President Grant on the Situation.

WASHINGTON, 10,

President Grant, in the course of conversation, to-day, with the representative of the Associated Press concerning political affairs, said that, recently, he received a dispatch from Governor Chamberlain, informing him that it was currently reported in Columbia, that the President had, in his interview with Representative Hewitt, of New York, a week ago, remarked that when the sixty-three members of the South Carolina House of Representatives, holding certificates from the Secretary of State, should convene, he would recognize them as the legal House. The President, in reply to Chamberlain, telegraphed him that if Hewitt had sent such a dispatch, it was untrue that he had so expressed himself. The President says he had a conversation with Hewitt, in which he said, that, in his judgment, not less than sixty-three members were eligible to organize the House and transact State business, including the determination of the qualification of its members. This was the view he then held, but it was merely a private opinion, and he might have been wrong. The President, on that occasion, further expressed his views with regard to the grounds on which each wing or member of the House of Representatives claimed their seats, and in this connection the President produced a note addressed to him by Hewitt, dated December 6th, as follows:

To the President.—I have received a reliable telegram from Columbia stating that the sixty-third member, holding a certificate from the Secretary of State, has been sworn into the house presided over by Speaker Wallace, which is therefore organized in accordance with the requirements of law as stated by you.

On the same day Hewitt sent him another note, as follows:

I have just received a later dispatch saying that the Supreme Court of South Carolina has pronounced its judgment and declared the house presided over by Wallace to be the legally constituted house of representatives, and that Mackey is a private person and not the speaker or in any respect an officer of the legislative body.

The President said, with reference to these notes, that he did not think after his free conversation with Hewitt, that the latter would make use of what he said for the purpose of defeating the party which the President represented.

When Hewitt and Senator Randolph called upon him several days ago, he informed Hewitt of the contents of a dispatch he had received from Governor Chamberlain, and the reply he made to it, and intimated to Hewitt that he thought his confidence had been abused. Hewitt denied that he had sent to Columbia such a dispatch as that mentioned.

The President then repeated to Hewitt the substance of the dispatch in reply to Governor Chamberlain in regard to the report current in Columbia.

Senator Randolph then produced a dispatch from General Hampton, in which he said that if the President would recognize the Wallace house and withdraw the troops he would do everything possible to preserve peace.

The President remarked that he looked upon this as a piece of impertinence on the part of General Hampton in telling him what to do; that the sending of troops to South Carolina was in obedience to the call of Governor Chamberlain, the danger there being too formidable for the authorities of the State to control; that the organized rifle clubs representing General Hampton were in the city of Columbia, and that if the federal troops should be withdrawn there would be peace, but it would be the peace of death.

Senator Randolph then explained that the President should not think that General Hampton sought to advise him what to do, and that the dispatch which was shown to the President was in reply to one Randolph had sent to Hampton in response to a question.

The President said that he had never instructed Gen. Ruger to place troops in the State House, but that was the way Gen. Ruger understood his order. The troops were in South Carolina, the President repeated, in obedience to the call of Gov. Chamberlain to suppress an insurrection too formidable for him to control, and had it not been for these troops Chamberlain would have been a refugee to-day, as Gov. Ames now is from Mississippi. The President said he looked on the situation as embarrassing, to say the least. A good deal of bad temper had been shown on the democratic side, and many were acting unreasonably. They seem to fear that he was doing what was right, and were abusing everybody for not yielding to their views. This struck him as strange, considering the scenes through which we have passed. Gov. Hayes represented the party that carried, in the election, all but four of the States that furnished the means for the suppression of the rebellion, and Governor Tilden carried all but three of those which sought to destroy the Union. In allusion to frauds he said the majority for Tilden in the city of New York was larger than his total majority in the entire State, in which city much crime is perpetrated and where there is a large number of men who have very little interest in the state or the republic. In the same way frauds were committed in the States of New Jersey and Connecticut. While it was true that those Southern States which gave Governor Tilden a majority were voters many of whom voted more than once, but nobody claimed that Tilden did not carry such States. The party that perpetrated the frauds in the Southern States for Tilden complain of frauds of Florida, Louisiana and South Carolina; but if there had been no frauds in Mississippi and North Carolina, those States would have gone for Hayes and Wheeler.

The President justified the exclusion of Laurens and Edgefield counties from the returns on the ground that Georgians voted in them frequently and cast more votes than were the voters for the democrats. Much had been said about the use of troops, but considering the number of lives sacrificed and the many political murders in the south, it was necessary to afford the required protection. Though all was quiet now in the south, so far as he could he would protect every one from violence. All steps taken to this end had been duly considered.

In reply to the remark that it seemed that the democrats had abandoned the idea of impeaching him, the President said he would advise them not to attempt it, for it might bring out evidence which they would not wish to see spread on the records. He would rather trust the rebels than their northern allies, and tried to say as much in his annual message.

He did not receive all the reports from the departments in time, and therefore he was obliged to leave out of his message many subjects to which otherwise he would have alluded. He says in response to a question that he would answer the house resolution and inform them why he sent troops to the south.

Among other things, the President said there were now six or eight hundred troops in Washington. If there should be any need for more he would order them thither. We should have peace if we had to fight for it. Some days he received five or six letters threatening assassination, but he paid no attention to them. A crazy man once followed him for six months, threatening to take his life, and this person he believed was placed in the insane asylum. When he first came to the executive mansion he found a military guard there, but he immediately caused it to be withdrawn and sent into barracks. Referring to the political complications he said he had an abiding faith in the people. As we have had one rebellion, he did not believe the people were anxious for another, and thought there would be some way out of our present difficulties.

DR. FRAZIER. Dear Sir: I feel it a duty I owe to suffering humanity to write you, stating the wonderful benefit I have derived from the use of your Life Syrup and Strengthening Root Bitters. For some time I was sorely afflicted with a cough, raising bad stuff, with every symptom of being a confirmed consumptive. I tried different medicines and cures, without finding relief, I also consulted three of our most prominent Cleveland physicians, the last one of which pronounced my case serious and informed me I could not live more than a few months. About this time, hearing of your wonderful success, I commenced taking your Life Syrup for the lungs, in connection with your Root Bitters, and at once was benefited, and after using the medicine some two months I find myself entirely cured. If this statement of my case can be of any service to you in bringing your medicines to the notice of the suffering, my object in writing this note will be attained, for I firmly believe my life has been saved by your treatment.

Signed, TORRENCE DUNN.

TO CALIFORNIA.

We don't give this for un fait accomplis, but it is very strongly rumored that Cedar Rapids is to be the half-way station between Chicago and Council Bluffs.

If this is to be, and some experiments have been made to that end, we suppose it is on account of the superior condition of the road. A trip on the steel railed and well ballasted road, is not any more now, if as much, wear and, tear on the employes and machinery to a train, from Chicago to Cedar Rapids, 218 miles, as it was on the iron rails from Chicago to Clinton, 138 miles, in the olden time.

It is not necessary for us to say that the C. & N. W. R'y is a first-class road in every particular, that it rides as easy as sitting in a "rocking chair," that its coaches are parlors, that its employes are the most polite and affable gentlemen the traveling public can meet or will meet in a lifetime of travel—the esprit de corps of the employes, if we may so say, is at a high standard; we say we need not say this in a newspaper, it is self-evident to every traveler on the road. But in the future these are to be increased; we suppose the speed will be increased; if possible, the superb trains will be more superb; there is to be no train more complete, either for comfort or safety, leave the world's commercial metropolis for the GOLDEN GATE, THAN THE GREAT TRAINS ON THE CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY—THE ONLY COMPANY RUNNING OUT OF CHICAGO THAT HAS A ROAD SO RELIABLE THAT THEY ARE NOT AFRAID TO RUN AT ANY SPEED CAPABLE OF BEING ATTAINED BY ENGINES OF THE MOST IMPROVED CONSTRUCTION, RUN WITH THE HAND OF IRON NERVE, AND A HEAD OF BRAINS, WITHOUT ANY FEAR OF ACCIDENT OR INCONVENIENCE.

Every employe on the road feels a personal interest in the North-Western Railway; it's the "cliper" road in the West, and so far as anything he can do it will continue so to be.

THIS IS THE TRANS-CONTINENTAL LINK FROM THE GREAT LAKES TO THE GREAT MISSOURI RIVER.

The old time traveler speaks in high glee of the "ease and comfort" of these days of steel in contrast with the pioneer days of this pioneer road in the days of iron. The comforts of travel on the North-Western Railway are in every traveler's mouth from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It must be a proud compliment to the efficient management, and that is the reason every officer or employe feels so happy and obliging.

It is with pride we mention these things, and join the general shout along the line. Hurrah for the "OLD RELIABLE."—Cedar Rapids Republican, Aug. 14, 1876.
