

that they would feel lonely and have none to visit except their few immediate neighbors; but now the settlements of the Saints north and south, east and west cannot be visited in one season. This is demonstration of their progress in numbers, influence and importance. After administering reproofs to the dishonest, and pointing out the way to increase in godliness, he assured the people that if they would continue faithful and hearken to the counsels of the Lord, He would sustain and preserve them and bear off His kingdom triumphantly. He alluded to the recent trip north, expressing how pleasing it was to behold the multitudes of bright, clean, intelligent-looking and happy children whom they saw by the way, and the gratification afforded by the spontaneous and warm-hearted manner in which they were received by the Saints in the various settlements, who left their labor, their irrigating, and the crops which seemed to require their care, to meet the brethren and listen to the teachings and instructions imparted.

BACK AGAIN.—Presidents Young, Kimball and company returned to the city on Friday afternoon, about five o'clock, after an exceedingly pleasant and profitable trip through the various settlements to Logan, Cache Valley, as will be seen by perusing the report. An escort of the Davis county cavalry accompanied the party from Farmington, bearing the National Flag, and a band of music with a number of our citizens on horseback and in carriages met the President and party and accompanied them into the city, the band playing lively music by the way. We were gratified to see the good feelings manifested on the occasion.

ENTRANCE to the Bowery and Tabernacle is again by the SOUTH gate, the east gate being locked each Sunday, as formerly.

"BY TELEGRAPH" has become a long-time obsolete heading to the columns devoted to news by the wire, so much so that "Latest from Exchanges," poorly as the Eastern mails are carried, has got over a week (in States dates) ahead of the lightning. Is not this rather derogatory to the claims and professions of a "fast age"? How happens it that this season the wire is down east more than twice as long as ever before, and the arrival of Eastern mail matter is only a semi-occasional rarity?

THUNDER STORM.—A thunder storm, accompanied with very vivid lightning and a little rain, passed over the city on Monday night. Enough rain fell to cool the leaves and give a freshened tinge to the drooping foliage.

CORPORATION SCRIP.—To facilitate business in the present scarcity of currency, the Corporation has commendably issued a quantity of scrip, consisting of 25c's., 50c's., $1 and $2 bills, bearing date 9th inst. The issue is very neatly got up, convenient for circulation, and we hope will accomplish the object in view.

GREEN CORN.—The best method we know of, that is within the reach of all, for preserving green corn for winter use, is to boil it as for eating, cut it from the cob and spread and dry it thoroughly, when it can be put in sacks or boxes and kept indefinitely.

THEATRICAL.—The pieces announced for Saturday evening were withdrawn, an engagement having been made by the Management with Mrs. Julia Dean Hayne and the Potter troupe.

This lady made her first appearance here on Friday night, as Camille, in the Drama of that title, and fully justified the encomiums which had preceded her. Camille is a most difficult character to delineate—one of the most difficult to properly and truthfully render which we have seen played. Thrown, by circumstances, into a moral maelstrom, with strong feeling and deep latent passion, the force of which she is now fully cognizant of herself, she assumes a reckless gaiety and throws around her a grace, abandon and sparkling wit which make her the cynosure of attraction in a circle where every attractive art is successfully employed. Dissipation has shattered her constitution; in the moral miasma which has surrounded her she has learned to despise humanity, and laughs at the idea of a sincere passion. To follow her through the shifting scenes of a brief but chequered existence, when the artificial crust which surrounds her is broken, to watch her newly-awakened hopes and joys, to mark the anguish and despair with which she learns she must cast them from her, the terrible struggle between what she considers duty and the intense love that has grown up within her, the bitterness of feeling with which she renders herself despicable in the eyes of Armand Duvall and returns to her former course and associates to prove her love for him, to describe her last moments, when slowly, surely dying she yearns for his return, and at last dies in the arms of him who learns too late what she has done and endured for him, would be to trace the entire plot and action of the piece. Mrs. Hayne was the artistic and living embodiment of the character throughout. She possesses a fine figure, a capital voice, under complete control, and expressive features which she employs with consummate effect. Her scene with Duvall, senior, that with Armand in the 4th act, and the dying scene were vividly, terribly real and natural. The unutterable woe which every lineament bespoke, when the old man conjured her to part from his son for ever, needed no language to tell the crowding emotions within; the expressions of crushed and lacerated, agonizing feelings, when that son heaped her supposed faithlessness upon her, displayed the artist's power.

Mr. Waldron, albeit an intonation at times which sounds like the conventicle, and a rather disagreeable habit of rushing parts of his sentences, is a clever actor with many fine points—a deep and powerful voice, a fine figure and a very good walk. He sustains the leading actress admirably. The rest of the troupe manifest the average ability of a provincial stock company: each undoubtedly will show to better advantage in some characters in which they may be cast than in others.

On Saturday night The Stranger and the Jealous Wife were performed to a very crowded house. Mrs. Hayne's Mrs. Haller was tearfully and truthfully pathetic; her Mrs. Oakley was a fine picture of a jealous, narrow-minded woman, full of whims, caprices, fits and follies; yet consistency called for less of true feeling at the close, or the display of more throughout the piece. Mr. Waldron looked the Stranger admirably, and played the character with considerable effect.

Griseldis, to which might be added the subtitle of the Curse of Pride, was presented on Monday night. In the drama the plot is meagre, and the situations far-fetched; but the language is very good in places and the character of Griseldis is finely drawn. Mrs. Hayne's rendition of it was exceedingly good. No longer Camille or Mrs. Haller, she was the living representative of a poetical creation, yet one endowed with the purest feelings that can swell a woman's bosom. The character of the "collier's daughter" with a great love for her husband, which neither bereavement of child, repudiation by that husband at his King's supposed decree, nor threatened death could dim, whose trials, sufferings and virtues culminated when, finding that love had been sported with, and unable to take it back, her true heart broke at the unworthiness of the object of her love, is one that affords great scope for artistic, natural and pathetic acting. The highest encomium we can pay Mrs. Hayne is to say she was the character. The lady was called before the curtain, each night, by the audience.

The Fool of the Family, on Monday night, gave Mrs. Leslie opportunity to display considerable comic ability. This lady sang very well between the pieces on Saturday and Monday evenings, receiving an encore each night. Miss Douglass is a very pleasing actress, and acquitted herself admirably in the characters cast to her.

To-night The Hunchback, with Mrs. Hayne as Julia, and the Dumb Belle, are on the bill, and will doubtless draw another crowded house.

We would suggest that if the bad taste of a few boys leads them to indulge in hooting, whistling and stamping, the better taste of their immediate neighbors will induce them to point out the offenders to the door-keepers or police, that the growing nuisance may be abated.

POLICE REPORT.—One M. Palmer was arrested last week, for stealing an ox belonging to — Powel, of Lehi, admitted the theft and was bound over by Justice Clinton in $500 to appear before the Probate Court.

On the 10th inst., an emigrant named L. B. Vall, having indulged in selling liquor without license, was fined in $100 as a reminder that Municipal authority exists and will be enforced.

RANSOHOFF & Co. have received a heavy addition to their already large stock of goods, which now comprises a great assortment in kind and quality to meet the wants of the community, with still more coming. Cellar, store and wholesale department look crowded enough now, but to accommodate the 66 wagon loads on the way they are having an additional 40 feet added to their store in the rear. A glance at their stock, with a comparison between the rates at which they made purchases and subsequent eastern prices, place us in a position to say that they ought to be able to sell at fairly reasonable rates. Read their advertisement.

AMERICAN FARM.—Bishop Harrington dropped into our sanctum last Friday, and reported very favorably of that flourishing little settlement. The recent rains have done a great amount of good to the growing crops; the hay and grain look splendid. Harvesting has commenced and is progressing rapidly, with the aid of mowers and a reaping-machine owned by W. Chipman. The bishop speaks highly of the condition of the people, religiously, morally and in a sanitary point of view. Their Sabbath and day schools are flourishing. The election passed off quietly as usual, though quite a heavy vote was cast for the size of the city: the People's Ticket was unanimously sustained.

BEAR LAKE VALLEY.—Elder C. C. Rich called in to see us on Monday afternoon, when starting back from his brief visit to the city having arrived on the previous Friday in Pres. Young's company. Br. Rich looks well and hearty, and seems to enjoy life in the north. He reports the health of the people in Bear Lake Valley as generally very good. There as well as here they have had considerable rain the present season, and prospects are very favorable for the coming harvest. Peas were pulled early in July, and towards the close of the month beans and splendid new potatoes were being enjoyed. They had a light frost on the 30th ult., but it did not do any considerable damage.

BRING THEM ON.—Now, or soon after, is the time to bring on that hay, wood and other articles "too numerous to mention."

THE Index, the Confederate organ in London, has suspended publication.

THE Custom House at Mobile was formally opened for business, July 1st., by R. V. Montague, the new collector.

A DESPATCH from Des Moines, Iowa, June 22d, says that the recent rain raised the Lower Des Moines River tremendously. The town of Eddysville, in Wapello County, was inundated. A hundred families were compelled to move out from their houses and establish themselves on dry land. The bridge across the river at Eddysville is a wreck, sixty feet of it having been washed away. A vast amount of fencing has been destroyed, and hundreds of fields, which produced an abundant harvest of wheat and corn, have been made desolate.

A tornado passed through Monroe, Jasper County, during the storm, unroofing houses and uprooting trees in that vicinity.

THE Chicago papers are complaining of the plague of rats.

A DISASTROUS hail storm passed over Durham, Maine, July 8, striking across into Lisbon and other towns, and covering the ground for more than an inch in depth. Growing crops were levelled, corn destroyed and much damage done to fruit trees. The hailstones fell in sheets—some of them as large as hen's eggs.

THE fruit prospects in Ohio were never worse. The peach orchards are barren, while the grapes are all disappearing under the effects of mildew and rot.

NINETEEN Japanese youths have arrived in England to be educated as physicians, engineers, &c. The ages of these youths appear to range from about fourteen to twenty. They are fine stalwart and intelligent fellows, and all dressed in English costume. Most of them can speak a little English. As soon as they landed at Southampton they paid a visit to the shops and streets in the town.

THE Lake Superior region, in Michigan, was visited July 5th, by a very heavy rain, which resulted on the following day in the greatest freshet which has ever been known in that section. Many buildings were swept away and much property was destroyed.

FOREIGN NEWS.

FRANCE.

The Paris Patrie, July 4th, says: "We are enabled to state that France and England, acting with a view to the preservation of peace and general conciliation, have come to an agreement upon the principal questions which may result from the present state of American affairs."

The session of the Corps Legislatif closed on the 4th. The Vice President, M. Schroeder, in his farewell address to the house, said they would probably reassemble early in January next. He pointed out the importance of the matters discussed during the present session, and the liberty of the debates, "in which," he added, "political controversies have largely entered. Far be it from me to complain of this, since these controversies respond to that which occupies the public mind, and enlightens the nation. They cannot but strengthen a government such as that of the Emperor."

ENGLAND.

The Queen's speech was delivered by commission. It rejoices at the termination of the civil war in America, and trusts that the evil caused by the long conflict may be repaired, and prosperity restored in the States which have suffered from the contest. She regrets that the confederation scheme in British America was not carried out, believing that it would give the provinces additional strength and lead to many improvements. She expresses gratification at the assurances of devoted loyalty from the provinces.

In the House of Lords, on the 5th, the Lord Chancellor announced his resignation in an appropriate valedictory address. He stated that he had repeatedly expressed his desire to resign in consequence of the unjust charges which have been brought against him, but that Lord Palmerston and his colleagues had dissuaded him from doing so. He would say nothing in regard to the vote of the House of Commons further than that he bowed to it, and hoped that in time a more favorable feeling would be entertained towards him. The address was marked by feeling and good taste, and was received with respect and sympathy by the House.

Parliament was prorogued on the 6th, and the dissolution follows immediately after. The new elections would probably take place on the 11th and 12th of July.

The steamer Caroline with the shore end of the Atlantic Cable sailed from London for Valencia, July 5th, and the steamer Hawk left on the 7th, to assist in laying it. The war steamers Terrible and Sphinx had both sailed for Valencia, and the Great Eastern would leave the Nore for the same place on the 15th. It was expected the fleet would leave Valencia July 19th, and arrive at Heart's Content in the beginning of August. Messages are constantly sent through the whole cable in the most perfect manner.

The election in London was fixed for the 10th of July, and in the provinces on the next and the following day. Lord Palmerston had issued an address, again soliciting the votes of his constituents at Tiverton. He lays his claims upon the events of the past, making no promises for the future, and is altogether silent on the question of reform.

The appointment of Lord Cranworth as successor of Lord Chancellor Westbury, is confirmed.
