

Educational

UNIVERSITY.

The library has been placed in first class order and the collegiate students are now busy using the books. The room itself is very large and is extremely well lighted. New shelves have been added to the old ones and on these will be placed the government documents and reports. A large number of new volumes will be added to the library during the present year. The library of American history and literature will be very much enlarged through the special gift of Dr. Park.

The electric motor for the running of the printing press in the training school has arrived. The supervisor of science, Mr. Cummings, will continue to print the outlines for science work as was done last year. These outlines are not only in great demand by the schools here, but are asked for by many of the normal schools in the East.

Prof. Stewart delivered a lecture before the Sanpete county teachers this morning. He will give a public educational lecture this evening in Mantle.

A large number of Davis county teachers was conducted through the University last Monday. The normal department was of great interest to them, and they spent much of their time examining the work in the training school.

Mr. N. T. Porter, the Democratic nominee for State superintendent of public instruction, and also Mr. C. A. Nelson, Republican nominee for the same office, were both visitors to the University this week. Mr. Porter is a graduate of the University, and ranks as one of the leading educators of our State.

One of the small rooms of the Normal building has been very definitely set up for the use of the critic teachers. Some rugs for the floor, a lounge, pictures, and chairs have been purchased, and these make a very cozy place for rest and quietness.

The following students have recently been appointed to normal scholarships: Alice Redd, E. C. McFarley, Amelia Dalley, Brigham Matthews, Laura Angell, Ethel Smith, Mabel Gregor, Mary Henriksen, Annie Nordvall, Thoresen, L. Burton, Ann, Frank, Richard Lambert, Helen Sowdick, Lucile Case, Willard Jones, J. F. Anderson, Thos. Martin, Elsie Ward, Agnes Moore, Jennie Anderson, Violet Beardsley, Esther Pearson, H. H. Fowles, Prada Hamlin, and Ellen Clark.

Among the many visitors this week were Miss Gertrude Felt of the Heber City schools, Miss Clarice Thatcher, and Miss Armstrong, former college students of the University.

Supt. Aird of the Heber City schools accompanied by his teachers, were conducted through the University by President Kingsbury this week. They all have one week's leave of absence and are making the best of their opportunity by visiting the schools in Salt Lake City.

Prof. Richard R. Lyman and his advanced class in mining engineering, left yesterday for the Eureka district, where they will visit the numerous leading mines. Those accompanying the professor are Messrs Morgan, Hoffman, Shelley and Taylor. The party will be conducted through the Centennial Eureka, Eureka Hill, Bullion-Bell, Grand Central, the Mammoth and other mines, and will return Monday. They will pay special attention to the study of mine timbering, blasting, hoisting, milling, etc.

The members of the fourth year normal class met Thursday evening and effected an organization. Mr. Ward was made president and Mark Brown was elected vice president.

LATTER-DAY SAINTS' COLLEGE.

It is Miss Sadie Heath that teaches in the shorthand department, not Miss Susie Heath, as the type said last week. The shorthand classes are divided into three sections for speed work and individual instruction, and the students are doing well in this difficult art, which is taught in the college, is within the reach of all who will work for it.

Instructor Creer is still away on account of illness. Prof. Chamberlain and Attorney H. C. Lund conducted his classes this week.

The artist Mr. Levi Richards, occasionally assists Mrs. Horne in the class in drawing. A number of fine models have been put into the art room, and the class is making good progress. On fine days they take lessons in out-door sketching.

The class in telegraphy is so large this year that it is divided into two sections in addition to the evening class. The superior equipment of the telegraphic room, and the advantage of having an instructor a person who has been for years the superintendent of an office, are features that are appreciated by the students, and perhaps account for the doubling of the numbers in this branch as compared with former years. Miss Marion Adams has the evening class.

Prof. J. M. Tanner is away on business this week and his class in case law is being conducted by Lawyer Bernard Stewart.

Prof. Stephens says his music class in the college is one of the best he has ever conducted in this State. The students are so interested that they regard the class in vocal music as a recreation, and never as a task. The professor is undoubtedly a master of the art of teaching. The class meets daily except Friday at 12 m. in the Lion House, and visitors are welcome provided that they can squeeze into the room, which is filled to its utmost capacity.

President Paul spoke before the missionary class Monday, on the advantages of Bible study. He said that in the college the students study the life of Christ and the words of the Bible; while in secular schools the students spend a like amount of time and effort in trying to learn the life, words one of its old students, Mrs. Rachael Cettin Mathis. Her death occurred at Price, but the remains were sent to her old home at St. George for interment. As a token of regard and respect the students and teachers wrote out a set of resolutions offering words of condolence to her friends and relatives. These were sent to St. George to be read at her funeral.

Professor Cath Tanner, who has been called the Socrates of the academy, lectured before the Polytechnical society, last Friday night on "Charles XII. of Sweden." The lecture was a good one, but was broken into by the lights going out. While lights were being procured an attempt was made to sing the college song, without a leader. When the lights came the professor went on with his lecture, which was of great interest to the students.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster gave the students an agreeable surprise, Tuesday morning, by giving a short talk on the "Relation of Education to Character." Her beautiful thoughts, so eloquently expressed, were gladly received by those present. Mrs. Boynton, of Cache county, a lady no less admired, then spoke a few encouraging words to the earnest workers, especially to the missionaries. The students were especially interested in Mrs. Boynton, who is a daughter-in-law of one of the first Apostles of our Church. After these excellent speeches so highly appreciated by the students, the school joined in singing "O, My Father."

BEAVER B. Y. A. BRANCH.

Principal Partridge left for Provo Friday. He will perhaps return this week.

A special class in photography will commence as soon as Prof. Partridge returns.

Friday evening's polytechnical was entertained by a miscellaneous program. Our chemistry class will entertain us in the near future.

The Athletic association met last week for its annual committee to draft regulations to the effect that the Association will not contest hereafter with any other one school, on account of the ill feelings engendered, but the association will resist the idea of contesting where three or more schools contest. The right of contesting among ourselves as students, will also be reserved. The resolutions will be presented to the student-body shortly.

BRIGHAM YOUNG COLLEGE.

The instructor in art finds it necessary to provide for another section, in order to satisfy the many applicants for this course. A number of models, including some plaster casts, have been purchased and added to this department.

A shipment of articles for the chemical and biological laboratories has been received.

Mr. D. B. Richards of Salt Lake City, who has recently returned from Europe, Mrs. A. J. Riddle, Mrs. Loyd, ex-superintendent of Logan city schools, and Editor Flenner of Boise City, were recent visitors to the college. Mr. Flenner spent some time in visiting various classes, especially those of education, and was particularly interested in the training school. The primary grade of the latter consists of a number of the brightest of children, who seem to have much love for their school, the rooms of which are very nicely equipped with all the necessities of such a department, and decorated with many beautiful pictures and ornaments, some of which are the original handiworks of the little pupils. This department, under its present instructor, is certainly a success, and no one can visit it without partially becoming infatuated with its occupants. Only a call from Instructor Bullen caused him to exclaim, "I had time I would spend the training school."

The librarian reports that the students of Miss Dush's English are making a name for the library, as those awakened from Medieval slumbers ransacked the libraries old and further, that those of some of the choicest English are patiently awaiting their turn for a chance with some of the choicest English literature of the library.

Every one in the college feels that he has a treat every morning, in the beautiful selection rendered by the quartet, for which we are greatly indebted to the professor of music. More and more as the students learn to appreciate the sublime, the fine, the beautiful in the strains of the college quartet.

The faculty and students of the college are highly pleased with the fact that the State Art Institute will be held in the gymnasium in November next. President Linford and Instructor Wright have been appointed as a committee on reception at the college.

Some excellent athletes are present every afternoon in the gymnasium, and have demonstrated some of the strongest proofs that the Brigham Young college will this year be fully represented in the front ranks of the Utah athletes.

SALT LAKE HIGH SCHOOL.

Mr. Harwood has just had placed in the art department a large case containing a compartment for each pupil, in which to keep material.

Superintendent Cooper looked in upon the school Wednesday and seemed to enjoy the exercises in the assembly room.

Professor A. C. Nelson of Mantle was looking up the situation in the High school this week.

The football game with Butte Saturday is looked forward to as one of the events of the season. A hard contest is expected.

The question, "Resolved, That books aid perception," debated by the psychology class Friday. The affirmative was presented by Mary Sharp, Pearl Weller and Hyrum Bergstrom; and the negative by Kittle Eager, Herman Wilmann and Fred Brown. A vote of the class as to the merits of the argument resulted in thirteen for the affirmative and eleven for the negative.

Miss Mabel Pinney, who has been out five weeks on account of an attack of typhoid fever, has re-entered her classes.

Several new books have been added to the library.

It is putting it very mildly to say that the excellent violinist in the orchestra is a rare treat. They consisted of several numbers by Spencer's quartet and an address by Bishop O. F. Whitney. The boys and girls enjoyed the music thoroughly, and made this feeling manifest by hearty and repeated applause. When reference was made to the school teacher who sat on a bent pin, but who couldn't see the point, the high school society burst into a hearty laugh.

Professor Brimhall lectured before the parents' class, last Wednesday night, on "Motherhood." The lecture was interesting and instructive, the speaker holding the attention of his audience for two hours.

R. Leo Bird, president of the class of 1900, and now a teacher in the Latter-day Saints' college, visited the academy Sunday, and spoke in the domestic meetings in the evening. The students and teachers are always pleased to receive visits from the old students, and were pleased to see Mr. Bird.

Last Friday, Professor Lund visited all the students who had played on brass instruments to meet for organization. About seventeen young men responded to the invitation and in the near future the academy will have a brass band. An orchestra has also been organized, and will probably furnish the music for the academy parties this winter.

The academy was grieved the other morning to learn of the sad death of

POOR LOES WHO PUNT THE PIGSKIN

Crack Football Players of The Carlisle Indian School Photographed in Their Gridiron Gear.

EDWIN ROGERS.

Captain Rogers under no circumstances can be called "Young-Man-Afraid-of-His-Players." He directs his men with the wisdom of a sageman and the vigor of a Sitting Bull, yet with that consistent courtesy for which all the Carlisle students are noted.

HAWLEY PIERCE.

Fullback Pierce in no sense is a bruiser, but he covers his field with the agility of a catamount, while his running and punting are proofs of his praiseworthy persistence at practice. He is much stronger than his weight would indicate, being unusually wiry.

MARTIN WHEELOCK.

Wheelock, the left tackle, believes it is a finer thing to stop one of the other side's sprinters in the full triumph of a runaround than to slaughter a herd of bison. He is magnificent on the offensive, too. Right through the line he goes, with those massive shoulders of his.

THADDEUS REDWATER.

Redwater in his name, but not in his character, for he realizes that the lightest liquid in existence is fatal to success on the grid. When invited to daily with the way look-tail and the festive flax, he proudly exclaims: "White man, I am Tuscarora—dash the wisdom in the ground!" Parenthetically, Mr. Redwater is a most useful young man on the line.

Here are the four football stars of the Carlisle Indian School—noble young red men who yet may help Uncle Sam to win his battles in distant lands. Their kind tutors, however, instruct them judiciously in the arts of peace, believing that they need no tuition in the science of war. Carlisle's entire eleven is highly effective on the gridiron, but these young men are the most brilliant players.
