CLASH BETWEEN SHEEP OWNERS

Controversy to Secure Valuable
Grazing Land is the Cause.

DIFFICULTY IN WYOMING.

Fraudulent Entries Set Aside and
Property Ordered Thrown Open
Again to the Public.

The controversy between sheep men of Wyoming to secure possession of valuable grazing land in Uinta county, Wyoming, has resulted in a clash between two prominent sheep owners in the land office at Evanston and a contest was filed against eight homestead entries and the entries were set aside as fraudulent and the land in question was ordered thrown open again to the public as grazing ground.

L. A. Marks, of this city, was the contestant in the cases and it was through his efforts that the homesteads were set aside and the land thrown open again. In the pleadings filed in the case, Mr. Marks alleged that all eight of the men were employees of Tim Kinney, the Rock Springs sheep man, and that they made the entries for his benefit and merely for speculative purposes and not for the purpose of establishing a home for the entrymen.

The entries were made in June and July, 1902, and the land comprised two sections in Uinta county. The entrymen are Joe Macell, Antonio Quadros, Fred Cruz, Romila Bachecha, Juan Mascarenas, William Gonzales, Juan Volquez and Thomas Cordova and it is alleged that all of them are shepherders in the employ of Tim Kinney. Only two of the cases were fought out before the receiver and the others went by default.

According to the evidence in the cases Kinney furnished the men with money to make the entries and to build cabins upon them. Although they were taken up for homesteads the evidence disclosed that the land was unfit for habitation or cultivation, being rough, mountainous country, fit only for sheep grazing. It was also shown that no other improvements save the cabins mentioned were ever made upon the ground, and that the only times the men were upon their homesteads were when they happened along grazing Kinney's sheep.

The cabins were built of logs and had no doors or windows and were unfit for habitation. According to the evidence of one of the entrymen he did not know where the land is except as told by Kinney and could not on the witness stand give the township and range in which it is located. Atty. Kinney & Wilson of this city represented Mr. Marks, the contestant, and Judge J. W. Lacey of Cheyenne represented the homesteaders. The evidence in regard to the agreement between Tim Kinney and his men concerning the entry of the land was very strong and the result of the cases was that the homesteads were set aside and the land again thrown open to the public.

Had Kinney been successful in his efforts to hold the eight homesteads he would have been in control of some very valuable grazing land. Before the contests were filed he attempted to exclude other sheep men from the lands and served notice upon some of them to remove their flocks or he would sue them for trespass. It is not believed that the cases have ended yet as the matter has been brought to the attention of the proper officials at Washington who may take some action in regard to investigating from a criminal standpoint the conduct of the parties to the alleged fraudulent entries.

Files Suit Against Chin Chan to Tune
Of $2,500.

The recent troubles in Chinatown during which ex-Mayor Chin Quan Chan charged Ong Yip Sing and two other celestials with threatening to injure him, has cropped out in another form in court. Yip Sing yesterday afternoon filed suit in the district court against Chin to recover damages in the sum of $2,500 for false arrest. It is claimed that the arrest of Yip at the instance of Chan has damaged the former's business and character in the sum stated above. Judgment is also asked for $100 as attorney's fees. After the arrest of the three Chinamen, the matter was settled out of court and Chin had to pay the costs and is now called upon to pay damages for an alleged false arrest.

Eleven-Year-Old Henry E. Wilkinson
Comes to Untimely End.

Henry E. Wilkinson, aged 11, son of Nicholas Wilkinson, a D. & R. G. employee, got into a sand pool near the Jordan river on South Temple street, yesterday afternoon and was drowned. The lad, in company with other boys, had been fishing, and stopped on route homeward, made in the pool. He stepped off a ledge beyond his depth, and encumbered with his clothing, was unable to extricate himself, and sank. The other boys ran for assistance, but it was 25 minutes before it arrived, and when Wilkinson was removed from the pool by Thomas Brown of the water-works department, he was dead.
