TRIANGULAR POLITICS,

Cleveland, O .- By all odds this is the richest, the liveliest, and the oddest campaign ever seen in this curious commonwealth, where babes suck in political wisdom with their mother's milk, where men will leave a beauty show to go to a ward primary, and where even the women "chew the rag" over political policies with a ready familiarity which never breeds contempt.

For all the world it reminds one of Marryat's celebrated triangular Capt. duel, in which each one of the three com-batants fired at another, but no two ex-

one, and Ohio will be blessed by an ex-cellent business man in the governor's chair. Uncle Mark Hanna and his Republican associates have only one object in view. which is to kill off Tom Johnson for may-of Ohio to succeed Naah by a majority that there is not the ghost of a chance of Mayor Tom being elected governor, and this entire campaign, with the four principal candidates centered in Cuya-hoga county, is planned from the Repub-lican side for the express purpose of de-feating Johnson so completely that the next time he runs for mayor of Cleveland he will be discredited in advance. On the other hand, Tom Johnson knows better than any man on earth perhaps that he has not the ghost of a chance of being elected governor of Ohio at the present time. He also knows that Uncle Mark Hanna is more secure than ever in his seat in the senate. All he wants to do is to beat John R. McLean and if possible drive him out of the party by a demon-stration of continued treachery to the reg-ular ticket in the state. The fract that he is a rubber bail. Again and again the Republican organization have tossed him in the air and thrown him against a brick wall in the firm be-lief that he was done for, but Mayor Tom bounds back again after them until at last the conviction has been borne in upon the Republicans that they cannot get rid of him until they bat him over the fence, which means that they cannot get rid of him until they bat him over the fence, which means that they cannot get rid of him until they bat him over the fence, which means that they cannot get rid of him until they bat him over the fence, which means that they cannot get and the state endown before they can drive him out of the rest of the state.

thate. The present campaign is a whirlwind of circus tents, red devils, culcium lights, trolley cars, special trains, barbecues, and all the devices known to sensational poli-tics. All sorts of issues are discussed, from the ship subsidy bill to Mayor Tom's personal taxes, but after all it is nothing more or less than a flerce struggle to carry Cuyahoga county, entirely as a pre-liminary to the next municipal campaign in Cleveland. Aside from that, Col. Her-rick might as well write his name gover-nor today as to wait until his inaugura-tion.—Chicago Tribune

WAR.

"First came two women-one young, one very old. The old woman was carrying a bundle, and the young woman leading by the hand a child. The child was crying and dragging along after it a tin can fied to a string clinging even in its grief to this mis-clinging even in its grief to this mis-crable toy. They vanished, swallowed up by the blackness: homeless, and going God knows where. "I thought of them today. That wretched family passed in review be-fore me as the troops were passing in review before the kaiser; and through all the blaring of trumpets and beating of drums, I seemed to hear the dreary sound of that old tin can. "Yes, after all, after love what is more attractive to the human heart than war? The women clap their hands than war? The women clap their hands as the regiment marches by; and when little Fritz gets on my knee of an evening, it's always Grandpap, tell me of your battles."-Henry De Vere Stac-poole, in London Outlook.

"With the order for mobilization men change. "It is like passing through some mys-

"It is like passing through some mys-terious door into a new world. A few short, sharp rules supplant the moral code in this new form of society in which manslaughter is as necessary to one's life as bread. Abstractions stop at the frontier, the moment rules the mind, and a slice of fried ham is able to efface from one's memory a battle lost.

"So we must not be too hard on the prince for forgetting disaster at the sight of a frying pan, nor on the good Uhlans -- fathers of families some of them-for the use they would have made of their swords if he had at-tempted an escape. "As the prince was placing the pan on the fire I heard a sound from the road outside--a sound as if a tin can were being kicked along by some one walking leisurely. It struck strange-ly upon my ear, for common sounds in time of peace sometimes become very uncommon noises in time of war. "By the fire I ay one of those ropes soaked in tar, called cellar-rats. I lit it, and took it to the door; it made a faming torch, and showed me a broad strip of white road spread with pud-faming torch, and showed me a broad strip of white road spread with pud-dies and lashed by rain. "All else was the darkness of the pit, filled with the hiss of the falling rain. "The sound of the tin can drew near-er and nearer; then out of the dark and across the torch-lit strip of road passed before me a company of specters—in review order, one might say. At Spandau J was present at a great review when 50,000 men—horse, foot and artillery—paraded before the emperor, it was superb—the shoals of bayonets, the drifting clouds of cavalry, the masses of infantry that moved as one man and with the tramp of a giant, the drums and trumpets—one ésaid, in-voluntarily, "What a glorious thing is voluntarily, "What a glorious thing is

As we drove home he said, speaking as if to the cigar he had just lighted, "Yes, war is a glorious thing, no doubt. What a sight was that on the day when our army entered Paris, the four Uhlans riding ahead and the bands playing Schubert's triumphal march! I was there, yet wiuld you believ me, thespectacle of that grand entry haunts me pullow has then an insignificant thespectacle of that grand entry haunts my pillow less than an insignificant picture which my memory has labeled "Three Nights After Spicheren." I will tell you about at if I can. It was some-thing like this: "I was escorting four important pris-oners, on matter who they were and via escorting tour important pris-oners—no matter who they were—and we stopped for the night at a deserted wine-shop near the entrance to a de-serted hamlet. Our army held all the roads. "It was a horrible hole of a tavern

"It was a horrible hole of a tavern. The place had been cleaned out, but we tore up some boards and made a fire, and behind a door of an inner room we found a dozen bottles of wine packed in a basket, with a ham, by some prov-ident soul, and forgotten through hur-ry or fear.

POISON-EATERS AT IT AGAIN.

Washington,-The squad of government "poison-caters," which was dis-banded last spring after eight months on a "doped diet," and recently reor-ganized by Prof. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the agricultural department, sat down this morning to an adulterated breakfast and for the part field, morths will next eight months will try to determine next eight months will try to determine by practical experience, just what sali-cylic acid will do to the human sys-tem. The members of the squad will take capsules of the acid, which is in general use as a milk and meat and general food preservative, three times a day with their meals until something hearness.

a day with their meals until something happens. The former experiments were with borax, and a constant diet of this chemical didn't seem to bother the polson-eaters a bit. They all finished in the best of condition. Prof. Wiley's chief trouble was to keep them from getting fat. Some of the polson-eat-ers believe that borax is an excellent tonic, and ever since the close of the experiments have used it for every-thing, from a shampoo to a cure for thing, from a shampoo to a cure for stomach ache.

Prof. Wiley's report containing the results of the experiments with borax is now in course of preparation, and will be made public before long. The conclusions reached by the professor are eagerly awaited by meat packers, manufacturers of food products and by the sensed public the general public. The experiments with salleylic acid will be more carefully conducted than the former tests, principally out of re-gard for the poison-caters, as the chem-the former tests, principally out of re-gard for the poison-eaters, as the chem-ical is known in a general way to act as a deterrent on the digestive ap-paratus. But just how it works and just what it will do when a fair test is given are not specifically known, and that is just what Prof. Wiley is trying to discover. He thinks he will, too, if his squad of twelve holds out. The majority of the squad who sat down to breakfast are new recruits with untried stomachs and unadulter-ated enthusiasm. Several members of last year's squad got married during the summer months and one or two more are thinking seriously of the same step. As Prof. Wiley gloomily re-marked when informed of their plans: "Thew'll find that soup a la borax and salicylic sauterne are in a class by themselves compared to things alleged to be 'like mother used to make,' Then they'll wish they were back on doped diet. See if they don't."

Each member of the squad that sat lown to breakfast this morning found an innocent looking capsule beside his plate. Prof. Wiley trusts to the honor of his poison-eaters, of course, but he also sits at the head of the table, and when he taps the table with the carvwhen he taps the table with the carv-ing knife, just after finishing grace, the capsules all go down in a hurry, with a mouthful of water on top, "just as an appetizer," Prof. Wiley remarked this morning to the new members of the squad. The professor's appetite is al-ways excellent, and, therefore, he never takes a capsule.—Denver Post.

tary. Mr. Adams described his study of public ownership in Europe, includ-ing the Glasgow experiment, saying that such street car service as they had in Glasgow would create a riot in Kansas City, and added: "The fact is when it comes to han-dling private business any and every dling private business any and every government is, in my opinion, utterly incompetent. Look at our school sys-tem. It is one mass of jobbery from beginning to end. If you are looking for another object lesson study the government printing office at Wash-ington. Every document published---lumbering, clumsy, useless--costs no-toriously twice what it would cost if toriously twice what it would cost if issued by a private press. And the postoffice. Just look at the system of fraud, bribery and stealing now being brought to light. Don't talk to me of doing business through governmental machinery. It is one colossal exhibi-tion of waste, extravagance and in-competence.—Chicago Chronicle.

The barns will be uniform octagons 100 feet in diameter. Each will have 38 stalls arranged in a semi-circle with a rear promenade 12 feet wide to ac-commodate visitors. Eight box stalls $x12 feet will be provided for the cows at calving time, and two box stalls will furnish quarters for bulls. The sec-ond floor will have four feed bins, each holding about 500 bushels of ground feed. Sleeping quarters for the men in charge of the cows are also provided. The arrangement of the barns per-mits full inspection of the stock by the arrangement of the stock by wisitors and of the care of the cows to the best possible advantage. Chief Coburn and Secy. Mills express them-selves as well pleased with the plans.
