The arguments were closed by Powers, Houston followed, then Bryan and West. Powers replied, also Kinnel, Taaffe and Edwards. Powers' speech was anti-Mormon, the other Liberal's the same. Hawaiian Association.

Well we enter Canada or Hawaii first? It may be Hawaii, for a Prince Edward Island citizen who has just returned from Honolulu predicts that, unless present signs fail, in less than a year the Sandwich Islands will have the stars and stripes waving over them. The Islands are ripe for a change of government, he said. The gentle is lazing away. Many tourists are anxious to see the Americans of any body else on the thing seems written in the book of destiny.

The Islands which would thus come into possession of the United States cover about 5,000 square miles of land, much of it tidal sand, so that it would not be of particular use to American farmers. The business advantages from a strategic and commercial standpoint, however, which would accrue to us by this annexation cannot be overestimated. The group of Islands constituting the Hawaiian archipelago is situated in the direct track of trade between the United States and both China and Australia. They are about one-fourth of the distance from San Francisco to Australia. Ships from both China and Australia touch always at Honolulu, the Sandwich Islands except. To enter these Islands, provided always that we wish to do so, would give the United States a power and prestige in the Pacific Ocean that would render us invincible. If we did not get Hawaii some European power will, Germany is trying for it now.

Preparations to Celebrate the Nation's Patriotic Day—Issues of Press.

Wednesday, June 22, 1892.

The warm weather does not agree with President A.O. Smith. For days he has spent less time in his office, and his sufferings more or less from general debility. It will be remembered that last summer he was seriously ill, and with the approach of this season there seems to be a return of the old symptoms. With a view to avoiding the hot days and a spell of leisure, he, in company with a few members of his family, will leave for Scotland in a day or two, and if he can experience any improvement will undoubtedly spend the greater portion of the summer at that mountain resort, business care, together with the responsibilities of public life, are the causes.

Yesterday was the closing day of the Methodist conference. At the final meeting resolutions were adopted calling attention to the religious condition of the Territories, and making stronger support for higher grade schools. They spoke of highly encouraging conditions in the church, and mentioned important things, that it is no easy task for any man to be wholly self-sufficient, and concluded: "We should not be too hasty in our judgment of the character and attainments of the church and administration for the construction and execution. The support in many respects was excellent, in others, however, was not so good." Mr. Mansfield had the opportunity to hear, which accounts for his presence in the legitimate drama. Mr. Mansfield perhaps stands today without a rival. While we question the name of his election, his impersonation of the old school teacher, and the like, is excellent, and the audience gave him a standing ovation.

A satisfied audience only greeted

Mr. Mansfield at his opening performance, due chiefly to the warmth of the weather, advanced prices, and the play having been seen here before. Of the piece itself little need be said, having been made profitable production for years. It is the accepted French school, crisp and intense, but hedgehoggy. It gives Mr. Mansfield the opportunity to hear, which accounts for his presence in the legitimate drama. Mr. Mansfield perhaps stands today without a rival.
