

of their children are being sent to school at Fort Lewis, where they are making advancement that is really astonishing to all who see them. Affairs are in excellent condition on the reservation in all respects.

News reached San Francisco yesterday, says the San Francisco Chronicle of November 7, that several scientists are cruising about Cuyler harbor, Isle of San Miguel, to discover how much of the island has gone into the sea. The island is about thirty miles from Santa Barbara, and there were signs of great disturbances there a few months ago during an earthquake. Captain Waters, who owns the island, feared that the landslide consequent on the earthquake had slipped into the Santa Barbara channel. The people who live on San Miguel are at a loss to know whether a few million tons of earth slid from the island into the sea or whether some subterranean upheaval has choked the channel. A sloop is the only available craft at the island now, and a party of experts will soon make soundings to see what Titanic forces have been at work to alarm the inhabitants.

Word comes from San Francisco that there are fears there of another great strike that will eclipse that of 1894, and that it will be inaugurated by the American Railway Union chiefs if the western trunk lines involve themselves in the Northern Pacific embroglio. It is said that the A. R. U. is 150 lodges stronger than when the 1894 strike took place, and is increasing in numbers; also that the railway conductors and engineers are joining, and that Eugene V. Debs is coming to the coast upon his release from Woodstock jail to help the work along. Of the western organization during the past month it is claimed that nine large lodges have been placed in perfect order, one of these being at Ogden and the others along the line west and south. This work has been effected through the instrumentality of James Hogan, of Salt Lake City, who is the western representative of Mr. Debs, and was the Populist nominee for representative to Congress from Utah.

W. B. Curtis, traffic manager of the traffic association, has returned to San Francisco, and has been talking of the Salt Lake conference of trans-Missouri railway men, at which there was a failure to agree upon rates to Utah as between eastern and western roads. Mr. Curtis tells of the conference proceedings as they have been published here, and adds that "the Utah jobbers claim that if San Francisco is allowed to compete for Utah business, their own business interests will be affected, but when you ask them if it is not a fact that Chicago jobbers now control the business of Utah they will tell you that such is a fact. All we ask is that San Francisco be placed in a position to compete with Chicago for Utah business, and I think we will get what we are after. The other lines will have to agree to the proposition." It is also announced that "the Southern Pacific is now preparing to make some sweeping reductions in rates to Ogden. The tariff now in preparation will make the rate on shipments of all items of merchandise from San Francisco to Ogden about 70 per cent of the rate from the Missouri river to Utah points."

OBITUARY NOTES.

ANN KISSELL.

Ann Kissell, born December 24, 1832, at Cranlington, Northumberland, England, died at Winter Quarters, Utah, November 3, 1895. She was married to Walter Donaldson in 1849. They came to America in 1852; lived some time in Maryland, where Mr. Donaldson was killed in the civil war in 1864. She afterwards married John Kissell in 1836. Deceased joined a faction of the church known as the Bickerton organization about thirteen years ago, which church Mr. Kissell joined some five years previous. This was at Little Red Stone, Fayette county, Pa. When they heard the Elders they received them gladly and were afterwards widely known for their hospitality. They were initiated into the true fold about nine years ago in Pennsylvania. They emigrated to Utah in July, 1887, and settled in Richfield, where they lived until last spring when they came to Winter Quarters. Both the old folks were invalids, having had paralytic strokes, the third of which caused the demise of Sister Kissell.

The funeral services were held in the Winter Quarters meeting house at 12 o'clock on the 6th inst, after which the remains were taken to Scofield for interment.

She leaves a husband, three grown children and eleven grandchildren to mourn her loss. She died in full faith of the Gospel. W. H.

WILLIAM F. POLL.

Elder William F. Poll, the notice of whose death appeared in last evening's News, was born in Depham, Norfolk county, England, on June 15, 1824. He became a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1848, having been baptized on the 15th day of December of that year. He left England for Utah in 1853, arriving in Salt Lake City in the month of September of that year. In 1861 he was called on a five years' mission to the southern part of the Territory and settled on the Rio Virgin river. In 1866 he returned to Salt Lake City and settled in the Tenth ward where he resided continuously up to the time of his death. Fifty-three years ago on the 2nd of this month he was married to Charlotte Long, who now survives him.

He was the father of ten children, eight of whom are now living, three sons and five daughters. He also had forty-four grandchildren and was great-grandfather to one child.

Deceased was a kind husband and loving father, and was a faithful and consistent member of the Church, holding at the time of his death the office of High Priest, and for a number of years took a prominent and active part in the affairs of the ward in which he resided. The funeral will be held in the Tenth ward meeting house on Sunday afternoon November 10 h, at 2 o'clock. The body will lie in state from 10 o'clock so as to enable friends and the general public to view the remains. Friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend.

GEORGE B. BAILEY.

George B. Bailey, one of the old and well known residents of Mill Creek, quietly passed from this life at his home Monday, November 4th, at about 9 30 a.m. He had been ailing for about a year past though not entirely confined to his bed till a few weeks since. He was suddenly attacked with the chills while at meeting about thirteen months ago, which complaint brought on the jaundice, of which he died.

Brother Bailey was baptized a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Bath, England, in 1850; emigrated to America in 1853; was a captain of ten in Appleton Harmon's company; was ordained a Teacher in the fall of 1853 in Salt Lake City, where he lived for two years. Himself and family then moved to Mill Creek in the spring of 1855. He was shortly after ordained a member of the Fifth quorum of Seventies and was transferred from this to the Sixty-first quorum of which he was a member when he died. He was the father of twenty-two children, eleven of whom are still living; he was a leader of the choir for many years and clerk of the ward since 1878. He prided himself in keeping his accounts straight and has settled the titling accounts of the ward since the death of Bishop Reuben Miller. He was a lover of history, literature, and flowers; took an active part in the Sunday School for years, and many a bouquet of flowers was cut from his garden to deck the graves of his friends. He acted in the capacity of trustee, watermaster, secretary and general servant of the public; was noted for his honesty and faithfulness to duty, and like many others of his brethren served eleven months' term in the penitentiary. He was full of faith in the Gospel, and died with a glorious hope in the resurrection.

The funeral services were held in the Mill Creek Ward house, conducted by Bishop J. C. Hamilton. The house was filled with his friends and family; and among the speakers were, Bishop Hamilton, U. H. Hill, Jesse Murphy, John Morgan, John Cook, James R. Miller, Jen. Hansen, and Joseph E. Taylor. A large procession followed his remains to the city grave yard where his body was interred. [Com.]
