CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

Bill to remove political disabilities.

Sawyer asked the Senate to proceed to the consideration of the bill to relieve certain persons therein named from legal and political disabilities imposed by the fourteenth amendment. some discussion ensued when the morning hour expired and the bill went over.

The Senate resumed consideration of the bill revising the laws relative to the mint and assay offices, and the coinage of the United States. After a lengthy discussion the bill was passed, 36 to 14.

Numerous petitions were presented; one by Yates, from the citizens of Illinois, praying for an amendment to the Constitution recognizing the Supreme Being; referred to the judiciary committee.

Sherman from the committee on finances, reported adversely to the supplementary bill to reduce taxes &c.

Carpenter from the judiciary committee, reported back the bill authorizing the President to accept the resignation of any United States judge, whenever satisfactory proof was furnished of his physical or other infirmities, the said judge to receive his salary during his natural life, unless after his retirement he accepts other office of profit. He asked action on the bill. Casserly said it was too important a bill for hasty action, and at his request the bill was laid over.

HOUSE.

Remonstrance of three hundred women against woman suffrage.

Garfield presented a remonstrance from three hundred women, of Ohio, against women suffrage.

The House resumed the consideration of the San Domingo committee resolution.

After a two hours' debate on the Dominican resolution, the House proceeded to vote on the resolution offered by Ambler yesterday, that the passage of the resolution should not be construed or understood as committing the Government to the policy of annexing San Domingo. The amendment was agreed to, by a vote of 108 to 36. At 2:30 p.m., the House passed the Dominican resolution, with Ambler's amendment tacked on. It must now go back to the Senate.

WASHINGTON.

All about the Motley affair--Ice bound.

WASHINGTON, 10.—Ex-Minister Motley, in his letter to Secretary Fish, quotes several dispatches of the latter, among them one dated June 29th, 1870, acknowledging the receipt of Motley's dispatch of June 12th, giving the account of an interview with Lord Clarendon, during which a full conversation was held on the general relations between the two countries. In this dispatch Secretary Fish says: "Your general presentation and treatment of the several subjects discussed in the interview meet with the approval of this department. In the course of conversation, however, it seems that the President's views of the right of every power, when a civil conflict has arisen within another State, to define its own relations and those of its citizens, was not conveyed in precise conformity with that view, as I designed presenting it to you, and as it doubtless would have been conveyed by you had your communication been made in writing. The subject may not again be the topic of an official communication between yourself and the minister of foreign affairs; but I venture to call your attention to it, because of the statement in your dispatch, that Lord Clarendon observed, at that part of your remarks, that if there was to be any discussion of the principles, it had better be thorough and to the bottom. The President recognizes the importance of a thorough discussion, whenever the subject is resumed, upon all points of difference. He wishes that whenever negotiations or discussion, on the subject of the Alabama claims, so-called, shall be renewed, they be conducted in the United States, and desires that, at the proper times you should convey this wish to the minister of foreign affairs. Meantime, you may be well content to rest the question on the very forcible presentation you have made of the American side. If there were expressions used stronger than required by your instructions, the excess was in the right direction, and stopping where they do, and uttered as they were, it may well be hoped that they may tend to impress the minister with the seriousness and the appreciation of the grievances we have sustained."

Motley then quotes from his written instructions, and from his report of the conversation with Clarendon, to show that while his (Motley's) language on that occasion was not exactly that used in his instructions from the State Department, there was no marked difference, and that the spirit of the Instructions was faithfully preserved.

Motley next gives the text of the note written by him to Clarendon, in obedience to a request from Fish, made on hearing that the report of the conversation had been submitted to Clarendon for verification; in which he calls the attention of the latter to the apparent discrepancy between the views of the President, as given in the dispatch from the Secretary of State, and those expressed by Motley verbally in the interview with the Minister. Motley expresses doubt whether Clarendon observed any marked inconsistency; at any rate he made no comments of such effect, either during the reading or after.

Motley also quotes a letter from Fish, dated July 1st, 1870, marked "Private," and informing him that the President was desirous of making a change in the ministry, and would accept his resignation; and a telegram, received a few hours before the letter, on the 12th of July, requesting a reply by telegraph. To these communications Motley first telegraphed an answer declining to resign, and followed this with a letter giving reasons for this declination, that no reasons are given why he should resign, that he (Motley) knows of none, and that were he to make use of the permission accorded him to resign, it would seem that he had done so in order to escape removal. He continues: "As I know the record of my mission, as it stands in the archives of the department of this legation, to be free from international faults, and as I have therefore no reason to shun the strictest scrutiny in this regard, I do not like to have even the appearance of making a contrary admission."

Secretary Fish's letter, in reply to Motley, is dated December 31st, 1870, and is addressed to Moran, Secretary of Legation. He refers to a paper received with Moran's latest dispatches, purporting to be from the legation of the United States at London, in the form of an official dispatch signed Mr. Motley, late envoy, &c.; and in which the latter retains the form and style of official correspondence, although he has ceased to hold official relations with this government, and professes to write from the legation no longer in his charge. He then proceeds to review Motley's letter in detail, and denies that there was any difference of opinion between government and himself on the subject of our relations with Great Britain; and asserts that it was apparent, soon after his appointment, that in a question of the controlling interest of that moment, he merely accepted the view upon which popular excitement had been stimulated and wrought to a very dangerous irritation, rather than those which the President deemed sound and based on true principles; and says his dispatches show that he carried out this view instead of his instructions. The Secretary charges that Motley assumed to narrate to Clarendon what occurred in a secret session of the Senate, and that he took an unjustifiable responsibility in referring, in his conversation with Clarendon, to the contingency of war between the two countries, instead of saying what he was authorized to say upon this question. He refers to the withholding from the Department the information that he had submitted the report of the conversation with Clarendon to the latter for verification, as a grave offense; and says from the time this fact came to the knowledge of the Department and the President, it was impossible he should remain as representative of the government longer than the exigencies of the public service required.

The Potomac is closed with ice. There is a rumor that a steamer from Acquia Creek for this city has been sunk by the ice.

INDIANA.

Extensive Fire.

MADISON, 10.—The largest fire that has occurred in this city for years, broke out at midnight last night, completely destroying four stores in the Fitch block, the Free Press printing office, and damaging other buildings. The loss is estimated at between $30,000 and $40,000.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Ship burned--four hundred and twenty-five Coolies perish in the flames.

BOSTON, 10.—A letter received here from Batavia, dated Nov. 16th, says the Italian ship Ulcowa, from Macao for Callao, with coolies, was set fire to when near Neptune Island, and abandoned by the captain and crew, who were saved by a San Salvador ship. A hundred and twelve coolies were picked up by the ship Juan Ponc; the remainder, 425 in number, perished in the flames.

NEW YORK.

Fish will resign--Seward struck with paralysis.

NEW YORK, 10.—The Tribune's Washington special states positively that, at the close of the present session of Congress, Secretary Fish will resign, and Senator Morton will be appointed in his place.

Gen. Randall, recently returned from Japan, whither he went with ex-Secretary Seward, reports the latter suffering from paralysis of both arms, so that he is deprived of the use of both of them. Otherwise his health seems improved. He proposes to extend his trip to India, and on his way home will visit St. Petersburg, upon an invitation of the Czar.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE.

Details of the fighting near Vendome.

BORDEAUX, 9.—Details of Friday's fighting near Vendome are received. At eleven in the morning, the Germans attacked Gen. Curten, in the district of St. Cyr, Ville Porcher and Ville Thauve. The French were driven back to Neuville. Curten brought up supports, and recaptured all the positions, repulsing the enemy beyond St. Roumaine, which the French re-entered in the night. The German loss was considerable; the French trifling.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Siege of Langres raised.

LILLE, via LONDON, 9.—The Germans are massing south of Baupaume.

The French sharpshooters near Lille successfully engaged the Uhlans to-day, taking forty-three prisoners.

The Prussians have raised the siege of Laugres.

THE DANFORTH
NON-EXPLOSIVE
PETROLEUM FLUID!
THE terrible and fatal disasters, which are almost daily occurring by the careless use and explosions of kerosene oil, should call the serious attention of using it to its deadly qualities and induce them to procure a substitute for it.
Thousands have perished by using kerosene oil, and thousands more will be offered a sacrifice to its death-dealing properties without its use is discontinued or its destructive element done away. If a fluid capable of a far more brilliant light,
Cheaper, More Cleanly and Perfectly Free from the Danger of Explosion can be found, is it not perfectly suicidal to delay for a single day to use it? Such a fluid, by years of patient experiment and the expenditure of over fifty thousand dollars, has been provided by R. F. DANFORTH, of Cleveland, Ohio, and it has been introduced to the public with great success.
For the Danforth Non-Explosive Petroleum Fluid it is claimed:
1st. That it is Non-Explosive and perfectly safe in whatever form used.
2d. That it is entirely free from filth and grease, and will not stain silks or fabrics of the most delicate colors or tints.
3d. That it is entirely free from all disagreeable odor.
4th. That it gives a purer, more brilliant and at the same time a softer light than any oil or fluid in use, and is fully equal to gas light.
5th. That it is (except daylight) the cheapest light ever discovered.
Surely, if the fluid is as above represented, kerosene oil should be discarded in every family where it is used, and the Danforth Fluid used in its stead. Not to use it would be trifling with the lives and property of every member of the family.
The FLUID 75c. per gal.
The Fluid, Burners, Chimneys, etc., in large or small quantities, can be procured of
