

HAS THE STATE MADE ITS CASE?

Suspicion That Charge of Bribery Against Sheets Is Not Legally Established.

HAS NOT BEEN CORROBORATED

Testimony of Bell Is Not Enough to Send Former Chief of Police to State Penitentiary.

When court in the Sheets bribery trial resumes Monday morning, the defense will open its arguments for dismissal. The state rested at 3:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Today being Washington's birthday, a legal holiday, a two day adjournment followed the rather unexpected move on the part of the state. That these two days will bear the case discussed pro and con is a foregone conclusion. There will be eight men, however, who will pay no attention to any talk; read no newspapers and permit no discussion in their presence, they are the jurors and keeping their mind entirely clear of Sheets' trial is their duty.

These eight men are alone. One of the 85,000 persons greatly interested in the case in this city alone is a man who has sat through each day's session in the Sheets trial, not because he wants the state to win, nor because he wants the defendant cleared, he is simply interested in the battle.

STATE FELL DOWN.

"No matter what one's belief may be as to the guilt or innocence of the defendant," he says, "it is not to be expected that a verdict of 'guilty' will be brought in. It is even argued by those acquainted with the intricacies of law and modern methods of dispensing justice, which I am not, that the state of the defendant may never be left to the jury at all. On the showing made by the state, rather than showing not made by the state, a great many little points have been brought out more fully than before and these have been well corroborated by evidence heard upon the charge of bribery, has been brought out from one man, only and then left entirely uncorroborated. In other words everything has been proved except the crime charged. Events starting with the meeting of looters and to-be-looted, as typified by the Parrent-Bell-O'Brien gang and the McWhiters, and proceeding right up to the meeting of the chief's office and even covering the next few days have all been described and reduplicated.

But the paying over of money was described by one man and one man alone.

BELL'S TESTIMONY.

"This is the obstacle which, if common belief has the right, will save George Sheets from conviction. Under the indulgent and most fair statutes of Utah a man cannot be convicted upon the uncorroborated testimony of an accomplice and just the minute the jury would say 'guilty' because of St. Claire's story, St. Claire, or Bell, as he is better known, would become an accomplice and the verdict would be rendered absolutely illegal and meaningless. The situation is unique.

EVERYTHING BUT BRIBERY.

"The state built up a splendid case, the very best case possible, many say. It brought out evidence showing every little point of the poker swindle, the take across the street, the chief of police, then George A. Sheets, in his office, the cut of the haul, a matter of $9,000, and over $1,000 was given back to the McWhiters; all these things were made as plain as anything could be. Donaldson, Bell and the two McWhirter boys, each told a story which made the entire narrative clearly defined and convincing. Distorted parties, some friends of Sheets added the ring of truth to the story by their testimony, some of it given reluctantly.

INTERESTING EVIDENCE.

"It would require a lot of time to cover the story as it has been a long one and gone into great detail. Such little incidents as stepping into the Salt Lake House on south Second West in the afternoon to use the telephone as described by Donaldson and Bell and corroborated by Mrs. Verne is an illustration. Another is the visit in the Sun Drug company, where Bell used the phone, speaking in the innumerable, 'to the McWhiters; Chief Sheets' Chief Raleigh, then 'Alexander McWhirter told about this; Bell repeated it and Mr. Anstree, proprietor of the store, told it a third time. 'Alexander McWhirter told about Parrent and Bell and himself standing in the Federal building arguing when a mail carrier came along. McWhirter asked the fellow if the two men with him (McWhiters) were policemen. Parrent wound his hand at the side of his head to indicate McWhirter was crazy. The clever play made his point and laughing the mail carrier passed on, babbling about losing $10,000. Parrent told about this; Bell told it; McWhirter told about this and the state produced the mail man himself. 'Bell told about writing to Sheets

A House Divided Against Itself

Civil War in the Stomach Spells Ruin.

Victory Belongs to You, If You Will—Costs Nothing to Try.

The greatest foe to the progress of nations has been internal strife, civil war. Equally so is the greatest enemy of health in the human system civil war between the different parts of the body.

This is just what occurs in dyspepsia. War is declared between the stomach and the rest of the members of the body—illness results in inability to digest or assimilate food, heaviness, disinclination to work, and in a word, all the attendant evils of imperfect digestion. What you need is an ally. An ally who will not only help but will absolutely insure you the victory. In other words, let Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets fight your battles for you, and by doing the work of your stomach, give it a complete rest, and you will find the system reformed, refreshed, and rejuvenated.

A single one of these marvelous tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food. Leading physicians all over the world have endorsed Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and have certified them free from harmful drugs.

Your Duty is to be Well.

But you cannot be well if you neglect taking Hood's Sarsaparilla when you know you should take it. Impure blood, poor appetite, headache, nervousness, that tired feeling—by these and other signs your system demands Hood's. Get a bottle today.

Cure of Health.—My blood was very poor. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have more color in my face, sleep and eat well, and work with a pleasure. Mrs. A. E. Howard, 1000, Portland, Me.

In Worst Form.—I had catarrh in the worst form and was advised to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I took it and the catarrh was cured. I am now in good health. I hope everyone who has catarrh will give Hood's a fair trial. Mrs. W. H. MacCall, Parkerford, Pa.

Always Praise.—I first took Hood's Sarsaparilla 15 years ago, and always speak in favor of it. H. Cowdell, 237 Perry Street, Lowell, Mass.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold everywhere. In the usual liquid, or in tablet form called Sarsatabs. 100 Doses One Dollar. Prepared only by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

SHEETS' EXPLANATION.

"Sheets and his attorneys continue to explain all this as a conspiracy. To those who point out the improbability of such a conspiracy as this being possible they compliment the mysterious originators of it as men who left no stone loose. The conspiracy talk gets very little credence about town. Even so, it is pointed out, even a trap being laid does not excuse a man for stepping in it. The thing which looms up highest and whose shadow is biggest is the fact that when Bell, a notorious crook, shinner and bunco man, came into the chief's office with a sobbing stranger, Sheets did not hold Bell until the affair had been investigated. A $10,000 robbery is no small matter and this will always be an accusing finger pointing at the former chief."

HE MAY TESTIFY.

Should the court deny the motion to dismiss, the defense will put the defendant on the stand for the first time during any trials or hearings arising from the McWhirter affair. Should a dismissal be granted the cases will again be against former Chief of Detectives George Raleigh. Atty. "Bill" Newton and others charged with being members of the "police-crook" gang will undoubtedly die a quiet death.

An acquittal could come suddenly. Were the court to answer the question, "Has the state shown Sheets' guilt?" in the negative. Under the statutes the court can grant a dismissal under a motion to do so when the evidence has not been sufficient to prove the defendant's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt. The jury would be excused and the decision rendered from the bench. In case of more sudden drop into the hands of the jury to bring in a certain verdict and in cases where doubt exists the jury goes out for deliberation. Which is it this time? or will it be a continuation of the case with the defense in charge?

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater.—The big audience which assembled at the theater last night, without any clearly defined story, was what it was, an entertainment bearing such a non-committal title as "Coming Thru the Rye" was treated to a merry surprise. This came in the form of a sudden drop into the hands of the audience, who actually know the art of legitimate acting, who can sing a patter song with the best of them, dance like an artist, and all of a sudden drop into serious acting and hold his audience with a breathlessness of attention that almost makes the auditor with the music comedy blurt himself. Then, his auditor begins to wonder whether the play is not going to turn out a pathetic melodrama. Mr. Lalor, for he is the merry genius in question—jumps back into slap bang comedy again, and the audience catches its breath and follows him. He was almost the "whole show" last night, and the only regret was that the intervals between his appearances were long. Given a good play, with the humor and the comic blended, something on the lines of the comedies on which Mr. Lalor has mounted, and Mr. Lalor should make a successful actor. The production is a big, lively and jolly one—a music farce, with some things resembling a plot, and with several other men who are capable of without being brilliant. Next to Mr. Lalor, in the eyes of the audience, was Miss Lowe, as Bossy, though she also was kept off the stage too long. The chorus did good work, even though some of the girls had an aspect that spelled Experience. Miss Dunmore had some hearty calls for her big song, though her tone was not so pleasing. The bill goes again this afternoon, and evening, and will draw heavy business.

WATER JACKET EXPLODES

Mrs. Stewart of Logan Horribly Cut And Bruised About Face And Burned.

Logan, Cache Co., Feb. 21.—Through the explosion of gas in a water-jacket attached to a stove, Mrs. Robert Stewart, wife of Prof. Stewart of the Agricultural college, was this morning badly cut about the face and otherwise shaken up. It occurred at breakfast when Mrs. Stewart was the only person in the room at the time. She was knocked the entire length of the room, the panels were knocked out of the door, the stove wrecked, and the other furniture in the room demolished. Mrs. Stewart sustained a heavy blow on the cheek bone, running from the mouth nearly to the eye; the roof of her mouth was torn out with practically all of her teeth. Mr. Stewart immediately came to the aid of his stricken and helpless wife, but before her burning clothes could be taken off her left leg was badly burned. Mrs. Stewart is at a local hospital and is given every attention. Her ultimate recovery is not despaired of. Mrs. Stewart was formerly Miss Jennie Gardner, daughter of Mr. Guss Gardner of this place.

OLD-FASHIONED BALL LAST NIGHT

Historic Rooms of the Old Lion House Scene of Brilliant Gathering.

SOME UNIQUE COSTUMES.

Governor and Staff and Numerous Descendants of the Pioneers of '47 in Attendance.

At 7 o'clock last night the historic rooms of the old Lion House were thrown open, and through its doors a procession of quaint figures passed, which to the uninitiated might have suggested a gathering of shades of denizens from a world a century or half a century ago. They assembled in a room filled with antique relics cherished as priceless heirlooms of the pioneers of '47, a potato hollowed out and filled with grease with a wick in the center to shed its dim light side by side with a brass candlestick which had done service to colonial dames in the time of Washington and a host of other objects which made apt and picturesque setting for the evening scene. Flags and Washington's picture were patriotic emblems blending with the rest.

As the rooms filled, a strange line formed in the big parlor, where President Brigham Young had often presided over occasions of state. A line of uniformed men, Gov. Cutler and his staff, with Col. Plummer and other military dignitaries were formed, followed by the dignitaries of the L. D. S. Church, and then a nondescript file of figures in costumes ranging from the stately colonial garb of George and Martha Washington, to the homespun farmer and his wife, in the homespun and calico that did service for full dress in the pioneer days. Mrs. W. Taylor, who had been in the Nauvoo temple. Old ornaments were used with it and a lace collar also of long ago. Mrs. Bathsheba Smith and Mrs. E. B. Wells were there in appropriate old-fashioned gowns; Mrs. John Winder wore a cap brought over from England over 120 years ago, and as another curiosity of the evening, which was an infant had been found on a door step many years ago.

Mrs. Susan Y. Gates, president of the Daughters, wore an old-fashioned gown of white muslin, and a member of the reception committee, Mrs. H. G. Whitney, Mrs. G. D. Pyper, Mrs. J. D. Spencer and others wore colonial dresses with powdered hair and white berthes, over the regulation old-fashioned skirt. Mrs. Mary Schwartz Smith was one of the quaint figures of the evening in her gown of rare pattern of many years ago, and wore the quaint jewelry of the time.

Mrs. Dorsetta Smith-Kewer wore a gown made in England over 60 years ago with a mauve basque over black velvet, and wonderful collar and headgear. Mrs. Morris B. Young wore a gown once belonging to her aunt, Eliza C. Snow, and which was made of silk, trimmed with hand-made lace presented to her in the centennial year, 1876.

SCOTLAND REPRESENTED.

Mrs. Minnie James Horne was a reproduction of her mother, the late Isabella M. Horne, in gown, cap and shawl which belonged to the latter. One of the most noticeable costumes of the night was that of Mrs. George Margetts in a Scotch costume representing the oldest clan in Scotland. Her shield with its great amber setting was one of the curiosities of the evening and the dress altogether one of the successes of the event.

Mrs. C. S. Wilcox wore a quaint gown and a hand-made white lace shawl, brought over from England 52 years ago, in a sailing vessel and carried in an ox team across the plains.

Mrs. A. W. McCune was there as a Mexican senora in black lace costume and mantilla, and her daughter, Mrs. Ray McCune-Naylor, was a picture in her Spanish mantle brought from Peru, her face framed in a pretty poke bonnet, bright with roses and ribbons.

Miss Annie Lynch, secretary of the Pioneer Daughters, wore one of the notable costumes of the evening, a gown of silk gown of the wonderful construction of 60 years ago, and an antique brooch of Roman mosaic brought to California by the gold seekers of '49. Mrs. Georgia Clawson Foote was one of the prettiest colonial figures there with her silk bodice over flounced white skirt, powdered hair and napes, and many others of like nature were seen, adding to the pictures of the rooms. Two prominent characters were those of Mrs. Lucy Wolstenholme and Mr. Walter Lamoreaux, who went as Quakers; and Mrs. Julia Smith wore a face simile of her wedding dress of 40 years ago; Mrs. Elias Wright wore a "Grecian bend" variety of gown with a sash of long tabs in front and short back, with long earrings and brooch of gold; Miss Rose Young of Ogden wore a dainty daguerreotype in a short polonaise of pale blue over short white skirt; Mrs. John Greenback wore a gown of the early thirties, and her daughter, Mrs. Lou McCune, in a wonderful gown of figured muslin over hoops, which startled the denizens of the streets into awed ejaculations that passed by Mrs. T. F. Horwells wore her wedding gown of 30 years ago, a grey poplin, with folds upon folds making a tunnel like train; a choice representation was that of Mrs. Minnie Pratt, her old-fashioned cap and gown worn many a time in the early fifties by her mother, Mrs. Sarah Rich when she went as a belle to the dances in the social hall.

"AMERICA" ALSO.

One of the brilliant effects of the night was the costume of Miss Alberta Barton, who, dressed in flags and with a tiara of jewels on her forehead, made a beautiful "America." Mrs. James E. Talmage was there as the "grandmother" of her husband, and her costume was the occasion. Mrs. F. S. Lyman's Three visions of loveliness were Miss Ina Smith, Mrs. L. A. Snow and Mrs. Lewis Hills, their faces, framed with coquettish curls or quaint waterfalls and pretty pokes, trimmed with roses and ribbons, shining like stars in the great throng. Rosalia Kimball was there in a gown worn by her mother, Ellen Saunders Kimball, one of the three original pioneer women of Utah.

The two most typical characters of the occasion were Mrs. Myra Y. Rooster and Marlow E. Cummings, who in pioneer "get-up" sent all beholders into convulsions.

NORWEGIAN EFFECTS.

No prettier characters of the evening were seen than those who took part in the Norwegian dances. They included, Misses Eva Jensen, the Misses Lellah and Vera Sjodahl, and others who took part. Mrs. Phoebe Beattie wore an old full skirt and basque, the latter made with breastplate effect; Mrs. J. M. Sjodahl was there in a typical dress of the occasion; Mrs. F. S. Lyman's gown was a wonderful creation of the '30s; Mrs. C. S. Burton wore a pioneer costume with old-fashioned jewelry, and there were others of note so numerous that it would take columns to describe the national and fancy dances were the features of the evening, those taking part being Mr. Andrew Jensen in a native military costume made in Copenhagen, with Mrs. J. S. Jensen; Mr. and Mrs. Larson, Mr. J. S. Jensen and Mrs. J. M. Sjodahl, Miss Lellah Sjodahl and Mrs. W. S. Foster; Miss Vera Sjodahl and Mr. P. W. Madsen; Mrs. Agnes Olson Thomas in her Norwegian costume sang a charming melody, and among the features of the evening were the violin rendition by Prof. George Careless, and another the sailor's hornpipe by Lorin Farr and Mrs. Susan Y. Gates. Last because perhaps first of the evening was a lowe Cummings' dialect recital of pioneer reminiscences, and his song "Daddy, I'm a Mormon." There were, in fact, many things of interest for space in these columns, and the Daughters may congratulate themselves upon having scored another great success.
