Josh" and his hired man, Hiram Green, have been more ably sustained than by Burt Hod-kin's and Otis Knight, respectively The neit are serve winners in the com-The pair are easy winners in the company. The engagement of "Unclosh" concludes Wednesday, to be followed by "A Little Outcast."

Lyric—The Lyric stock company is presenting. "Why Women, Sin" at the popular little playhouse this week, and the play thus far has proved to be "a pood thing" from the box office view point. Each performance, so far, has been greeted with a crowded house. To the company has been added Miss Lil-lian Mason, an actress of good ability and her portrayal of the leading char-acter, Dorothy, was of a strong grade. The play is an interesting one and the various parts are handled in a most pleasing manner.

The management announce that at morrow's matinee the ladies present will be presented with a souvenir, and on Saturday afternoon a Christmas toy will be given to each child. The same bill goes throughout the week.

His efforts were rewarded and within an hour she was out of all danger.
