"A religious business would not nec-essarily be a place where you had Scripture texts hung all over the walls. It would not necessarily be a place where people had to come 15 minutes early in order to have a prayer meet-ing before they commenced the day's work. But it would be a business that had for its object, not to get something out of the world, but to be a means by which a person might give something to the world. That spirit is needed, it does not make any dif-ference whether a man blacks boots, or works in a shop or a mine, or wheth-er he does clerical work or more in-tellectual work. That is the only kind of spirit that is going to help humani-ty-to do your work because it needs to be done, and because these people are your brothers and sisters whom you ought to serve.

both from roominghouse proprietors and police which had teveated appall-ing conditions—in many cases too much so to bear recital. She gave instances showing to what an alarming extent the roominghouse is used for immoral pur-poses, one only by the members of the social underworld but by so-called "re-spectable members of society," includ-ing both married men and women, young men and girls. She said that the laxness of the laws governing ar-rosts and fines was greatly responsi-ble for the flourishing of this evil, as the payment of the stipulated ball se-cured immunity from publicity, which in itself would be the most powerful remedial agency. She said that the po-lice were frequently and unjustly blamed for conditions for which they were not officially responsible. In the first place, there is but one policeman for every 2,700 people; and one of the force had said that in the time it took to thoroughly complete his heat, the roominghouses bad time both to full and force had suid that in the time it took to thoroughly complete his heat, the roominghouses had time both to fill and empty themselves in his absence. An-other hindrance to interference is the fact that if an officer makes a mis-take in performing his duties he is held personally responsible in the ways of court proceedings or other punish-ment, the department in no way hold-ing itself responsible for his acts. She said that nearly all policemen on this account are forced to put their person-al property out of their own hands, as each is liable to err, and the pun-ishment in cases of offense falls on him alone. him alone

As to the proprietors of rooming houses, she had the statement of sev-eral that they had to sell out because they had made a stand against im-moral practises had become so fre-guent that if questioned it occasioned surprise on the part of those applying for admittance. She spoke of the danger of young girls going to these places for an evening's annusement and taking liquor, stating that many a careless girl dated her fail to these dangerous indiscretions. Some united stand, Mrs. Simpkin said, should be taken against this matter will not come up, but that it will go over to the regular meeting of Monday evening. The Raleigh case will go before the council in the form of a report from the committee of the whole of the council with a recom-mendation that the charges be dis-missed, not being sustained by the evidence. The public has already lost interest in the matter. Councilman Wood's crusade against the superinten-dent of streets will go down in local political history as a howing flasco.

CALIFORNIANS PROTEST AGAINST FLINT'S PLAN.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 20 .- A joint resolution offered by United States Senator Flint in the senate Feb. 11, cstablishing harbor boundary lines at San Pedro and which it is claimed here would put the destiny of Los Angeles almost completely in the hands of the southern Pacific railroad, has aroused the harbor commissioners and various local commercial organizations to ac-tivity in opposition and caused several hurried calls for special meetings to file protests at Washington. News of this resolution was received in private dispatches here yesterday. The board of harbor commissioners was immediately called in special meet-ing today to consider the subject. It is also announced that the Los Angeles chamber of commerce and other civic bodies will take action at once. Many telegrams have already been sent to Senator Flint asking him not to urge the passage of his resolution until local interests can be heard on the subject. tablishing harbor boundary lines at San
