JEFF'S OWN STORY OF MUNROE FIGHT

Claims He Let Butte Fighter Stay To Give Crowd Good Show,

DENIES KNOCKDOWN STORY

Figsimmons Corroborates Claims in Every Particular and Wants a Chance at the Miner.

A dispatch from Helena, Mont., has the following to say relative to the fight in Butte between Champion Jeffries and Jack Munroe the Butte miner: Champion Jeffries gives an entirely new version of his sensational four-round encounter in Butte with Jack Munroe. He complains bitterly of his treatment at the hands of a few Butte newspaper correspondents, and says the following is the only authorized version given out by him:

"In the first place, I want to say that the Associated Press report and other sensational stories sent out from Butte that Munroe had me going, and that I was down on one knee are absolutely false. The situation was just this: The first preliminary lasted less than two rounds. In the second affair, Fitzsimmons landed his man in the first round The final bout, scheduled between Fitzsimmons and myself, consumed bout five minutes. Consequently I de ermined, upon entering the ring for my contest with Munroe, to spread it out a little and give the people their money's worth. This was against both Fitzsimmons' and my manager's advice, but I did not want to let the large sudlence go with less than 10 minutes of actual fighting for a whole evening, as many of them had paid as much as

\$5 for a seat. "All I can say for Munroe is that he displayed good generalship in going down for the count at least 12 times during the four rounds. That was all that saved him. I would have put him to sleep in the next round as sure as I stand here. That Munroe realizes this as well as I do, is only too plainly evi-denced by the fact that he failed to how up here, where an offer of \$1,000 awaited him to go four rounds with  $m_{\odot}$  and be on his feet at the end of that time."

Fitzsimmons corroborated Jeffries statement in every particular. "I told Jeffries that it would do his reputation no good to let the man stay four rounds," he said, "and further, that it would please the crowd just as well to see Munroe knocked out in apple-pic order as to let him stay.

Asked if he again intended to meet Jeffries in battle for the championship, Fitzsimmons said: "I cannot state posi-tively, but it is not at all improbable. I am feeling spiendidly, and the notion is apt to strike me at any time to go out for the honor. I know I have a bet-ter chance than anyone else."

Fitzsimmons said he would bet $1,000 that either himself or Jeffries could put Munroe out in two rounds, and he ap-peared particularly displeased at Munpeared particularly displeased at anal-roe's silence, especially after such flat-tering offers had been made. "Why, if he thought he had a chance against either of us," he said, "he would go after that $1,000 like a drowning man after a straw. That is as much as he would make in the mines in a year. He stakes, I think—Porter Ashe's mare was a dozen lengths ahead and going like a scared wolt. a scared wort. "Cotjon was giving Binette twenty-five pounds or so, and I was anxious a bit as I called on him on the back-stretch, for while he began to close the gap, he was not doing it steady enough to suit me, and Binette at the turn for borns of the benefit at the turn for home on the backstretch still led by six lengths if she did a yard. Round to the home stretch I shut up half this gap by going at Cotton with hands and knees, but I don't think a homestreich ever seemed so long to me as it did that

At the last sixteenth I got Cotton up to the mare's tail. But there he hung a bit, and I had to go to the steel and whipeord. I never went through such a hard finish in my life, the immense amount of money at stake not helping my nerves any, and it was only in the very last jump that I got Cotton's head in front. I would have fallen as I got off my horse but for assistance, and as I staggered away I asked Mr. Dwyer not to let me know in future when was riding for such leviathan stake Joe Cotion was never the same horse after the terrible grueling he had to get to winthat money. He won more races but never forgot the strain. He was as game a horse as I ever rode."

Weather Fine but Track Very

Sloppy - Favorite Lost. San Francisco, Dec. 26 .-- The weather at Ingleside today was fine during the greate roart of the time, but the track was very sloppy owing to the heavy rain last night. There were a number of upsets, Larry lit being the only favorite to land. The feature was the six-furlong handicap, for which Sad Sam was a 7to 10 favorite. He led for a time, but stopped, and Beau Ormonde won easily from Irene Lindsay. Sunelto showed sudden improvement and won the last race. As a result of the reversal the judges recommended to the stewards that Sunelto and his trainer, W. Delaney, be suspended pending further investigation. The Pride, who was favorite for the fifth race and made a poor showing, was claimed by T. Weliman, owner of Mo-corito, for $625.

is always curious. I remember Jack Downey was knocked down by Jim Burge, the "Iron Man," one night, and only the gong at the end of the round only the gong at the end of the round saved him from being counted out. As he came to his corner his eyes had a faraway expression. I asked him how he felt.

he reft. "Bully," he replied; "I can lick the whole five of them", "All right, Jack," I told him; "just try and punch the middle one, and then you will be right." Tommy McGovern and Young Corbett in their whirlwind fight at Hart-ford for the championship a year ago didn't talk much, but their words came out as fast as their blows, and they were the quickest I ever saw in any ring. In the first round, in a hot mix-up, a right swing of Young Corbett's landed on McGovern's head and dazed him for perhaps one second. He jumped back, took a deep breath, and rushed in again. "Stung you up some, didn't it?" asked

Young Corbett, with a grin. "Why wouldn't it?" says Terry. "It was with the right."

"Yes, but I'm there with the left, too," said Corbett.

"All right," Terry answers. "I'm there with one, too," Just then he swung his left in a ter-rific hook that caught Young Corbett on the belly and knocked him down on ils knees. When Fitzsimmons and Sharkey fought at Coney Island some time after their battle at San Francisco, the sail or, who had improved a great deal in the meantime, rushed at Fitz, swinging both hands. His left caught Fitz on the jaw and shook him up pretty well. "That's a good one, Tom!" Fitz exlaimed.

"Yes, and here comes another one," said Sharkey: "I'm not so easy as you might think." Tom had the best of the round and kept Fitz on the defensive. As they started back to their corners at the close of the round Fitzsimmons turned and winked and grinned at the sallor. "Just wait till you see me sink the dp," he prophesied. "The ship," of ship," he prophesied. "The ship," of oourse, was the fine, big, full-rigged three-master that Tom had tatooed on his enormous chest. In the next round Fitzsimmons suddenly exclaimed: "'Ere now, Tom: 'ere goes for your Unthinkingly the sailor threw face up his guard to protect his jaw, and just then Fitzsimmons' right. In a fierce uppercut, landed on the keel of that big blue ship like a torpedo. The keel is just about on sharkey's solar plexus. The ship reeled, guivered and slow'y sank to the floor with all on board. Tom was a great rallier, however, and in a few seconds he was up and fighting again. Once more Fitzsimmons told him: "'Ere's one for your face," and as Tom threw his hands up Fitz's fist landed under the ship again and this time poor Tom was down and out. "Oh!" says Fitz, "I meant to say

"Ere's one for the ship." "The most effective conversation, judg-ing by results, that I ever heard in the ring, was between Kid McCoy and Pether Maher in their celebrated fight at Conev Island on New Year's day. They clinched in the second round and Mc-

Coy held Maher's arms so that he could not move. Then he looked him in the eve and smiled his malacious, cold, eneering smile and said:

"Well, you big stiff. I see you are in the newspapers hollering for sympathy because your wife is sick. Well, when get through with you you will want more sympathy than ever." As a matter of fact, Peter's wife was teribly sick at that time. When he heard McCoy's words, the Irishman be-came frantic with resentment and, of

Opponents of the Ministry Declare That it is a Virtual Defeat -An Inglorious Episode.

London, Dec. 27 .- Except by the opponents of the government, who view it as a virtual defeat and as discredit ing the ministry, the latest phase of the Venezuelan trouble has been welcomed very lukewarmly. Arbitration by President Roosevelt has been anticipated as so desirable an issue from a difficult business that his refusal, which is regarded final, has caused keen disappointment.

It is foreseen that, even if satisfac tory conditions for the submission the disputes to The Hague court can be arranged, this method will entail endless and wearisome details with no as-surance that at the end President Castro still will be in power, or Venezuela in the mood to abide by the decision of The Hague. In short, that element o, guarantee which would have accompanied President Roosevelt's ac-ceptance of the office of arbitrator is lacking. At the same time it is readily ad niited that from the American point of view President Roosevelt has acted wisely in declining to act. The only paper which really wel-comes the decision to refer the Vene-zuelan matter to The Hague is the Radical Dally News, which sees a chance of making arbitration once more a reputable theory, paying a tribute to the coolness of President Roosevelt and correct attitude of the United States during this "sorry business." The Dally News says: "The Vene-zuelan crisis has done much to enhance" Mr. Roosevelt's reputation and to bring home to Englishmen the essential friendliness of the American people. The Daily Mall, in a violent attack upon the government, says: "Thus ends perhaps the most inglorious epi-sode in which Great Britain has engag. ed in recent years.

The champion was disappointed over his failure to put Monroe out. He did his very best to deliver a knockout, but the Butte man was not to be so dis-posed of. He was game to the core, and argued every inch with Jeffries. and argued every inch with Jennes. Monroe repeatedly sent his straight left to the champion's face and parred it considerably. Monroe blocked many vicious uppercuts. The Butte man dis-played unexpected cleverness, and al-though he went down several times, it was more through Jeffries' great weight than the punishment inflicted. In the mixups Jeffries did not overlook an opportunity to rough it, but before the third round was reached the smile had disappeared from Jeff and he went in with a determination to do his man up at every punch. Each time Monroe went to his knees he took the count and met all of the big fellow's rushes. It was a fine exhibition and the crowd It was well pleased. A little blood was spilled from Monroe's nose, while Jeff-

FIGHTERS RING TALK.

Referee Charlie White Talks Interestingly About Their Remarks. The following account of sayings of fighters in the ring was written by Charlie White for the New York World, and is about as interesting a story as was ever told concerning the pugs and their doings.

A clever fighter never neglects any legitimate chance to beat his antagonist. The talking that goes on between two mer. to are punching each other in the ring is nearly always done for effect. I uon't suppose that any man in the business would know what you ant if you talked to him about hypnotism by suggestion, and yet that just what any clever man will try to do to his opponent-say something that will make him think he is beaten. I have heard hundreds of amusing dialogues in the ring as I, as referee, stood close to two fellows who were trying to put each other to sleep with their fists. - I can't remember them all of course, but some of them I shall never forget. For example, when Jini Jeffries was defending the champion-ship against Jim Corbett, that night at Coney Island, Corbett flew around the big fellow like a nimble deer hound around a big stag, jabbing and worrying him almost as he pleased. Naturally, if he could make Jeff think that he had him at his mercy, that state of mind would help him to victory; so, after whiring a left hook on the cham-pion's mouth, Corbett laughed and ex-claimed: "Well, Jeff, I taught you all you know out at Carson City, but I kept a few things up my sleeves. I'm going to spring them on you tonight

you fair, didn't 1?" "Well, I don't know," answered Cor-
