CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 15.—The bill to pay discharged clerks in the bureau of printing and engraving an extra month's wages passed the Senate by a vote of 29 to 12.

The bill was passed from its amendment to the House bill providing the necessary means to defray the District of Columbia expenses, and the bill passed as it came from the House.

The Senate insisted on its amendment to the House bill for volunteers to the Indian war. A conference was appointed.

Craig corrected what he called Merriman's gross misstatement that in 1865 the United States had a Confederate force of 100,000 men, and gave from the bill he had, the correct number 62,000.

The amendment to the House bill to encourage and promote telegraphic communication between America and Asia was agreed to,
and the bill passed.

The Chair presented the President's message, returning unapproved the Senate bill for the sale of a portion of the reservation of Confederate soldiers in Missouri Indians and the Sacs and Foxes in Kansas and Nebraska. Also a message stating his conviction, and the further examination of his returning the bill unsigned was premature, and asking its return for signature.

On the question, whether the constitution would allow the return of the bill after the President had voted it. He moved its reference to the select committee on the Indian war, agreed to.

Ingalls argued that the President could not recall a vetoed bill than a signed bill. The motion to order was rejected.

Ingalls argued that the President
order was rejected.

The Chair announced, as the Senate members of the House of Representatives framing the government for the District of Columbia, Windom and Whitely.

On the question, whether the House bill to create an additional land office at Colfax, passed.

Windom called up the House joint resolution providing for the final adjournment, and moved to amend so that the two houses of congress at 7:30 p. m., this day.

The amendment was agreed to, and the resolution as amended adopted.

Windom and McCreary were appointed a committee to join with the committee on the part of the House representatives to wait on the President and notify him that Congress was ready to adjourn.

The House took up the joint resolution providing for the appointment of a commission to inquire into the value of the gold and silver in the treasury, and the cause, etc. He said the Senate committee on finance had proposed amendments to the resolution, but on account of the near close of the session, they did not desire to present them.

Robert Smith
They were willing to have the resolution passed as it came from the House; the resolution was then passed.

The House took up the relief of Mrs. James K. Polk, widow of ex-president Polk, was discussed at some length and passed.

While the committee to wait on the President, reported that he had no further communication for Congress.

The Chair announced as members of the commission on the change in the relative values of gold and silver, Jones, Boutwell, and Bay.

McCreary submitted a resolution thanking the president pro tem, Ferry, for the dignity, justice and impartiality with which he had presided over the session; agreed to unanimously.

At 7:30 President Ferry's gavel fell, and he retired to his private chamber, and the session closed.

By Holman, to guard against monopoly.

Huntton, made a report exonerating the chairmen of that committee, Knott, in connection with the Caldwell telegram. He, at the same time, presented a paper written by Hunt to the effect that, when he stated on the former report being made that there was to be no discussion of it, he had not the authority of Knott for making the statement, nor had Knott any knowledge of that arrangement.

McCreary presented the minority view, namely, that during the closing hours of the session, when there is no time for debate, no reports should be made; that the matter had not been investigated nor any testimony taken, and the report is wholly based on the presumption of the chairman's good faith, and without any basis of fact. The motion was overthrown by Knott's speech, and the evidence alone could determine the motive.

The bill appropriating $30,000 to pay the expenses of the commission to investigate the grade of officers in the army and navy, and the Chair appointed Clymer, Huston and Weiland, of Michigan, on the committee.

The House then took a recess for half an hour awaiting a message from the Senate fixing the hour for final adjournment.

After recess, in the absence of other business, the Speaker announced the commencement of the morning hour, in which Bland's silver bill was taken up.

Bland moved the previous question, and the opponents of the bill opposed motions to consume the hour.

Logan called up the report of the conference committee on the bill to authorize the President to accept of Congress for designated missions.
The employment and as a rule the mission by Congress, to make an appropriation for a specific post has heretofore been accepted as a wish on the part of Congress, which the executive branch of the government respected and complied with. In calling attention to the passage which I have indicated, I assume the intention of the provision is only to exercise the constitutional prerogative of Congress over the expenditures of the Government and to fix a time on which the compensation of certain diplomatic and consular officers shall be placed in the hands of the executive, and not to infringe the prerogative of the executive, which I should be compelled to resist, and my present object is not to discuss or dispute the wisdom of failing to appropriate for the several offices, but to guard against a construction that might possibly be placed in the language used as implying a right in the legislative branch of the diplomatic or consular officers of the Government.

Gov. Hendricks and the striking Braken.

INDIANAPOLIS, 15.—Gov. Hendricks issued a proclamation this morning, reciting that a large body of strikers, formerly employees of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, had banded together to obstruct the traffic on that road in defiance of the law; that the sheriff of Knox County, Ind., had called upon the state for aid, and that, therefore, in the interest of the public welfare, these men should be disbanded; that the railroad company had failed to perform any obligations towards the strikers does not justify such proceedings. In conclusion he calls upon these bands to disperse, and on the officers and citizens to uphold the authority of the law to break up this organization and bring the guilty to punishment.

morning, on the Colorado Central train reached a point about six miles north of Ralston, an obstruction was discovered on the track in the shape of a cross tie, which four masked and armed men, who ordered the passengers to go forward to the baggage car, except Judge Stone,
