BREVITIES.

The total distance between Omaha and San Francisco is 1,792 miles.

Fools don't know their strength; if they did they would keep still.

Common sense is most generally despised by those who haven't got it.

Wm. B. Astor is now seventy-six years of age, and said to be worth $1,000,000.

If a man wants to get at his actual dimensions, let him visit the graveyard.

Crime in New Orleans has increased threefold within the last three months

True happiness seems to consist in wanting all we can enjoy, and then getting all we want.

The fear of the law here, and hereafter, has furnished us some very clever specimens of Christianity.

"Mother!" exclaimed a little poet of four summers, "listen to the wind making music for the leaves to dance by."

A terrific contest between a bull dog and a large hog, resulting in a victory for the porker, was a Sunday street scene in Louisville recently.

If you would make yourself agreeable wherever you go, listen to the grievances of others, but never relate your own.

A widower of seventy-eight, and a spinster of sixty were recently married in Connecticut. Their united weight is 700 pounds.

The Duke of Richmond's heir has shocked the English aristocracy by marrying a London stock-broker's daughter. None of the family would attend the wedding.

The pleasures of dissipation are like gaudy colors—they attract for a moment, but it is only to oppress the senses.

An American lecturer of note sole mnly said one evening: "Parents, you have children, or if you have not your daughters may."

Josh Billings says: I don't care how much man talks if he will only say it in a few w rds.

Men never seem to get tired of talking of themselves, but I have heard them when I thought they showed signs of weakness.

I never bet on the man who is always telling what he would have done if he had been there; I have noticed that this kind never get there.

I have got a first-rate recollection, but no memory. I can recollect distinctly of losing a ten-dollar bill, but I can't remember where, to save my life.

Anybody can tell where lightning struck last, but it takes a smart man to tell where it will strike next time—this is one of the differences between learning and wisdom.

The literary editer of a modest exchange, thus replies to a letter of a correspondent:

Isaac—Your article on "frogs" is received. It makes us laff like lightning. Your idea that frogs was discovered by Kristopher Kolumbus, in the year 1776, is worth a drink any day.

Mrs. Williams, of St. Louis, presented her husband with four babes at a birth, a few days ago, two of whom have since died. Up to the day of their appearance, Mrs. W. attended to her household duties.

A Cleveland mechanic claims to have invented an air engine that will give as much power, by increase of size, as can be had from a steam engine. He estimates the saving in fuel by his machine at $1,250,000 per year for the 1000 more steam engines in use in that city.

When your canaries are moulting and cease to sing, do this: put a little oxide of iron (iron rust from the drug store,) or let a couple of lath nails be in the water they drink; take away their bath, so that they can't get any drink but their medicine. In another cup immerse a little saffron. The latter gives color to the incoming feathers. The iron braces their system while moulting. In a little while they will sing loud enough to cause a headache.

Major De Forrest a Bureau officer at Greenville, South Carolina, relates that a magic lantern company came there to exhibit "Bunyan's Pilgrims' Progress." They were a rough looking set of muscular Christians and he took them to be 'Plug-Uglies.' In the course of the exhibition, the climax was reached, and they beheld a blue and white Christian meeting three greenish angels. "Here," said the exhibitor, pointing with his stick. "Here you see the three shining ones; as Christian goes up the hill he meets the three shining ones, one of them takes him by the hand and says to him—(What the h—l are you doin' there? This last interrogatory was addressed by the lecturer, in a loud whisper, to the man behind the curtain, who had extinguished the lantern in lighting his cigar.

Wm. Thompson, the well known Arizona and Nevada mining superintendent, writing from London to a friend in San Francisco, says:

"I see many things of a wonderful character in London. One of the most remarkable I have seen came under my observation a few days since. Walking on the street I noticed a man with a small stand and a huge placard inscribed, "Patent Fire Lighters—eight for a penny. They were long, round, fuzzy looking sticks, and after I had passed, it occurred to me that I had seen something like them in America and I went back next day and took another look at them. As I am a sinner, they were American corn-cobs, and nothing else! Some of them were mouldy and that gave them their fuzzy appearance. I think that the English are learning fast, and will soon be as 'cute' as the Yankees. What about pine hams and wooden nutmegs now?"
