DESERET EVENING NEWS: SATURDAY, MAY 4, 1901.

THE RECONSTRUCTED TABERNACLE ORGAN

F. W. Hedgeland, the Man Who Has Done the Work, Describes Its Possibilities, and Declares it to Be Without a Rival in the World.

F. W. HEDGELAND,
The man who rebuilt the great Tabernacle organ.

The Tabernacle organ as now rebuilt embodies every improvement known in the organ building art.

In the construction of this instrument there are utilized twenty-one patented devices not only in the mechanical construction, but also in the construction of the tone producing pipes.

The number of purely organic tones characteristic to the instrument itself is limited and an instrument embodying only these would be sadly deficient in characteristics.

We have often been asked how does this organ compare with other instruments in the world? How many pipes has it? Which organ is the largest in the world? In reply to these queries, we wish to state that a band of four hundred pipes is necessary to the instrument and is not necessarily effective.

The Tabernacle organ, as it stands today, is the most effective instrument that will be found at home or abroad.

Having effects and possibilities not to be found in any other instrument and while numerically in the number of stops or pipes it is not the largest instrument in the world, as to bulk it is without exception tonally without a rival as to results, which should judge an instrument rather than the capabilities of it.

These great results have been achieved in the Tabernacle organ, not by any means. It is not the largest instrument in the world, as to bulk it is without exception tonally without a rival as to results, which should judge an instrument rather than the capabilities of it.

Another distinctive feature in the Tabernacle organ is the material used in the construction of the tone producing pipes.

All organs are built out of solid lumber but this instrument is built entirely in any place where wind is confined to three thicknesses of lumber or more. The grain of the center piece running at right angles to the outer pieces.

There are twenty-one automatic couplings which are operated invisibly and without in any way effecting the touch of the instrument.

The repetition is capable of seven hundred and twenty repetitions a minute, which is away in excess of any other known pipe organ.

The wind for this great instrument is furnished by six large storage tanks each of thirty-two cubic feet capacity. It is blown by ten horse power electric motor and when played full organ there are stopped at Salt Lake City.

By order of manufacturer these tanks are to be sold at once at sacrificed prices rather than reship them east. Customers easily save from $5 to $12 on each piano. Easy monthly payments given if desired. Papers with full particulars given if desired. Write for inspection.

EXCURSION TO OGDEN.

The excursion to Ogden by special train Sunday, at 10:00 a.m., via Rio Grande Western Railway, is postponed, account inclement weather.

Owing to the recent inclement weather, Mrs. Minor will continue her discharge of colors, etc., and typography at her studio at Hooper Block, for another week. She has still some exceptionally fine pieces suitable for wedding presents at greatly reduced prices.

I wish at this time to thank my many Salt Lake friends for courtesies shown me while here, as also the Salt Lake press for the interest they have taken in this great work. I shall always have a warm spot for Salt Lake and shall look forward to visiting this city in the future.
