Park. He stated that the properties of mind do not appeal to the senses. Life and sensibility may exist in unor-organized matter, in which is induca-ted the three powers of the mind : in-telligence, smotion and volition. Dif-ferentiation is the arrangement of matter to effect a certain purpose. We had the three essential properties of the mind manifested in a bit of un-organized protoplasm. This is where all animal organization originates. Life is the cause of organization and not organization the cause of life. This protoplasm is all one thing. Finally there appears in the protoplasm a little spot, then a seeming bitster or bulb, finally there appears do the first one will divide, thus forming new ones all the time. These cells arrange them-ship way. The most important of our organs are the senses and these have been formed from the protoplasm and this way. The competitors appeared on the stage about half past nine. They were dressed in tights, and both showed splendid muscular development. They are about the same weight, but the Park City man is much the taller of the two, and longer limbed. He seemed also to be in better trained condition than the other. What Cudihee lacked comparatively in length of limb a somewhat in weight was more than made up in a more highly developed muscularity, giving him the advantage in native strength. Frank Smith acted as referee, and he almed to decide with fairness. In each bout three joints were necessary to constitute a fall-the simultaneo contact with the floor of two shoulders and a hip or two hips and a shoulder. After several tremendous struggles n the collar and elbow contest, th fall was awarded to McMillan in 19 minutes. The catch-as-catch-can was one of the most interesting of the five. A favorite grip of Cudihee's was a peculist one, and apparently quite write them. This leads to composi-tion. The institute was then favored with a song by Prof. Evan Stephens. Elementary Language was treated on by Miss Mabel Tounk, who said we must have language to express our thoughts. When the teacher comes before his school it is essential that he should use good language. Before entering school many pupils have acquired incorrect forms of speech. The teacher's work then com-mences with correcting the bad habits of the child, the best way to do this is shy the use of objects. The children should tell what they know about the object before them, and if they make mistakes, these should be corrected guietly and kindly. with all his might to turn the other on his back, the Salt Lake man would pass his arm under that of his oppo-nent, then over the back of the latter's neck and reach the other arm and seize it with a vise-like grip. Cudlhee, after a great deal of hard work, won the fall-in 26 minutes. This caused McMillan to lose his temper and consequently the sympathy of the audience. On the other hand, the comparative modesty and equani-mity of demeanor exhibited by Cudlhee made him the general favorite. The Graco-Roman contest—the most pic-turesque of all—was won by McMillan in four minutes. The Cornish compe-tition was won in splendid style in five matures, by Cudihee. In this mode of weating the contestants wears loose anavas jacket, by means of which each seizes the other by the collar. The win-ser by a sudden and agile move-
