ARE GOOD PLAYERS AFTER YEARS WORK

Some Interesting Facts Concerning Many Old Time Ball Tossers.

"ANCIENTS" CALLED "KIDS."

A Number Who Broke Into the National Game Twenty Years Ago Are Still at It.

"What if it is nearly twenty years since I broke into the big league? Does that say that I ought to retire now to make room for some young fellow? den't see why."

Thus spoke "Kid" Gleason, ex-Giant and ex-Oriole, recently when somebody called his attention to the fact that he is one of the very few players still in harness that entered the National league as far back as 1888.

The Philageiphia ciub bas a fine busky The Philadelphia chib has a fine husky pair of kids on its roster in the persona of Gieason and that other personal youth, "Kid" Nichols. Both were real kats when they "proke into "the National league. Both are still called "And" by the fans. Neither shows any sign of auvancing age. and the strong arm and even temper of Nichols and the activity and Iriskiness of Gleason.

"There is only one man," says Gleason, "playing in fast company today who was in the National league before I broke in. That is old Jim McGlure, now catcher for the Highlanders, and he was the first catcher to mandle my slants when I became a major reague player. I have heard that Jim is going to retire, bou't you believe it. The old boy will be there when the umpire eatls 'play bail' next spring, just as sure as Ban Johnson will fix the schedule for the Americans.

"Ned Hanlon and Connie Mack were playing in the league before less, but as they have long since stopped playing to become managers of chainpion teams we can pass them up.

"I began playing ball with amateur teams in my home, Lamden, N. J. It is, I went out' and pitched professional bail for the Williamsport team. From there I went to Scranton, I did good enough work there to attract the attention of Harry Wright. He signed me for the Philacelphia club and Jim McGuire was my first catcher in the big league.

"Just cast your eye over the list of pitchers in the league at that time, in cluding Radbourne, John Clarkson, Buffington, Welch, Keefe, Whitney, Getzel, Morris and often others, Wasn't that a line bunch for a kid to face? I pitched about twenty-five games in 1888, Buf-

SOME OF THE OTHERS.

"Hughey Duffy, who now manages the Phillies, joined the Chicago club in 1888 and Jake Beckley broke in the same year, playing first base for Pittsburg. Duffy came from Lowell, in the New Engand league, and Eagle Eye from the St. Louis club of the Western association.

M, Miller and some serious charges were made against him. The postoffice department sent a special agent out here to investigate. Mr. Miller has just received a letter from Hon. Geo. Sutherland, in which he says: "My attention has been called to the fact, by a mutual friend, that for some reason your office has been under investigation. I have taken the liberty of making some inquiries at the postoffice de-St. Louis club of the Western association.

'I had almost overlooked another man who cut quite a figure in the National league at that time, just as he does now That is Mr. Henry O'Day, sometimes called 'Hank,' then a pitcher, now an umpire and a good one. O'Day was a professional ball player as far back as 18. when he pitched for the Toledo team, of the Northwestern league. In 1886 Hank made his National league debut and became one of the Pittsburg Pirates.

"It was back to the minors for him in 1886, but the following season saw him back in fast company, and he is still with us. While we are talking about an um pire, I might as well say the oid-timers like Hank, because he doesn't throw you! know that the inspector, who made the investigation, has reported entirely exonerating you from the charges." Mr. Miller, of course, is glad to hear this pire, I might as well say the old-timers like Hank, because he doesn't throw you out of the game as soon as you open your mouth, but will talk back. "I remained with the Philadelphia club until 1892. Then I was traded to the St. Louis club, pitched for them until the middle of the season of 1894, when I joined the Baltimore club under the management of Ned Hanion. In the spring of 1896 I was traded to New York for Jack Doyle. season's crops.

The health of the people of this place and throughout this county never was better, there is very little sickness in any of the towns.

of 1896 I was traded to New York for Jack Doyle.

"I put in five eventful years with the Giants. Sometimes it was a joke and sometimes a tragedy. In the spring of 1891 the New York management would neither sign nor release me. The war was on so I jumped to the Detroit club of the American league. In 1893 John McGraw and Ed. Burrows made a trade by which I once more became a National leaguer. McGraw gave George Smith to Detroit for me and then handed the 'Kid' over to Philadelphia, where I have been ever since.

"So you see there are only five of the crop of 1885 still left in fast company. They are McGraw, Duffy, Beckley, O'Day and myself, and we will hang on just as long as the public, the club owners and the league president will stand for us." Richfield, Sevier Co., Jan. 15.—Charles L. Ogden, a young man of this place, had the misfortune to break his leg last Friday. Mr. Ogden has been employed for some time by the Annie Laura Mining company as watchman at the large flume of the company spanning Fish creek. The company has a cottage there where he and his wife resided. Friday morning as Mr. Ogden was inspacting the flume he lost his footing and fell into the canyon beneath a distance of about 50 feet, breaking his left leg a few inches below the knee. With great difficulty he succeeded in dragging himself within hailing distance of the cottage when his wife came to his assistance. Dr. Steiner of Kimberly was sent for who set the broken bones and left the patient as comfortable as possible. While Mr. Ogden is greatly inconvenienced by reason of this accident and the fracture is very painful, yet he may consider bimself fortunate in not foos.

league team. I had to fairly get down on my knees and beg for a trial it was granted me, and I pitched five games, winning them all, but this way not enough, and Manning refused to take me away on the initial trip.

"He, instead, gave me my release. I went down to Memphis and played with Harry Vaughan and the late John Ewing until that team went up. Then Manning hired me for his Kansas City Blues. In 1888 I pitched twenty games for his team, winning eighteen of them, hut yet I was turned down a second time.

As far back as 1889 Frank Selee had that good judgment of bail players that afterward enabled him to give Boston pennant winners for five years and to build up the present strong Chicago National league team. He signed Nichols for the Omaha club and the team won the championship of the Western association. The club played 121 games, and Nichols and "Dad" Clark each pitched forty-eight of them. Selee became man ager of the Boston team in 1896, took Nichols with him, and the "Kid" begin his long and honorable career as a National league player. For the following twelve years Nichols worked like a beavers and almost pitched his arm off for Soden, Conant and Billings, the owners of the Boston triumvirate so that he could accept the management of the Kansas City club. In 1904 a tempting offer from the Robisons brought Nichols to the management of the St. Louis Cardinals. He was released last summer and signed at once for Philadelphia by Hugh Duffy, his old side paytner of the Boston days.

"I know that we would not think of bolishing the game at Chicago," said can Hulbert hat night. "It is by far too good a game to loss. There are too many level headed men in the west to necessitate doing away with the sport. Reforms are needed, it is true, and it is expressly for this reason that the football contercher will be held here on Friday. All talk of abolishing the game at any western college in the 'big nine' is pure nonsense. Frof. Albien W. Small, head of the sociology and one of the most influential men on the faculty, declared.

"It is nonsense to talk of abolishing football. I do not believe my representative of the conference colleges will advocate abolishing the game at the meeting on Friday. I am certain Chicago will not. Changes in rules will not do away with brutality or roughness in football. It is the men behind the game, the of ficials, and the spirit of the universities that count."
