The Sisters of Charity ride free on all the street cars in New Orleans.

Queen Victoria's daughter, the Princess of Teck, "leans toward Romanism."

The young lady who gives herself away, loses her self-possession.

The productive labor of the State of Massachusetts is over $1,000,000 daily.

Every nine casks of lager that a man can swallow is nutritiously equal to a ten cent loaf of bread.

Eighty per cent. of recent mortality in the large cities has been of children under five.

The Louisiana rice will amount to 60,000 barrels—the heaviest crop by far ever yet made in that State.

Rev. Mr. Owen, an American Missionary, is at Allahabad, India, working on a new translation of the Bible.

The ancient "Red Horse Inn," built about 1662, at Sudbery, Massachusetts, was struck by lightning a few days ago.

At twelve o'clock at noon, on the 7th, there were 986,900,450,900,640,000 flies in Hartford, says the Post, with the Fifth and Sixth Wards to hear from.

The N. Y.. Citizen states that a public officer at Long Branch this summer, between fast women, fast horses, and gambling, is spending $100,000 a month.

The country is of course the place for agriculture, but it is an indisputable fact that wild oats are mostly raised in cities.

Locomotive engines were used for the first time in New England, on the Boston and Worcester Railroad, April 1834.

The world is selfish, and too much believes in No. 1. On the arrival of the promised millenniun the other numerals it is expected will have something of a chance.

"I always sing to please myself," said a gentleman who was humming a tune in company. "Then you're not at all difficult to please," said a lady who sat next to him.

The clergy of Lyons. France lately appointed an earlier hour than usual for the Sunday services, in order to allow the people who wished to attend the races which were to occur on that day.

At the Bay State House, Worcester, the Chinese Embassy indulged in the following bill of fare: "Champagne, soup, champagne, rice, champagne, eggs, champagne, ice water, champagne.

"So use your own as not to injure your neighbors," is a maxim of law. The general observance of this rule would prevent many of the controversies and law-suits which occur.

"What relations are least regarded?" said a fellow of T. C. D. to a student deeper read in Hoyle than Locke. After a pause, the delinquent made a desperate guess, and answered: "Poor relations, sir, without doubt."

"How had you the audacity, John, to tell the people of P—— that I was a mean fellow and no gentleman?" said a Scotch nobleman to his servant. "Na, na, my lord, ye'll na catch me at the likes 'o that, sir," said John; "when I gang to P——, I always keep my thochts to myself."

"Ma, if I should die and go to heaven should I were my moire-antique dress?"

A youth stopping at an inn, during a thunderstorm, probably surprised that a new cohtry should have reached such perfection in the meteorologic manufactures, said to a bystander, "Why you have very heavy thunder here!" "Well, yes," replied the man, "we du, considering the number of inhabitants."

Michael Kelly, the once-popular singer and composer, was in business in the Haymarket as a wine merchant, and wrote over his door, "Michael Kelly, Composer of Music, and Importer of Wine." Alexander Dumas still adheres to the mode of life he has led for forty years past. He goes to bed at four in the morning, and rises at noon. He breakfasts at one, lunches at five, eats a sumptuous dinner at eight, and takes supper at midnight. He drinks very little wine, generally two or three glasses of burgundy at dinner, and adds two or three spoonsful of cognac to his tea. He works nine hours a day, and generally furnishes the printer, daily, ten large sheets written in a beautiful flowing hand, and almost entirely free from corrections and alterations.
