

OLD BRIDGE IMMORTALIZED BY BURNS.

The town council of Ayer, Scotland, has decided to pull down the old bridge herewith illustrated, which is the "Auld brig of Ayer" immortalized by Robert Burns. The prophecy that the poet put into the mouth of the old structure when a new one was built in 1788—"I'll be a big when ye're a shapeless cairn"—was actually fulfilled, the new bridge having collapsed in 1877. Lord Rosebery is making an effort to save the old landmark, which is believed to have been built in the reign of Alexander III. of Scotland.

A LITTLE AID.

Mayor Kendall of Wilkesbarre told at a reception a story about a young Wilkesbarre clergyman.

"He was married a year ago," the mayor said, "and his wife, a good girl, interested him in a charity for minor orphans. He advocated this charity often from the pulpit, and, when a subscription reached him, he would acknowledge it the next Sunday in church."

"It happened that last June, there came to this minister on the same day a subscription for $5 and a young son.

"A good deal of laughter was excited the following Sunday when, rising in the pulpit, the minister said that he felt very grateful for the small success that had arrived during the week."

"The best things are the least come-at-able," was written before the age of "Omniograms"—want ads. Want advertising makes all reasonable things come-at-able."

Senator F. T. Dubois Now Ready To Flop.

ACCORDING to Will G. MacRae, staff correspondent on the Oregonian, who has been sent to Moscow, Idaho, to investigate the timber land frauds, Senator Fred T. Dubois is getting ready to flop, as he is anxious to succeed himself as United States senator from Idaho. In this connection he gives a story of an alleged deal with W. E. Borah, who is said to be unwilling to step aside for a time to give place to the Republican prodigal.

Here is the special dispatch to the Oregonian which contains this not totally unexpected piece of information: "Senator Fred T. Dubois Republican! Should this statement be made within the next six months, it is not believed it would occasion much surprise among the rank and file of the Republican party in Idaho. The fact that Senator Dubois has been checked by Jowl with the party leaders of northern Idaho and because he was courted, both at Lewiston and at Moscow, by party workers, lends color to this story."

"Undoubtedly the statement that Senator Dubois may again enter the Republican fold will be denied, not only by the senator himself, but by his friends as well, who will regard the publication of this rumor at this time as premature. But let events take their course, and we shall see what we shall see."

Senator Dubois, before the silver frenzy turned many Republicans into the Bryan camp, was a Republican. From free silver it was only a step to Populism, and it is on this bridge that he crossed over, became a full-fledged, out-and-out Democrat, and was sent to the senate flying the Democratic flag. This was just a flash in the pan. Senator thought took possession of the old-line Republicans, and gradually they began returning to the fold, and now in northern Idaho only a vestige of Democratic control remains.

"The senior senator from Idaho, ever watchful of passing events, has noted this and, in spite of the fact of Democratic alliances, he has never burned his bridges with the Republicans so completely that he could not return to the party. Senator Dubois may deny it, so may his staunch friends, but the warmth with which he was greeted by Republican leaders and his own marked solicitation for their friendship speaks plainly that he is feeling the pulse of the people."

"There are a lot of Republicans in northern Idaho, a great many of them party leaders, who have never believed that Senator Dubois was at heart a Democrat. They argue that his influence at Washington and his standing with the administration were such that the powers that be in the capital also felt that way, and for that reason it is believed that he would find little difficulty in re-entering the Republican party."

"That Senator Dubois is exceedingly anxious to succeed himself is well known by every Republican of the state, as well as his Democratic followers. It is believed, however, before he discards his Democratic mantle he will first have a perfect understanding with William E. Borah, who just now is in the minds and talk of the Republicans to succeed Dubois in the senate. In fact, the day after Senator Dubois left here there was gossip on the street to the effect that he and Borah had come to an understanding. This can mean but one thing, and that is that Senator Dubois is once more to become a Republican."

"While the Republican party leaders are talking a great deal about Borah and his well-known qualifications as a senator, he so far has had little to do with the talk other than to stand in the position of being in the hands of his friends. His law practice in the northern part of the state is extensive, and it is believed by those who are in a position to know that he is not breaking his neck to go to Washington."

"If there is anything in the story that Senator Dubois and Attorney Borah have reached an agreement on this matter, it would certainly be with the understanding that Senator Dubois had

NEW MAUSOLEUM FOR THE ARCHBISHOPS OF CHICAGO.

Ground was broken recently at Mount Carmel, Ill., with impressive religious ceremonies, for the rather pretentious mausoleum shown in the cut. It is designed as a final resting place for the Roman Catholic prelates of the archdiocese of Chicago and is being erected by the present incumbent, Archbishop James Edward Quigley. It is built of stone from the local quarries, and the former dignitaries will be removed to this permanent receptacle.

once more declared himself a Republican and would come out as the Republican candidate to succeed himself. If this is the deal, Mr. Borah would naturally turn his influence to Senator Dubois' behalf."
