FLEETING FRAGMENTS.

High Council meeting to-night.

The city has been alive with the people of people from the country, who are in town to see the

The cattle disease, has made its appearance in Beaver, One of Mr. French's leading calves died of it this morning. When first noticed it was running and jumping around the corral, and then commenced coughing and finally fell down and

LOCAL AND OTHER MATTERS.

Commutation.—Governor Murray having taken official action on the petition to have the death sentence commuted in the case of George Callie, the same was commuted to life imprisonment.

The Cavalcade.—The grand cavalcade of the Robinson show, which was witnessed by large crowds of people, is today a brilliant spectacle. The coaches are numerous, and the band carriages are very gorgeous. The large lion on the float, which is the attraction, while the three elephants, and the camels excited a large share of juvenile wonder. The cavalcade was very Clanricarde.—About two weeks ago we published a communique of the death of this distinguished gentleman, based on an account of his death which had been received from his relatives in Ireland. Our correspondent is pleased to find, on examining New York papers, that the death of this gentleman was not as was at first reported, but that he is still alive, and is expected to return to his home in Ireland.

Hospital Dedication.—The ceremony of dedicating the new hospital by the First Presbyterian Church of Salt Lake City, will take place on Friday, July 17, at 10 o'clock. The church is hereby invited to the dedication of this new hospital, which is the gift of the city of Salt Lake City, and is the first of the kind in the West.

E. B. WELLS, Secretary.

Body Found.—A dispatch from Salt Lake City, dated July 13, 1892, states that the body of a man, killed by a snow slide in the Cottonwood, the 25th of May, was found today by John W. Greaves. The body is in a fair state of preservation. Mr. Greaves, at the time of the snow slide, was walking up the mountain, when the snow slide came down, and he was buried under it. A search was made for the body for a long time, but the labor was fruitless, and it was abandoned. The body was found by Mr. Greaves, who is a miner, and he is now in possession of the body. The body was found in a cave, and it was found in a position which indicates that the man was killed by the snow slide.

Outragious Conduct.—The only man in Utah who was anything of a character connected with the Robinson show, was yesterday a small knot of men who were in the show, and who were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner.

West Do.—A number of the men who were in the show, were yesterday in the show, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner.

The Park City Mystery.—John and Matthew Kennedy, brothers of Park City, were yesterday in the show, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner.

Home to War.—Mr. P. H. Robinson, who was yesterday in the show, was yesterday in the show, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner. They were acting in a very outrageous manner, and they were acting in a very outrageous manner.

THE ROBINSON SHOW.

This morning we took a glance through the menagerie department of John Robinson's great show, which we esteem to be one of the principal features of such institutions, because it is a source of instruction to the young. The specimens are most excellent. Near the entrance the elephants are located, and these mammoth creatures are the first that attract the attention of the spectator. The biggest of the trio is "Chief," a vicious fellow who has killed or injured several men in his time. He is adorned with unusually large tusks.

A singular looking animal of the hog species, called the Tapir, with flexible elongated snout takes the fancy of many people. The Rhinoceros is the largest specimen ever exhibited here. We examined his flaps and ceased to wonder that his hide was impervious to a rifle bullet. This fellow cost $10,000. His horn has been sawed off several times to keep him from battering out the top of his den.

The three giraffes, which cost $20,000, are in fine condition, sleek and fat, and stalk about with a sort of pensive air and look truly aesthetic. There is a Yak of Barbara in the collection, and a fine specimen of the Brazilian Tiger, similar in appearance to the Leopard.

The lions, three in number, are always interesting. These specimens are African, and, being at rest, were devoid of any appearance of ferocity, looking rather self-satisfied and benevolent than otherwise. The zebra, or as some of the country boys call him, "painted mule," is a vicious brute, having bit a piece from the finger of a hand that was incautiously thrust through the bars the other day. The albino deer, a consumptive-looking, attenuated little chap, with pink eyes, is something new here, no specimen of the kind ever having been before exhibited in Utah.

The kangaroo, white pea fowls, leopard, sacred cow, sea lion, are all interesting in their way, but among the most striking curiosities are the vipers, or blood-suckers, which look like enormous bats. Their constant position is to hang suspended from the top of their little prison by their feet, heads down, partially wrapped in their large wings. The Gila, or horned horse, is also a curiosity. This is a restless, untamable animal. He broke his leg some time since, and recovered, but lately he broke his hip, and will probably not long survive this last injury. Three ferocious-looking hyenas look surly through the bars of one of the cages.

The four-horned sheep with enormous tail, is a decided novelty, and the water buffalo, from Africa, is something new to Salt Lake sightseers. Out of ten camels that belonged to the show, only two specimens are left.

We might enumerate further, but space will not permit. The cars are uncommonly neat. Instead of the representations of zoological specimens being merely painted on the outside; they are raised, being carved from solid wood.

The outside conveniences of the show, including the restaurant, where the people are boarded, the stabling, barber shop, and other attachments are very complete.

We were conducted through the great canvas by Mr. John Lowlow, the noted clown, who has been twenty-nine years connected with the show business, never having, in that time made a single performance.

Over four thousand people at the least calculation were in the immense tents this afternoon to see the menagerie and the circus. The performance opened with a grand tournament march, headed by a brass band in splendid uniform, led by a lady with a cornet. Knights and ladies followed, gaily and tastefully caparisoned, little bits of jockeys on Shelland ponies, masked riders, elephants, camels, etc., brought up the rear. Then came the usual horse-riding with banners, papered horse, etc., only there was a double ring performance going on in each, simultaneously, giving spectators all they could do to keep up with them. Mr. Lowlow, appeared as clown and made an excellent funny man. His elocution is unexceptionable and he is actually has a repertoire of new jokes as well as some old ones.

The performing elephants were huge in size and trained antics; sword-swallowing and barrel turning, monkeys on dogs, dogs on horses, dogs on goats, performing dogs, under Prof. Hamel; a new trick with double ladders by three agile performers, triple tumbling in the other ring; trapeze performance with many novelties, followed each other in quick succession. Then came a brief and pointed speech from old Dan Rice, the veteran showman, and Stehney and Holland, the famous rival bare-knuckle fighters, performed at the same time, when we had to leave, having seen less than half the entertainment.

To-night the tent will be crowded. The electric light will shine on the show. Tickets will only be sold for the number that can be seated. About six thousand can get in and see the circus. Go early. At 7 o'clock the animals will be shown and then follows the circus, which we think will please all who attend. It is a good show, conducted by gentlemen.

A JOURNALISTIC ENTERPRISE.

A COMPANY FORMED FOR THE PUBLICATION OF A NEW PAPER AT LOGAN.

A company, to be known as the Utah Journal Printing and Publishing Company, has been formed and will shortly be incorporated in Logan, for the purpose of publishing a newspaper to be called the Utah Journal, and for the carrying on of a general printing and publishing business.

The capital stock has been placed at $10,000. A power press, with a large quantity of type and other printing materials have been ordered, and a transfer to the company, of the printing establishment, patronage, etc., of the Logan Leader, has been effected.

The officers of the new company are: President, Moses Thatcher; Vice-President, Wm. B. Preston; Secretary, John T. Caine, Jr.; Treasurer, E. A. Stratford. The board of directors consists of Moses Thatcher, John T. Caine, Jr., E. Burnett, B. F. Cummings, Jr., and John P. Smith.

In obtaining the services of Mr. G. Burnett, the company is fortunate, as he is not only a good printer but an experienced newspaper man in literary as well as mechanical work. The Utah Journal will be a semi-weekly newspaper of four columns, published in time it will be independent, vigorous and progressive, and earnestly devoted to the advocacy of the rights, liberties and interest of the masses of the people of Utah.

The presiding and other officers of the company furnish occasional contributions in the form of editorials and other articles. The first number of the new paper will appear as soon as the press, which is daily expected, has arrived and been set up. The first issue will consist of an edition of 5,000 copies to be sent to subscribers and judiciously distributed throughout Utah and in adjoining Territories. A large subscription list has already been secured, and Mr. B. F. Cummings, Jr., is now in this city, securing subscribers, and soliciting advertisements from business men.

The new paper begins life with a management, and under auspices that preface a rapid and vigorous growth, and we shall look to see the Journal become a potent influence for good among the people of Utah, and elsewhere, as it is the design to give the paper an immediate circulation throughout this and adjoining territories, as well as in the East and West.

From Cincinnati.—To-day we had a pleasant visit from Mr. T. G. Woodmansey, who is connected with the firm of Wm. B. Rorer & Co., manufacturers of the celebrated Champion Monitor Cook Stove. This enterprising firm lost their entire buildings by fire a year ago, but we learn from Mr. W. that they have just completed and moved into their new mammoth works, and are better prepared than ever to supply the increasing demand for the "Monitor," as well as the other varieties of stoves they manufacture.

Among the many new designs of heating stoves we noticed specially the following:

The "Ivy" High Art and Low Feed, being the most exquisite cabinet self-fed base-heating stove we have ever seen. Its trimmings are French tile, bronze and nickel.

The "Lily" Open Front Parlor Stove, is among the aesthetes, the castings being covered with engraved flowers, the most prominent of which are sunflowers. This will be one of the leading "open parlors" for this season.

The "Windsor" Cottage Parlor, with Majolica Urn, is a beauty. The Urn can be used in summer for a flower vase, and will be an ornament to any mantle.

Then there were the "Pearl," "Charm," "Daisy," and a number of other patterns, all of which are new for this season, and will be sold by Z. C. M. I.

Mr. W. informs us that his sales in New Mexico and Colorado while on his trip far exceeds those of any of his former ones, indicating the growing popularity of the stoves. His prospects are equally flattering in this Territory. He will be in town for a few days and is staying at the Continental.
