EVENING NEWS.

Wednesday, - November 15, 1876.

COUNCILS AND FIGHT BETWEEN GEN. MILES AND GENERAL SITTING BULL.

[CONCLUDED.]

A long, earnest and eager conference began this time, with a little anxiety on the side of the Fifth, by reason of officers and men going back and forth. This conference was even more protracted than on the day before, the Sioux showing their anxiety for the result by constantly riding to the council circle eagerly consulting each other and then returning to their eminence, the line of warriors that had been formed being almost entirely broken up by these movements. After long, anxious consultation, many of the chiefs were found willing to agree to the terms, one offering to go himself as hostage if his tribe would be allowed to hunt buffalo awhile. At this point, however, Sitting Bull eagerly broke up the conference, preferring to fight to yielding.

Each party retired to its own side. General Miles sent a final word to Sitting Bull to let him have his answer promptly or he would open upon him with his guns. No answer was returned. As General Miles and his party moved slowly back to his lines the Indians on the plain withdrew to the heights, and crowned these and the high ground beyond the rocks in front. From the prudent precautions taken by General Miles against surprise or treachery to his command the Indians seemed to have had an idea he would rather await than make an attack, so they watched with extreme eagerness his first movement. A moment sufficed for preparation, and when the wished for command to move forward was given every officer and soldier joyfully responded and their eagerness could scarcely be restrained. Major Casey, with Company A, was directed to move along and clear the ridge on the left. Captain Carter, with Company K, to clear a high knoll on the right, Captain Snyder, with Company F, to guard the Rodman gun, while the line advanced direct to the front. The advance was not handsomely done, owing to the too great eagerness to get forward. After advancing a few hundred yards the line was deployed as skirmishers, opening out like a fan. The deployment was beautifully made in perfect order, sweeping over the ground with its long waving line, climbing the hills and descending the valleys like a long ripple over the billows. Captain Carter's company, which had been ordered to carry the height on the right, crowned by about seventy-five Indians without firing, moved steadily forward, closing upon the Sioux. The latter gave way before the little line without venturing a shot. Meanwhile the main line was rapidly advancing. Company A, moving steadily, swept aside the few Indians on the left ridge. The line had now reached the creek, beyond which was the battle-field.

On the precipitous rise immediately before us, composed of high gravelly knolls, were the main body of the Sioux. The ravine of the stream divided to the right, one portion running far to the right, the other extending to the north and left along the line of the advance. On the left of this branch was a very high ridge, commanding the whole plan of the field, and distant from the ravine a few hundred yards. This was covered by Indians. The prairie beyond the heights, on which the main body of the Sioux had taken up position, was rolling, as usual, each swell rising higher for several miles. The ground on the right of the right branch of the stream was similar to that on the left, but not so high.

The plan of the Indians, it appeared now, was to get the Fifth Regiment to pass the main force and thus become entangled in the ravines and low ground, while by crowning the surrounding heights they would be enabled to pour a concentrated fire on the mass and repeat the Custer butchery. General Miles was not the man to be thus entrapped, and by Captains Carter and Casey's moves defeated the first part of this programme. His plan was as perfect as its execution was complete.

The line was now moving out of the ravine and up the precipitous knolls, the Indians giving way gradually and easily in front, not yet firing a shot, the armistice apparently restraining both forces. The line now moved out of the ravines and up the precipitous gravel buttes in the following order:—Captain Casey, with Company A; Bennett, with B; Lymas, with I; Butler, with C; Carter, with K. In the line Lieutenants Pope and Rosseau, with H; Forbes, with G in reserve, Captain Snyders, with F, in charge of the Rodman gun, and McDonald, with D, in rear of the train. As the line approached the summit of the heights the Sioux began their wild war dance in our front. This was the first hostile demonstration. Many might have been killed now by the Rodman gun, but that the dislike to be first to break the armistice prevailed with General Miles. The Rodman gun was pushed forward on the right and all was moving forward in good order, when a shot from the rear passed through Lieut. Pope's company, and was at once returned by the eager men, who were tired of waiting. This company was at once ordered to clear the ravines and knolls whence the shot came from. Lieut. Rosseau, with Company K, was ordered to take the left and Carter the right ravine. At the same time the main line advanced rapidly, the main front when the Sioux dashed in circles along the front delivering a rapid fire and then disappearing behind the swells. Their riding was magnificent, but the fire was quite ineffective. While this was taking place the flank movements advanced apace. Company E soon cleared the ravines, Carter and Lyman doing the same on the right, where they encountered heavy firing in passing through what had been the camp of Sitting Bull's band.

Meanwhile the gallant Rosseau, worthy of his great brother's reputation, moved straight up to the lofty height under a rapid fire until he reached the summit and secured the key of the field. It was handsomely done and without loss of life, aided by the booming of the Rodman. The Sioux, now driven from every important point, flanked and foiled, made wide circles, and many came around to the rear or flank and rear of Company E, which had been ordered to remain with the train until it was out of danger. These Indians in the rear took possession of each height, and dismounting did some close firing. Here Sergeant McPhelan, Company E, was wounded severely from a shot. The Indians now fired the prairies in front, and amid the lurid flames the fight continued until no Sioux remained to oppose the advance. Company E was then directed to clear the ravines on the left rear, where water was to be found, of the few Indians collected there, while the command moved back and camped on the high ridge.

In this action only two men were wounded, this being due to the fact that the fire of the Indians was so well kept down by the new arms and good marksmen. Sergeant McPhelan, shot by a sharpshooter in the rear, and one private of Company I, was the total loss of the Fifth regiment. Of the number actually engaged or the loss incurred on the side of the Indians it is impossible to speak with any certainty. The Fifth had 398 all told, and the Indians certainly greatly outnumbered these. Sitting Bull's forces are estimated at 600 on the field, but many did not take part in the fight.

It has since been heard that there were three bands, in all 1,500 warriors, of which only a few took part. Six dead Indians were seen lying on the field, but as they had full opportunity to carry off their dead before they could be reached by the troops, it is reasonable to believe a great number were killed. Whatever their loss in killed may have been, more severe was the loss of several tons of dried buffalo meat and a large amount of camp equipage. For this they had fought, and by the loss of the fight the prestige of Sitting Bull was diminished. His punishment for the destruction of a gallant band of cavalry was accomplished by infantry alone, not a cavalry soldier or officer being on the field in this engagement. General Miles displayed that superb handling of troops that so distinguished him during the war and on the southern plains. The Indians were so completely baffled by the rapidity of his movements as to be unable to make any formidable opposition. The next morning the sun appeared and a fight occurred with the pickets of Company E, arising from the chasing and nearly capturing one man who was straggling, but the Indians were speedily driven off. The main trail was then resumed and pressed rapidly to the Yellowstone. Skirmishing continued most of the day. The prairie is being fired all along the line of march and ponies and lodge poles picked up all the way. The importance of the above engagement and pursuit will finally appear in the fact that this day the whole of the Minneconjous and Sans Arcs have surrendered and given five of their principal chiefs—Red Skirt, Black Eagle, Sunrise, Sitting Eagle, White Bull and Foolish Bull—to General Miles as hostages that they will go at once to the Cheyenne Agency. They give the number of their lodges as 1,300, but this is considerably overestimated. These chiefs leave to-night, under guard, for Cheyenne Agency, via Fort Buford. These tribes broke from Sitting Bull immediately after the fight, he going with a few lodges toward Fort Peck. Too much credit cannot be given to General Miles for his energy and ability in this whole campaign.—New York Herald.

WM. WILLES.

TO CALIFORNIA.

We don't give this for un fait accompli, but it is very strongly rumored that Cedar Rapids is to be the half-way station between Chicago and Council Bluffs.

If this is to be, and some experiments have been made to that end, we suppose it is on account of the superior condition of the road. A trip on the steel railed and well ballasted road, is not any more now, if as much, wear and, tear on the employes and machinery to a train, from Chicago to Cedar Rapids, 218 miles, as it was on the iron rails from Chicago to Clinton, 138 miles, in the olden time.

It is not necessary for us to say that the C. & N. W. R'y is a first-class road in every particular, that it rides as easy as sitting in a "rocking chair," that its coaches are parlors, that its employes are the most polite and affable gentlemen the traveling public can meet or will meet in a lifetime of travel—the esprit de corps of the employes, if we may so say, is at a high standard: we say we need not say this in a newspaper, it is self evident to every traveler on the road. But in the future these are to be increased; we suppose the speed will be increased, if possible, the superb trains will be more superb; there is to be no train more complete, either for comfort or safety, leave the world's commercial metropolis for the GOLDEN GATE, THAN THE GREAT TRAINS ON THE CHICAGO & NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY—THE ONLY COMPANY RUNNING OUT OF CHICAGO THAT HAS A ROAD SO RELIABLE THAT THEY ARE NOT AFRAID TO RUN AT ANY SPEED CAPABLE OF BEING ATTAINED BY ENGINES OF THE MOST IMPROVED CONSTRUCTION, RUN WITH THE HAND OF IRON NERVE, AND A HEAD OF BRAINS, WITHOUT ANY FEAR OF ACCIDENT OR INCONVENIENCE.

Every employe on the road feels a personal interest in the North-Western Railway; it's the "eclipse" road in the West, and so far as anything he can do it will continue so to be.

THIS IS THE TRANS-CONTINENTAL LINK FROM THE GREAT LAKES TO THE GREAT MISSOURI RIVER.

The old time traveler speaks in high glee of the "ease and comfort" of these days of steel in contrast with the pioneer days of this pioneer road in the days of iron. The comforts of travel on the North-Western Railway are in every traveler's mouth from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It must be a proud compliment to the efficient management, and that is the reason every officer or employe feels so happy and obliging.

It is with pride we mention these things, and join the general shout along the line, Hurrah for the "Old Reliable." Council Bluffs Republican, Aug. 14, 1876.
