Chairman Anderson strongly oppos ed the motion and declared the action of his colleagues as unfair and unjust to himself and Mr. Jones and also illegal. He contended that an investigation should have been made, and that Mr. Jones' removal without such investigation was illegal. He voted against the removal and against the appointment of Harman.

Mr. Harker stated that his reason for removing Supt. Jones was because he failed to comply with his request for a report of certain funds received through the sale of county property, consisting of pigs, cows and farm produce. No irregularity is charged by the com-missioners who voted for Mr. Jones' removal. They both declare that if the report asked for had been submitted the superintendent would not have been molested. MRS. SHEPARD'S REMARKS.

The Lax Manner in Which City Ordis nances Are Enforced-Other Speakers.

A number of the city pastors spoke fervently and forcibly yesterday on the E. E. Shepard also spoke on the current theme, and in a number of the ward meetinghouses, the speakers referred to local conditions. And it was held forth in the churches that efforts would be continuous and persistent in the line of reform until something effeetive was accomplished. Mrs. Shepard spoke in the morning at the First Methodist church, and in the evening occupied the East Side Baptist pulpit. She set fourh that the city officials are permitting certain laws to be broken daily, and property owners to become eraninals in renting property for immoral purposes. She said the W. C. T. U. would labor zealously to compel the pervants of the law to enforce the statutes, and force property owners not to thus rent their properties. Mrs. Shepard also raked parents over the coals for remissness and urged reclamation and conversion of the women of the red light district and of the men who frequented such places.

"There are times in the lives of these women," said Mrs. Shepard, "when, if the right words were spoken at the right time, their souls might be saved. They have their dark days, when they wish, deep in their hearts, that they were out of that kind of a

Mrs. Shepard said public opinion had accomplished much during the last week. The ministers had been slumming, and were now thoroughly aroused as to the extent of crime and vice, and proposed to act. After the last meeting of the Ministerial alliance a policeman said to one of the minis-ters that the present agitation was only temporary; that a lull would follow in a short time, and if the ministers would then visit the red light districts they would see vice and crime just as rampant as it was at the time of the Ryan murder, The speaker wanted it made impossi-

Relative to the monthly d upon the women of the town Mrs. Shepard asked to be shown the law which gave the authorities power to levy such a tax. Mrs. Shepard then said $84,000 is an nually collected from the saloons, $15,-00 from the women and $10,000 from the gamblers; blood money, she called it; a total of $110,000 per year for sin.

His unexpected and sudden demise from peart disease at his residence, 308 East First South street, caused a shock to the community, and was the subject most discussed vesterday in the hotels and on the street corners. From the universal expressions of sympathy and regret the deceased left behind him a heritage of which his family may well be proud. He died, or rather went to sleep, surrounded by his family. He was lying on the sofa in the parior of his home, resting after his accustomed morning both. His wife, daughter and servants were with him. While Miss Lowe was alding him in removing his smoking tacket, she noticed that her father's face possessed an unnatural pallor, She asked him if he felt ill and he replied that he felt a slight nausea and would lie down a little while,

Mrs. Lowe a few moments afterward entered the room and learning that her husband felt ill, suggested that a physiclan be telephoned for, which he declined, saying he did not feel so ill as that. These were the last words he ever uttered. A few moments later he showed signs of distress in breathing, which alarmed Mrs. Lowe, who telephoned for Dr. J. M. Dart, but before he arrived Mr. Lowe had breathed
