It can scarcely be said of "The Bad .- To-day we received a call Women of Mormondom," that it is from Brother E. R. Young, just in in any sense a biographical work, from Wanship, Summit County. We learn from him that, at that but rather an historical drama, the scenes of which incorporate much place, myriads of grasshoppers came of the wondrous story of the rise down upon the fields on Sunday, and progress of "Mormonism," and commenced devouring crops of all kinds, and were still laboring while the action brings prominently to light the matchless faith and hard at the work of destruction when Brother Young left, yesterheroism of the "Mormon" women. day morning. .Railroad.--The extension on the west end of the Utah Western Railroad is progressing rapidly. A distance of over four miles is completed, and some time next week the point selected for the Tooele City station, about three miles distant from that town, will be reached. It is expected that the whole thirteen miles of the extension, to the point near Stockton, where the tunnelling will have to be done, will be completed next menth. At the latter point a tramway company, organized a short time since, is constructing a two-foot gauge line between there and the mines in Dry Cafion, to meet with the Utah Western. A length of several miles of the tramway has already been constructed, and the whole will probably be done by the time the U. W. reaches the con-

With admirable tact, in the opening chapter, the author establishes the high character of the early "Mormon" women, by showing their direct descent from the Puritans of New England; and points to the significant fact that "they were not as sinners converted to Christianity, but as disciples who had been waiting for the 'fulness' of the everlasting gospel." Commenting upon the fact that Mormonism from the start seemed to be ancient rather than modern in its tones and methods, Mr. Tullidge boldly takes the position that its manifestation in this age is a culmination of preceding influences. He says--
