"MORMON" TEACHINGS AS TO VIOLENCE.

ONCE more an attempt has been mad by our unscrupulous enemies to bring about a collision between the people of I tah and the government of the United States by means of the military. And once again it has failed but the falsehoods that have been sent abroad by the press and the telegraph will be to some extent believed in the world, and the "Mormons" will be viewed as a turbulent set, while the truth is, that everything is as quiet and peaceaful in Utah as self-control and good order can make society anywhere During the Satanic cry for martial law, there has not been the first indication of a riot, and the only person injured is a "Mormon" nightwatchman who was shot in a dark lane by a U.S. deputy marshal with whom he had precousty had some difficulty.

And yet in spite of this quietness and the utter absence of any actual disturbauce, people at a distance have been made to believe that the "Mormon" Church has been counselling violence and that there is danger here to life and property in consequence. And the murderous assault by a "Gentile" on a "Mormon" is actually cited as an attempt at assassination under "orders from the Priesthood!" The people of this Territory have had ample occasion to arouse them into retaliation against their persecutors. and if they were not governed by highexprinciples than their accusers they would long ago have acted as other people would have done, and made it exceedingly uncomfortable for the crawling wretches who have played the spy, the caves-dropper, the informer and the blood-money vampire. Bu they have patiently endured the indig nities heaped upon them, have subm tted to ad local processes served up on them, and a great deal that has been illegal, forme intrusion at unsecurity times into their homes and bed-chamhere, the questioning of their wives and chaldren upon their most private acts, the jibes and sneers and blasphemies of godless and licenthous wretches, whose lives are a libel mem chastity and whose touch is a promutation; and have seen, without resistance, respected and godly men and women sent away to prison among manufactors, on indictments and verdisciplinated by persons some of whom by the basest of crimes And there has not been an overtact committed by them during these provoceto as or any physical resistance resorted to

This forbearance has been the consequence of seif-control, under the positive counsel of their Church leaders, which is according to Church doc trans and discipling. Violence and reterration are continued to house but bearance, returning good for evil, are taught in the standard written authorthes of the Church, and practically by the presiding officers of the Priestdiscourse delivered by President John Taylor, February 1st, 1885, Inwas presched just after the brethren this. Just the same with the present cause of public discussion. It is claimed that the young man who was shot by this same deputy-Marshal was the instigator of the trouble. That he with three other nen waylaid the deputy on his way nome and assaulted him, and that the assailant was shot and his companions fled. There are several improbabilities in this story, and the testimony of the wounded man when he and all around him believed he was dying, flatly contradict this version given by the deputy who did the shooting. And vet this story is given to the country as though it was proven truth, and the 'Mormon' Church again is made responsible for the alleged attack.

There are two conflicting explanations of the affray, and neither has [yet reached the status of a demonstrated fact. But there is one thing as certain as the sun and incontrovertible as the truth of Jehovah; and that is, that if any violence was attempted against the deputy by one man or more, it was in direct violation of the general teachings and special instructions of the 'Mormon' Church and its leaders Those general instructions are to be found in its standard works, and some of the special instructions are quoted in this article. "Vengeance is mine, will repay saith the Lord," is and has been a guide to the Latter-day Saints. Retaliation is foreign to the spirit of the principles they have received. Under the vigor. ous administration to which "Inkbottle" alludes, the suppression of abating them as a nuisance, was made an expensive matter for the city. Protection was given by the Federal court to the women whose houses were raided by the police, and heavy damages were assessed against the minucipality. When the higher courts lo not harmonize with the lower, but the efforts of the lower to suppress vice are counteracted in the higher, by technical rulings which might just as reasonably and legally be construed in favor of the city as against it, what are the police to do, and what can a

'ity Council accomplish? However, a movement has been made in the proper direction, and it is to be hoped that it will be continued. The ombination among the male prostitutes with official help to defeat the city's efforts, ought not to prevail, and cannot, with due diligence and consistent perseverance on the part of the ity authorities.

I have heard it said that one of our former mayors held that houses of prostitution were necessary evils, that the city needed the means and that if would be better to compromise wit this class of people than to fight them. If this be true, it explains the present state of affairs.

But can it be possible that members of this community, when in the capacity of a City Council can for a mocorruption? It almost looks that way, but I do not want to think; so I wish as the one of the present have allowed this evil to grow gradually until it is getting almost beyond control.

But it is never too late to mend, and it has given me some hope for the future, to learn that steps have been taken in the right direction. Straws show from what direction the wind blows. The arrest of Vandercook, Pearson and others for unlawful constitation, not with their wives, but outside "the marriage relation," I have been informed are likely to be followed by a number of others, among them some of our most promi-nent regenerators, and we may expect in a few days some startling revelations. It shows that some
