CHILDREN GIVE FINE SHOW.

Excellent St. Patrick's Day Program at Salt Lake Theater by Little Folks.
The Salt Lake Theater was crowded last Saturday night on the occasion of the annual St. Patrick's day entertainment in aid of the St. Anna's orphanage. The most painstaking care had been given by Miss Nora Gleason and her assistants in the preparations and they had the satisfaction of realizing before the evening was over that their efforts were amply repaid. Of course the children and their acting and singing were the feature of the evening. The performance of the All Hallows band and orchestra was also highly creditable to those organizations and their instructor Prof. Fudrnan. The audience was enthusiastic and it had every reason to be, for the evening was one of the best ever staged on a St. Patrick's celebration.

There were over 80 children attired in a profusion of colors, the little shamrock girls from the St. Mary's and St. Lawrence junior choirs filling the stage from wing to wing, and their rendering of "Columbia" made a very pretty scene. Assisting in the enjoyment of the evening were Mrs. Edward McGurkin, with her harp, Horace Engeln, the well known baritone, and the Imperial Men's quartet. The applause was frequent and hearty, which spurred the children to even better effort than they had dreamed of and their action, so entirely free from "stage mannerisms," made their appearance for more enjoyable. Among the marked favorites seemed to be Florence Locke, aged 12, who sang "The Dear Little Shamrock," in chorus with St. Mary's junior choir, and her "Our Old Man," who sat around while the rest of the family worked, which made a great hit. Little Helen Pfeiffer, in her dialogue of "Where's My Cat," appeared with a kitten coddled in green ribbons, which pleased the audience. Forty boys dressed in silk hats.

CHAS. E. WOOD HERE.

Former Assistant Fire Chief and L. M.

Earl in Salt Lake.

Yesterday morning's train from the north brought to Salt Lake two gentlemen who are well known in this city. They are Charles E. Wood, former assistant chief of the Salt Lake fire department, and former secretary, L. M. Earl. The latter is now representing the Salt Lake company at St. Anthony, while Mr. Wood is interested in a ranch north of that thriving town. The gentlemen will be in the city for two or three days visiting among their friends here.

Mr. Wood states that the weather at St. Anthony has been extremely cold of late, and that a great amount of snow has fallen, but as there is no such thing as a free lunch, the snow in that part of the country is not so appreciated as highly as it would be in other localities. It is reported that every branch of business is thriving and the prospects for the coming season are most encouraging.

SUIT FOR $5,000.

Continental Life Insurance and Investment Company is Plaintiff.

The Continental Life Insurance and Investment company is plaintiff in a suit filed today in the district court against the Idaho State bank at Hagerman, Idaho, to recover $5,000 with interest, alleged to be due on a certificate of deposit issued Feb. 12, 1906, for the credit of the Western Securities company.

The complaint alleges that W. S. McCormick, treasurer of the plaintiff company, delivered to defendant the certificate of deposit and requested it to honor the same or issue a new certificate in the name of plaintiff. The bank refused to do either one of these things, and hence the suit was filed.

those who are engaged in the office and on the "pale works." I handed him the key of the storeroom where all the food was stocked up, but he handed it back, telling me to keep it and to account to him afterwards for the distribution of the supplies. The year that followed was a severe one. Mr. Park said that the wisdom of the President in caring for the poor and those engaged on the public works was amply justified.

H. B. CLAWSON, another veteran who served as business agent, steward, and distributor of supplies to President Young's families, was the next speaker. He too gave some interesting personal experiences, and said that he was very glad to be a part of the celebration. He was a boy, he said, that he and his mother came to Winter Quarters. President Young was there with his family. He was a boy, he said, that he and his mother came to Winter Quarters. President Young was there with his family. She recalled especially the ministrations of "Aunt" Zerk, who sat by the bedside of the sick, as well as the practical aid tendered by "Aunt" Clara Decker. She then paid a tribute to President Jos. He closed by expressing the hope that this old landmark and others would long be preserved and that the many interesting works already gathered could be shown, a sentiment which was greeted with hearty applause.

about preserving the Lion House, said that it had once been proposed to change the form of the structure by adding another story, but that he had insisted on keeping in its present form as a landmark of historic value. This sentiment was also applauded.

President Smith added that he favored preserving the old landmark and retaining the real estate owned by the church in this locality. Some of the speakers, however, urged that the Temple walls be torn down and replaced by an iron fence, but he had always opposed the proposition and should continue to do so, a statement which was also greeted with hearty applause.

At the conclusion of the speaking, refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Holmgren, head of the Domestic Science department of the L. D. S. A. and fifteen young ladies, the delicious refreshments being made and served by the same hands. Considerable time was then passed in conversation, exchanging reminiscences, and in visits to the relic room as well as the "hall of honor" in a rear chamber. Here the guests were allowed to throw their lives over a curtain and to the hook would be attached some small object of interest associated with the early history of the famous house.
