All Three Are Dead.

Yesterday afternoon, at 1724 Curtis Street, occurred the death of a man around whose domestic history gathers the halo of a mournful interest. The name of the deceased was Robert N. Yuill, by occupation a miner, beneath whose rough exterior pulsated a heart warm with affection and noble in its aspirations. Two years ago he was united in marriage to the lady of his choice at Canon City. Soon after marriage they removed to Denver, and about one year later a beautiful, cooing babe arrived to brighten their modest home, which was warmed by the glow of love and made cheerful by a happy wife. Future prospects were tinged with the tints of silver and, buoyed up by sanguine hope of prosperity, the deceased worked hard to accumulate a competence with which to secure comfort and pleasure for his little family, little dreaming that the flight of a few short months would witness the total extinction of the family and the complete desolation of the home he was so lovingly striving to create. Time passed on until last December, when the wife was attacked by a malignant fever and following a brief illness, died. The husband and father, almost broken hearted, consigned his babe to the care of the ladies at the hospital and repaired to the mountains in search of employment. During his absence at the mines the babe died on the seventh instant. The father was notified of this second great calamity, and in response came to Denver. Under his direction the remains of the little one were embalmed and placed in a vault to await interment by the side of its mother at Canon City, the home of her parents. As though pursued by an evil destiny bent upon the extinction of the entire family, the deceased was attacked with quick consumption, and after a brief illness died yesterday at 1724 Curtis Street, where he occupied furnished apartments. Conscious that dissolution lingered near, he made a last request that his remains, together with those of his child, should be taken to Canon City and buried by the side of his wife. The body was taken in charge by B. R. Hall and taken last evening to his undertaking parlors, 385½ Champa Street. In accordance with his desire, with the remains of deceased and child will be transferred to Canon City today for interment. The funeral ceremonies will be conducted by the Masonic order, of which deceased was a member in good standing. The story of his domestic life reads more like romance than fact, and only serves to strikingly exemplify the saying that truth is stranger than fiction.—Denver News, Feb. 25.

LINCK GOES DOWN.

Judge Zane Leaves Him Where the City Placed Him.

HE CANNOT WORK THE LAND-JUMPING SCHEME IN SALT LAKE.

The question in regard to the city lands, which was taken under advisement by Judge Zane till this morning, has received a definite settlement. There was no feeling of uneasiness on the part of the people as to the wrongfulness of the land jumper's position, nor any doubt that the Chief Justice would give the law fairly, and the decision is therefore no surprise, probably not even to the attorneys on the losing side. It is very satisfactory, however, from the fact that it is an

of the law in the premises.

The complainant in the case, John H. Linck, of Colorado, represented by his attorneys, J. R. McBride and Arthur Brown, asked the court to grant an injunction restraining the corporate authorities of Salt Lake City from preventing Mr. Linck carrying out his project of seizing the public lands. The matter was fully argued and today Judge Zane rendered a decision, in substance as follows, refusing to grant an injunction:

It appears this land was entered under the town site act, as the city of Salt Lake, by the city authorities; in 1871. On June 1, 1872, the patent was issued by the government to the Mayor. There was a large portion of the land embraced that was not actually occupied by residents, and a large portion has remained to the present time unplatted and unoccupied by actual presence. On the 11th of this month the complainant attempted to take possession of the land described in this complaint, consisting of probably more than thirty acres. On that day he went on the land and erected a wire fence and exercised other acts of ownership. The Mayor and others and his improvements from the land forcibly. The question is whether the complainant had such rights as entitled him to the possession, and improvement of the land, and whether the court should protect him in that right. The government of the United States has passed an act known as a townsite act; sec. 2387 provides as follows:

"Whenever any portion of the public lands have been or may be settled upon and occupied as a townsite, not subject to entry under the agricultural pre-emption laws, it is lawful, in case such town be incorporated, for the corporate authorities thereof, and, if not incorporated, for the judge of the county court for the county in which such town is situated, to enter at the proper land office, and at the minimum price, the land so settled and occupied in trust for the several use and benefit of the occupants thereof, according to their respective interests; the execution of which trust, as to the disposal of the lots in such town, and the proceeds of the sales thereof, to be conducted under such regulations as may be prescribed by the legislative authority of the State or Territory in which the same may be situated."

THE EXTENT OF THE ENTRY

is limited in sections 2389 and 2390 as follows:

"Sec. 2389. If upon surveyed lands, the entry shall in its exterior limit be made in conformity to the legal subdivisions of the public lands authorized by law; * * * and where the number of inhabitants is one thousand and over one thousand, shall embrace not exceeding twelve hundred and eighty acres; but for each additional one thousand, not exceeding five thousand in all, a further grant of three hundred and twenty acres shall be allowed.

"SEC. 2390. The words "not exceeding five thousand in all," in the preceding section, shall not apply to Salt Lake City, in the Territory of Utah; but such section shall be so construed in its application to that city, that lands may be entered for the full number of inhabitants contained therein, not exceeding fifteen thousand. * * *"

Congress doubtless understood that there would be a large part of the townsite that would not be actually occupied by residents at the time of entry. The question then arises as to the right of persons to that portion not occupied at the time of the entry, and after actual settlers had received their portion—as to the unclaimed lots. The occupancy mentioned was not confined to the actual occupants, it was the occupancy of the trustee—the city—for the use of the residents thereon and that occupancy extended to the limits of the entry. A portion was for the actual occupants, and to the remainder was in the city; that was the occupancy of the trustee—the constructive occupancy. The corporate authorities were authorized to enter the whole townsite in trust for the occupants. The law may be badly expressed, but doubtless refers to the land actually occupied, and that upon which there was a constructive occupancy. This land was to be disposed of as prescribed by the Legislature. Section 2391 says: "Any act of the trustees not made in conformity to the regulations alluded to in section twenty-three hundred and eighty-seven shall be void;" thereby prohibiting the trustee from disposing of the land except as provided for by the Legislature. In 1869 the Legislature made certain regulations. Section 8 provided for the rightful owner or occupant, within six months, making a statement of his claim to any land, and for the filing of that statement; it also those who failed to file said statement from making any further claim. Section 9 provided that if there was any unclaimed land, the corporate authorities were to survey and plat it, reserving such grounds as were necessary for public purposes. It authorized the Mayor to sell such lots at a certain figure and under certain regulations.

The Legislature proceeded on the theory that the settlers were entitled to the lands they actually occupied, by paying the original cost of the lands and the cost of survey. It saved the rights of actual occupants, and regarded the unclaimed lots as held in trust for the common benefit of the residents of said city. When 2 or 3 persons desired to purchase the land that was unoccupied they were to be treated impartially, and the man willing to pay the highest price was to get it. The act of the Legislature is on

THE RIGHT THEORY.

The object of the townsite law is for the purpose of encouraging the growth of cities and towns. The greatness of a nation depends on the prosperity of its agricultural classes, mining classes etc.; the inhabitants of cities and towns are provided for to this extent. The government has sought to promote the prosperity of each class. It would seem that to say that the unoccupied land should be held for the common good and not individuals, is the proper theory. They all get the benefit. It may be sold to the highest bidder, the proceeds going to the public good. It is to go to the public schools, which are for the good of the public. This land is to be treated as the property, and held for the common benefit of all. This is just and equal, and is to take of it. It is in harmony with the theory of the government itself in section 2262 Revised Statutes of the United States. That section saves the rights of actual settlers, and the other lots are sold to the highest bidder. The view taken by the Legislature of Utah is in harmony with the view taken by the Government of the United States. This construction of the law is in harmony with the authorities on the subject. In the case cited, where the probate judge of the county in which Denver is situated, disposed of certain lots contrary to law, the court said the trust was a double one—for the occupants as individuals, and for the community. The unoccupied lands were held in trust

FOR THE COMMUNITY.

The trustee could not sell under the act of Congress, but under the laws made by the Legislature. Any sale outside of these regulations is void.

So it is with Salt Lake. The town authorities must dispose of the unclaimed lands according to the legislative acts. They have a double trust—for actual settlers, and for the community. The Mayor has undertaken to discharge this trust, and he must do so promptly. He has no right, nor have the corporate authorities any right to hold the land for generations, and prevent its settlement and occupancy. They have a trust to perform, which, as public officers, they must perform promptly. They must survey and plat the unclaimed land promptly. This is the duty of the trustee, the Mayor. He must survey the land and plat it; dividing it into lots and laying out streets. Such portions as are necessary can be and be disposed of in that way. The rest must be devided into lots and sold as provided by law, the proceeds to go to the public schools—to be devoted to the common good. The injunction asked for in this case cannot be allowed; it must be denied.

A Conductor Killed.

Red Cliff, Colo., Feb. 24.—Toni Coleman, a Rio Grande conducter, was shot in the office of the Eagle Hotel last night by C. E. Denny, a dentist. He received two bullets from a No. 38, one in the abdomen and the second in the left side. He died at 9:25 this evening.

Rumor says Coleman overheard Denny remark that he had had his arm around the prettiest woman in town that day, and Coleman supposed it was a slur on Mrs. Coleman. Denny denied this, but was afterward attacked by Coleman, who struck him on the head, for which he was promptly fined by Justice Pat Tague. Partially intoxicated, Coleman sought his man again, renewing the fight. Denny, being overwhelmed, escaped and got a revolver behind the office counter, intending to go to his own room, as he says. Before he left the counter Coleman, who upon him again, when Denny fired five shots and then gave himself up, saying he had to do it. Mrs. Coleman is not only above suspicion, but is a very estimable young lady. She has been a bride out one month. Denny is married, his wife being in the east."—Denver News.

Frank Minty Dead.

Frank Minty, a conductor on the Utah & Northern Railway, and a son of General Minty, who is well known here, died last evening at Butte, Montana. His death resulted from an accident which occurred on the 29th of last November, and was entirely unexpected. It will prove a severe blow among his relatives, as the deceased gentleman was a favorite among them. On the date last mentioned Frank Minty was sitting quietly in the cupola of his caboose, on a freight train, which was pursuing its way toward Blue Bird station, the end of his division. Suddenly the engine of the train ran into the rear of another train and was stopped, and Mr. Minty was thrown forward against the side of the cupola. His nose was broken by the fall, and his head was cut. His injuries, although serious, were not considered dangerous at all, as as soon as he became better he went to Denver, Col., where two months ago today he was married. When he came back, soon after, the injury to his head began to trouble him, and gave him considerable pain. It was finally determined by the doctors at Butte, who attended him, to perform an operation upon his head. Yesterday this was accordingly done, a small piece of the skull being removed. The unfortunate conductor was unable to sustain the operation and died a few hours afterward, as above stated. His father is now on the road between Ogden and Butte, it is said to witness the operation, and will arrive there to find that his son has passed away from earth.—Ogden Standard, Feb. 26.

MALAD STAKE ORGANIZED.

WEST PORTAGE,
Box Elder Co.

Editor Deseret News:

On Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 11th and 12th, there was a special conference held at this place for the purpose of organizing a new stake of Zion. Present on the stand, Apostle Lorenzo Snow, President Seymour B. Young of the Seventies, President Rudger Clawson of Box Elder Stake, Elder George Dunford of Salt Lake City, and Bishops of surrounding wards.

The meeting Saturday forenoon was occupied by the Bishops of the several wards, who expressed their satisfaction at the proposed new organization.

In the afternoon the meeting was addressed by Presidents S. B. Young and Rudger Clawson.

On Sunday forenoon the new meeting house of this place was dedicated, President S. B. Young offering up the dedicatory prayer. He then addressed the conference on the duties of the Priesthood, and exhorted all to sustain the various officers of the new Stake.

On Sunday afternoon Apostle L. Snow stated that the new Stake would be known as the Malad Stake of Zion, and would be composed of the wards of Plymouth, Washakie, Portage, Cherry Creek, Samaria, Malad, St. John, Rockland and Neelyville. He then made some very instructive and edifying remarks, which were listened to with marked attention.

JOHN D. GIBBS.

A local paper of pronounced anti-"Mormon" predilections assumes that a remarkable effect is being produced by old settlers disposing of their real estate property. It holds that it is causing them to grow cold toward the Church and finally to deny the faith and leave it. We are not prepared to say how much truth there is in the statement, but it is one that might be reflected upon with some degree of profit.

Kansas is a state that is having a truly phenomenal growth. It is said that the mailing business of Kansas City even exceeds that of Chicago, a statement that seems almost incredible until we come to consider that this is not only the centre of a large and prosperous section of country, but also the geographical centre of the United States, and that just now everything is booming in that locality. The people there seem to be wide awake and scorn to follow the Micawber plan of waiting for something to turn up. A good sample of their style of doing business has just been established in Mertella, Kansas. The citizens became so annoyed over the question of high railroad rates and kindred annoyances that last week the whole place packed up its traps and moved to White Plains, a location ten miles away. The removal embraced dry goods and grocery stores, a newspaper, all the law and real estate offices, the entire town board and justices of the peace. In fact everybody in Mertella, who was anybody, joined in the hegira. If the mountain will not come to Mahomet Mahomet must go to the mountain.
