

CAMPERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Thrilling Story of Falling Boulder
Crashing Into Arizona Cabin.

ROCK WEIGHED HALF A TON.

Forest Ranger and Assistants Shout to People Below, Who Succeeded in Saving Their Lives.

Graham, (Arizona) Guardian: Forest Ranger Geo. H. Birdno came down from Camp Inception last Sunday and left for the other side of Mt. Graham in company with Acting Supervisor Swift on Monday for the purpose of surveying off some homesteads. They will return tomorrow.

While here Mr. Birdno related an incident that occurred at Camp Inception on Saturday that for a few moments threatened the lives of half the people of the camp. Mr. Birdno and Tom Campbell were working on the trail leading from the camp to the Gibson mill at a point on top of the ridge and about a quarter of a mile from the cabins. They came to a boulder weighing about a ton and had to be top of a smaller one. They knew that when the boulder was moved that it would roll down the mountain side, but they also knew that by starting it right it would go down a small canyon leading away from the camp.

THUNDERING DOWN MOUNTAIN.
The boulder was started with crowbars and went thundering down the mountain side towards the canyon, but just before it passed into the canyon it struck a stump and sprang in two, one half going into the canyon and the other going directly for the cabins. Birdno saw the fate that threatened those below and he and Tom started down the mountain side at top speed, yelling at every step for those at the foot of the mountain to get behind trees. The further it went the greater velocity the boulder gained until when it reached the bottom its speed was something terrible.

FAMILY ESCAPE.
When about half way down the two running men heard a loud crash and the terrified screaming of women and children, there being about a dozen in camp. The boulder had crashed into the cabin occupied by W. N. Beebe's family. Luckily it only struck the corner of the cabin and did little damage. Mrs. Beebe and some of her children were in the cabin at the time. Some of the women and children heard the warning cries from above and sought the best shelter they could. There won't be any more rock rolling near that camp.

HOW JUSTICE IS SERVED IN ARIZONA.

One more celebrated case has gone thundering down the ages. This time it is entitled the people vs. Alfonso Luna. On Tuesday Justice Austin presided at the trial of the man lying in the shade of the old apple tree, contrary to the peace and dignity of the people of the territory. The justice caused a writ to be issued for the arrest of the man. He was arrested by Morgan Merrill and called upon Morgan Merrill to arrest Luna. Morgan, being a good officer, followed the instructions of the justice and gathered in the offending culprit. In due season the prisoner appeared before his honor and demanded a jury trial. Straightway Messrs. Presidential, Clayton, Gillespie, Ten and Wm. Clark, Ross, E. Clark, Gamble, Lynch, Shirley and Ellsworth were empaneled and sat in solemn grandeur on the case. After hearing the evidence for and against the defendant, they returned the following original verdict: "We, the jury, find the prisoner not guilty; and we order that the justice pay the costs of court." Thereupon Judge Austin gave him a notice of appeal to Judge Fonda of

TRUNK MYSTERY SOLVED.

Detectives Called in at Belmont Hotel
Discover a Cheese.

An innocent piece of old cheese packed away in the trunk of a guest at the Belmont hotel caused a great sensation at that place last night and resulted in a hunt-up call being sent to the police station for help from detectives to solve what was supposed to be a foul murder with the victim packed in a trunk and sent to the hotel where it would have remained long enough for the murderer to make good his escape had not the clerk, Ernest Fournier, detected a suspicious odor.

While passing through the hall the clerk scented something that was rather unpleasant to the senses and made a further investigation which disclosed that the odor came from a trunk which had been brought to the hotel during the day by an expressman who said that the owner would arrive during the day. Mr. Fournier made a very close inspection and finally decided that there must be a dead body in the trunk. He then sent a call for the police, which was responded to by two detectives. When they arrived they got one whiff at the trunk and agreed with him that there must be a murder mystery afoot. They at once opened the trunk but instead of finding the remains of some man, woman or child, only found a stale piece of cheese in one corner. The cheese was gently removed from its resting place and thrown into the alley. The trunk lid was closed again and the officers returned to the station.

NEW POLICE POLICY.

Chief McKenzie Meets With Men and Outlines Their Duties.

Chief of Police Roderick McKenzie was introduced to each member of the department yesterday afternoon and made a short address in which he outlined the policy which he proposes to carry out. The meeting took place in Judge Diehl's courtroom just as the 2 o'clock shift was going on duty. Every member of the department, 62 in all, was assembled in the room when the chief was escorted in by Capt. McKeen. chief of police, Mr. Roderick McKenzie. The new chief then made a brief talk to the men who follow in part: "I am glad of the opportunity to say a few words to you. In the first place I want you to show the citizens of Salt Lake that our honorable mayor made no mistake in appointing your humble servant to run this department in a good, clean, business-like manner. I want each one of you to take an interest in your work and your personal appearance, and I do not want ever to hear of any man while on duty going into a saloon to take a drink or at any time while in uniform. I want you to be courteous to everyone asking information. Try and convey the impression to everyone that the Salt Lake police department is composed of as fine a body of men as there is in the United States. I want you to read carefully chapter 29, of the revised ordinances of the city. I want you to enforce the curfew law strictly, you all know what it is, and I do not want you to allow a gathering of men on street corners looking at every woman that passes and making remarks about her. I want you to keep a close watch on the saloons Sunday, any place that you think is doing business report to this office. I want you all to work earnestly and conscientiously. I want peace and harmony to prevail and I wish you all to feel that what I want is a good efficient police force to give the citizens all the protection in our power. I do not want you to arrest every man you see who has a few drinks. I want you to use your judgment and discretion and I want you to be humane. If you see any gambling going on report it at once. Trusting that you will go a long way toward lightening my load, I

DEATH OF PERRY J. ANSON.

Well Known Local Business Man Passes Away Suddenly at Home.

At 5:30 o'clock last evening Perry J. Anson, a well known resident of this city, passed away at his home, 464 Second avenue. The demise came as a complete surprise to the majority of Mr. Anson's friends, as it was not generally known that he was ailing. Mr. Anson first came to Utah in 1871, but subsequently lived for some years in Idaho. There, as here, he was prominent in business and politics. For a time he was register of the Blackfoot land office, under appointment of President Harrison. He returned to Salt Lake in 1886. The immediate family of deceased consists of his wife, who bore her marriage to Mr. Anson in 1872, was Miss Jennie Lyon, three sons and one daughter. The names of the children are: George D., Perry F., James H. and Mrs. J. Fred Daynes. He is survived also by his mother, 84 years old, two brothers and a sister.

Mr. Anson was one of the founders of the music firm of Carstensen & Anson, and his son James is actively connected with that institution. Two years ago the deceased was a candidate for the city council on the "American" ticket.

SAD DEATH.

Passing of Miss Ella Thornberg Severe Blow to Family.

Miss Ella Thornberg died Monday morning at 6 a. m., Aug. 19, 1907, at her home on Fourth East street. She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Thornberg. The deceased has been in poor health for several years, and while her recovery was not looked for, her sudden demise was a surprise to the family and her friends generally. During her illness she has been faithfully cared for by her brothers and sisters. They have devoted themselves to her, and no want or wish of hers has been neglected. Every care and consideration that loving hearts could give, has been rendered to her, and the truth of the remark is evidenced, that, had she been the daughter of a millionaire, she could not have been better cared for. Her sisters, especially, had been mothers to her in every sense of the word, and as she had the misfortune to lose her mother some two years ago, these loving sisters made up to her that loss, and supplied the place of the tender, loving parent, whose heart was always drawn out in sympathy for Ella. The life and character of Ella Thornberg were above reproach. She was devotedly attached to those who so unselfishly ministered to her comfort.

During the last two years she has spent much of the time at their summer home in Parley's canyon, and a visit of weeks and sometimes months had proved beneficial to her and given her new hopes of life, and her friends were encouraged that she would finally overcome the lung trouble that had fastened itself upon her. The murmuring of the stream of water which ran by their door, the song of the wild birds, the perfume of the willows and the wild roses always brought cheer and comfort to her.

About one month ago, however, she asked that she might be brought home to the city residence, and since that time she has grown more feeble and constant revelation of the purity of the heart within. She frequently asked to be prayed for and expressed great faith that her Heavenly Father heard and answered the prayers offered in her behalf. In fact, her faith and trust in God were an example to those who ministered unto her. She has made the record of a pure life. She was registered of those faithful ones who have gone home to the presence of the Father from whence she came. Her beautiful spirit is again associated with her mother, and the scenes of her existence in her heavenly home will be recognized again by her. She will wait the resurrection of the just, and when that glad day comes she will be restored to the arms of those faithful ones who have so tenderly loved her and cared for her here.

Mrs. Booth has a national reputation.

HEALTH IN DEATH VALLEY.

Ideal Climate for Consumptives Said To Exist in "Plague Spot."

A correspondent recently writing from among the fir trees at Borax Smith's farm, Death Valley, 28 feet below sea level, pays the following picturesque tribute to that section, both as a health resort and as to its mineral supply: "I can tell the sick where to get healed and the poor where there is wealth, immeasurable. 'It is all in Death Valley.' 'That place of horror. For all of these years since the first immigrants wandered into its depths and perished, and until the mountains upon its borders could no longer conceal the gold which protruded from the ledges along their sides, avoided by all mankind, has turned out to be the blessed spot of earth for the afflicted. The heretofore hopeless sufferer from tuberculosis may here feel his lungs heal as if by miracle, see his chest expand with all the power of health, even watch the flesh come upon the emaciated body. The dread white plague vanishes as if by magic and ruddy, sunburnt skin replaces the sallow, disease covering, while rich red blood fills the wasted arteries and all the pulsations of life are renewed down in this hole in the earth which is a crucible for the segregation of the pure with its furnace for the destruction of the impure ever burning around it. I saw many examples of its work. There had been no failures. Big, full-chested men, with ideal physiques and the pictures of health, told their stories while reclining beneath the big trees and plucking the delicious fruit. Some of them are doubtless accounted among the dead. They wandered into the country hopeless invalids, and living here nearly 20 years they have found health and life. No wonder they tarry.

"Death Valley proper is about eight miles by 70, though it varies in width, and is about 20 miles in width at the points I have crossed it. It contains about 50 square miles. For all these ages the rains and snows have been beating these mountains down into Death Valley. They are ribbed and girdled with the precious metals. Gold, silver, copper and lead abound here as in no other place on earth. The great quartz rocks, account of their wealth, go on ahead. Down, down, down, they have rolled for centuries and centuries incalculable! The melting snows and rains of winter keep the surface of the basin damp throughout the season. The clay surface of the valley is composed of the highest chemical matter. There is salt, salt, salt, iron—every chemical known to science in one form or another. Vats of vast area have formed at different points which are perfect granaries of chemicals under constant action and going through the processes of natural laws of the elements."

Success in all undertakings depends upon, and cannot be secured without a healthy body and a keen brain, and they cannot be kept healthy and vigorous by drugs, or in any other way than by nature's way, that is, by food.

There is only one

"Road to Wellville"

and along this road only good, pure, properly cooked food is served.

The makers of Grape-Nuts claim, with the best of reasons, that this scientific food is superior to any other for rebuilding the brain and nerve tissues and muscles worn down by modern strenuous life.

"There's a Reason" for this claim. The manufacturers of Grape-Nuts keep in this food the valuable phosphate of potash which unites with albumen and water in the human digestive organs, and directly feeds the delicate brain and nerve centres.

White bread lacks this important element, for the phosphate of potash is in the brown cells of the wheat berry, and the white flour miller must throw it out, because it will not make white bread. Then, too, all the starch in Grape-Nuts is changed in its manufacture to a form of sugar, which is very easy of digestion.

This delicious food needs no cooking. It is ready for instant use, and makes a crisp, toothsome dish of decidedly unique flavour.

It possesses high value as a strength-making food, welcome alike to athlete, brain-worker, and invalid.
