at present the consuming ambition

An interview with the baroness is quite as impossible as the age of Ann. Her manager offers an explanation, which is at least ingenious, to-wit: As people make long journeys to hear the wonderful voice and pay a good price for the privilege, they are entitled to that voice in its very best form. Therefore, be it known, Patti does as little talking as possible-that talk being confined to her husband, manager and attendants-and closets herself in her own rooms so as to preclude the pos-sibility of taking a cold or impairing in any way whatsoever her vocal or-

Though the dining room has been thronged with anxious ob. servers, the nearest they have come to satisfying their desires is the sight of her own servant carrying a tray across the parlor floor to the apartments of the baroness.

BARON IS GENIAL.

Not so with the baron. He is a genial sort of good fellow, who loves good company and has a tourist's mania for seeing the sights. With all other members of the organization, he attended a special recital in the Tabernacle yesterday afternoon and today they are at Saltair, braving the chilly breezes for a sight of the great inland sea.

WHY PATTI IS "SHY."

"You know," says the baron, "the baroness is not to be blamed if she re-fuses to meet people. She loves con-versation and all that as much as I, but by Jove she cannot afford the risk. has stood this tour wonderfully well, having had every convenience and luxury that human ingenuity could supply, and we want her to finish it in the same perfect health she now en-JOYE.

'As to myself, I have enjoyed every moment of the time immensely. I am infatuated with America and I must say I like the west. I'm going to see the lake now, if you will kindly excuse me, and then I may be able to tell you more. By the way, would it be objec-tionable, do you think, if I filled my pockets with salt out there. I understand it is plentiful," and with a jo-vial laugh the baron strode rapidly away to catch his train.

A TOUCHING INCIDENT.

Only on one occasion during her tour has Patti granted a newspaper inter view, and nobody has yet been able to explain the cause of her good humored departure. It was in Montreal, Canada quite recently. During her talk, she re lated that 25 years ago she sang if that city and while rendering "Home Sweet Home," she observed an douple near the front. Tears she observed an age streaming down their faces and finally as the last notes lingered in the hall the old man broke down completly and did not regain his composure for several minutes.

"The remainder of that concert," the singer declared, "was sung to that old couple. I was never in my life so deeply moved while performing.

ROSES FOR JEWISH BRIDE.

Another incident shows Patti's love able nature in brilliant colors, and re-lates to the only time that she has been known to emerge from her apartments except to go to her work. In Chicago the party secured apartments at the Auditorium annex. The first evening of their arrival, a Jewish wed-ding was in progress in the parlors ad-joining those of the distinguished guest. Attracted by the merrymaking and loud laughter, Patti sent her maid to ascertain the cause. Upon hearing of the wedding, the songstress fore apa a large basket of roses that had been sent to her and made the flowers ove into a huge bouquet. She then waite for a favorable opportunity and wit proached the bride and personally mad the gift. She was recognized befor could withdraw and by quickly drawing a door to, one of the wedding party compelled her to listen to a toas in her honor, which was acknowledged with beaming smiles and gracious hows Manager Suckling comments upon attl's complete conversion to the Patti's thought that her wonderful voice gift-not especially the result of her own efforts. She gave to the manager an autographed picture. Above signature, these lines appear: "A b tiful voice is the gift of God."

HER FELLOW TRAVELERS.

Two interesting members of the Patti company are Senor Morini of Milan, the diva's private secretary, and Sapio, her musical conductor. The for mer has been with the baroness for 23 years and Senor Sapino has made six tours with the artiste.

Mr. McClellan took Messrs. Hegner, the cellist, Virgo the tenor, and Prof. Anton Pedersen to dinner with him at the Commercial club; and in the even-ing, after the choir rehearsal, there was an impromptu musicale, in which Hegner, Virgo, the organist and the great choir were the features. The choir fairly outdid itself to the delight of the visitors and the greatification of

C. J. Crabtree, a member of a produce firm which bears his name, had an experience on Saturday night with holdups which he is not seeking again. Mr. Crabtree, who lives at 449 Fourth East, was going home on Saturday night on the street car that runs on Fourth South. When he arrived at his corner he dropped off the front two men stepped off the rear end of the car and followed him. He had hardly gone 20 steps when they halled him and called upon him to stop. Crabtree took one how the step halled him took one look at a great big gun one of the fellows held in his hand and then ran like a deer for home with the two men after him. Crabtree got home first and from the safe side of his front door watched the fellows loiter around and then continue on up the street.

While Mr. Crabtree cannot give a description of the men the police are working with the car conductor on a clue.

The band was received with the usual demonstrations of favor, and the vocalist of the evening, Miss Ruth Wilson, soprano, sang two numbers and was warmly applauded for her good work work

PORTO RICANS ARE NOT ALIENS OF UNITED STATES.

Washington, Jan. 4 .- In an opinion by Thief Justice Fuller the supreme court of the United States today decided that citizens of Porto Rico are not aliens of the United States, and that they are entitled to enter this country without obstruction. The opinion was delivered in the case of a Porto Rican woman, Gonzales, who in 1902, was refused ad-mission to the port of New York on the ground that she was likely to become public charge. The decision was based entirely on the immigration act of 1891 and took the ground that the Porto Ricans swear allegiance to the United States and to no other government.

attacks, the sufficiency of the indictment

To the alternion of the court was a de-murrer, in which coursel for the senator attacks, the sufficiency of the indictment charging conspiracy with Postmaster Fisher to violate section 181 of the re-vised statutes. The demurrer alleges the insufficiency of law in the indictment, a misjoinder, and merging of the conspiracy count with the original charge. This is the first technicality to be tak-en advantage of by the defense and Gen. Cowan in addition to demurring to the conspiracy indictment, announced the wish of Senator Districts to go to trial on the indictment charging violation of the law. There are five counts in the demurrer which charges? This, that the drift count is the indict-ment does not sufficiently state, allege or charge crime, misdemeanor, or offense of conspiracy; second, that there is a mis-joinder of parties defendant to the indict-ment; third, that the first count find in-dictment does not state charge or set forth a crime, misdemeanor of offense against defendant; fourth, that in the first count the pretended conspiracy is merged in the alleged completed act; and fifth, that Senator District is ready for, and demands immediate trial for the com-pleted offense to which he has been ar-raigned and pleaded not guilty . After a brief consultation between Judges Munger and Van Deventer, tha latter announced that arguments on the demurrer would be heard at once. After an hour's argument court took the mat-ter under advisement.

COTTRELL REPLIES.

President Cottrell in response said: "Mr. Fernstrom and Members of the Council-It is very gratifying to me to know that I have gained your appre-clation and your esteem. The words that have been uttered by Mr. Fern-strom this morning have done me more good than any other thing that has happened since I have been president of this body. To know that I have gained your esteem is worth more to me than anything else I have. I have tried to preside over this body with justice to all and I can assure you that your present shows to me a keen appreciation of my efforts. This gavel will be treas-ured by me more dearly and highly than anything else of a similar char-acter that I have ever received, for it will bring many pleasant recollections of this council. Gentlemen, I can only say to you this morning that I thank will and I trust that the friendships that have been formed here will be kept intact, and that as time rolls on they will only become more fixed."

THE GAVEL A BEAUTY.

The gavel presented to President Cotrell is one of the finest ever seen here. ts body is of solid ivory with a black bony handle. Around the top and bottom of the body is a narrow band of silver and in the middle is a silver band about an inch in width, upon which are engrave the names of all the members the council and also a cut of the city and county building. About the middle of the handle is a silver band inscribed: "Presented to Charles Cottrell, Jr., Jan. 1904." The handle is also capped with silver cone-shaped cap.
