

GROWING DEMAND FOR HOME GOODS.

Good Work of the Manufacturers' Association Gradually Being Felt.

WOMEN ARRANGE A MEETING.

Excursion to Logan With Stops at Ogden and Brigham City—New Pickle Factory.

That there is now a decided call for home manufactured goods, where only a few weeks ago there was a prejudice against them, is the statement of a large number of local merchants, volunteered to the directors of the Manufacturers' and Merchants' association. The movement is bringing in many of the skeptical, who perhaps have been turned away from home manufactured goods by experience at some time with an article of inferior grade, and to prevent these skeptics from again turning away from the movement, special care is being taken to get only high grade products out of home manufacturers, and to prevent inferior goods from sharing in the increased sales.

The association begins the present week with all members, which is an increase of nearly 100 during the week. It expects to be in its new building by the middle of the month, and will then go ahead rapidly with its plans for an exhibit of Utah goods from every section of the state.

THE AUXILIARY.

Preparations for the mass meeting of women at the Commercial club Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock for the purpose of forming an auxiliary to the association are being made. The large club rooms will be thrown open, and the officers and many members of the association will be present. It is planned that after the meeting is opened, the women will be given an opportunity to express their views, and that a directorate will be elected. Its purposes will be to inspect goods made at home, pass upon their standards before the label of the association is extended to them, and to work for the placing of western goods on their tables, and in their kitchens. It is held that this is not a selfish move on the part of producers, for the reason that a large wage list will thus be created, and a large wage list is necessary to the upbuilding of any community. It makes itself felt in the corner grocery as well as in the factory, and is essential to a busy city, for which the woman has as much motive to work as the men. The meeting will probably be attended by a large number, as in addition to a general invitation, each woman's club has been requested to send at least two delegates.

TRIP TO LOGAN.

Plans are maturing for the first excursion into the state, and from present indications it will go northward. Stopovers will be made en route to Ogden, for one hour at Ogden, and another hour at Brigham City. The train will arrive at Logan about noon, and will leave for a direct run for Salt Lake late in the afternoon. At Ogden, Brigham City and Logan an effort will be made to get acquainted with the merchants, with the work they are doing in manufacturing, with the products they turn out that could be used in Salt Lake, also to learn what Salt Lake products could replace those now coming in from the east and sections which make for greater commonwealths far away from home.

BOOSTING IN COLORADO.

"There is not an inch of all Colorado that is not boosting Denver," declared a visitor from Utah's eastern neighbor to a "News" reporter today, "and they do it because they know the bigger Denver gets, the bigger they will get, and the more market they will have."

When informed of the remark, President Hewlett added: "Yes, and a year ago those same Colorado people, especially the people from Denver, came out here to Salt Lake, and we were glad to see them. They got acquainted with us, and then didn't do a thing but go up and down the state and through Idaho trying to switch all our trade over to Denver, and not one thing we do to counteract their work. I don't think that sort of thing could happen again. Salt Lake has got to look to Utah and Utah to Salt Lake."

NEW PICKLE FACTORY.

At the meeting Saturday night it was reported that a new pickle factory is nearly ready to begin operations, and that a number of local millers are preparing to turn out breakfast cereals. The tanneries which have long been closed are talking of reopening, and will probably do so in the near future, their intention being to supply leather for home manufactured boots and shoes. The most recent additions to the association are as follows: Sal Sickle, George G. Doyle & Co., D. A. Wood, Century Printing Co., Templeton Cleaning Co., Oriental Cleaning Co., Salt Lake Huddart & Co., L. L. Mudge, Woods Cross Canning & Pickling Co., and Holman, Payne & Co.

PRESS REMINDER.

The "News," the Herald, the Tribune, and the Telegram, were remembered at the Saturday evening meeting of the association by being presented with honorary memberships. Engrossed copies of the certificates, framed, will be presented to them in recognition of their work in helping along the home industry campaign.

LOS ANGELES BOOSTS "SEE AMERICA" SCHEME.

The following letter from the secretary of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce was received Saturday evening, at the Salt Lake Commercial club: "I scarcely need say that I heartily approve the spirit and plan of the 'See America First' movement, and congratulate you, your organization and Salt Lake City on the conception of the enterprise, and upon the manner in which you have taken it up. There is everything to gain, and I had almost added that there is nothing to lose by entering upon such a patriotic campaign. Whatever may be the measure of the practical results achieved in a direct way, the educational effects can never be entirely lost, and they will produce favorable impressions along widely diverging lines. The more I study the object and plan of the 'See America First' campaign, the more I am impressed with its magnitude, its possibilities and its necessities. That is why I qualify the statement that there is nothing to lose. Because in so much as we fail to take advantage of these possibilities just so much will be lost. Therefore it will be necessary to do something more than merely to induce the people to travel in their own country, in order to produce the best and most lasting results. There is no doubt but that a great deal of enthusiasm can be aroused by a well-managed, intelligently-conducted campaign. The work will be much easier than it would have been say 10 or 20 years ago. Americans have a better conception of the beauty and grandeur of their own country. It is a great deal easier for them to see it now than it was at that time.

"It will be comparatively easy, too, to arouse the interest and enthusiasm of the people of the west, and to convince them of the importance of the movement which means so much to them. There is a great deal more of the priceless essential we call public enterprise in the west than there is in the east, and more than that it is to our interest that we do this thing. Then there are the auxiliary agencies—like the railroads—which may be depended upon for much of the work. We have a good working basis, and the Salt Lake convention should start the ball rolling in splendid shape. I would like to suggest, however, that the work will not be done when we get that far. It will not be done when the new tidal wave of travel from the east to the west is set in motion. When we reach that stage the job will be about half done, with the hardest part yet untouched. In other words, we are making an appeal which is on the same plane with asking people to patronize home industry. We have got to deliver the goods or fall short on the patronage. The people will 'patronize home industry,' other things being equal, provided they are educated up to it. But they will insist upon as good or better than they can obtain elsewhere.

"To put the matter another way, and metaphorically speaking, we have got to be prepared to 'handle the crop' properly. We've got the raw material, there's no doubt about that. But as we prepare, say as Europe is prepared, to receive the tourist hosts which we shall expect as a result of our educational movement? I am speaking now, of course, of the west as a whole. It will not do to get all those people out here to view our scenic wonders and to note our marvelous growth and development, and then leave them to their own devices. They will be looking for defects and shortcomings as well as for climate and scenery. It will not do to say to them: 'Here are our mountains, our seashores, our waterfalls, and our prairies; make yourselves at home and enjoy yourselves; we'd be glad to show you around and explain every thing, but really, we have not the time.'"

"We want those people to see something else besides our scenic wonders. We don't want them to see a country that is only 'half-baked' as to the things which they regard as essentials, we don't want to show them a country that is down to the heels covered with weeds. We want to show them a country that we have not had the time to dress it properly. We want to interest them in our resources, our opportunities and our possibilities, so that they will stay above all things else to stay with us, to invest their money with us, to do business with us, and in the best and most complete sense of the term, to become one of us. Then they will enjoy themselves, which is better than if we give them only natural attractions for their delectation and their money's worth. We must be prepared for them. This will require a vast deal of hard work, work that should be done in advance of the actual tourist-drawing movement. I believe that this phase of the subject should figure very largely in the convention to be held in your city, and my earnest belief must be my excuse for this obvious preachment. The plan grows bigger and bigger the more it is considered. You may, of course, count on my hearty co-operation. Yours very truly,

"FRANK WIGGINS."

FUNERAL OF MRS. PIKE.

Services Held Sunday Afternoon from Daughter's Residence.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary R. Pike was held yesterday afternoon from the 1 street residence of her daughter, Mrs. Amelia Young. Among the speakers were Elders Seymour B. Young, Levi Young and Joseph E. Taylor, the latter having been acquainted with the deceased for 55 years. The twenty-first ward quartet furnished fine music, and there were many beautiful floral tributes. The burial was in the city cemetery.

"HUNTERS" ARRAIGNED.

Alleged Conspirators Waive Hearing And Are Bound Over.

Judge Doherty's time was taken up this morning with arraignments of state cases. Judge Ruggie and H. Rumsey, alleged to be associates of the "mighty hunters," were arraigned on the charge of conspiracy by representing that they had killed numerous wild animals. The defendants were represented by Judge Booth. Preliminary hearing was waived and the accused were held to answer to the district court. Their bail was placed at $200 each. T. Harry Jones and "Dr." J. C. Douglass, pleaded not guilty to the charge of issuing a fraudulent check for $25. The case was not set as the attorneys could not agree upon a date. George Burke, charged with burglarizing a box car belonging to the O. S. L. company, pleaded not guilty and his hearing set for Jan. 17.

A JOYOUS CHRISTMAS.

Evanston Had One Because Gambling Houses Were Closed.

The following from the Evanston News Register is in line with the new view of gambling now spreading over the entire west: "Commercially the last was the greatest Christmas Evanston ever saw. The dry goods merchants, the furniture dealers in toys and notions, the jewelers, one and all, sold more goods than ever in their history.

"Why? The answer is not far to seek. The hardworking railroad man has earned splendid wages, and he took his wife and family home to his wife only a few days before Christmas. There was no clicking roulette ball, no green cloth gaudiness to tempt him that could not withstand temptation.

"He who months before had given his faithful wife barely enough to pay household bills, or nothing, or invented lies for her about the pay car taking his check on through, or the officials making a mistake in his time, this pay day gave her $75, $100 or $125, because the green cloth and the roulette wheel were not here with grasp and green to gulp it all.

"And what did the good wife do? She paid the rent—and some that was back. She went to the stores. She remembered the kind and generous husband and the furniture dealers were busy hauling easy chairs and comfortable couches to homes where such comforts had not found way before. She bought better Christmas dinners. She found better shoes and stockings and furs and mits and toys before unthought of because she did not have money to buy.

"The house was loaded with Christmas things. The store was sold out practically clean. We sold barrels of these things this year. Was a comment remark of the merchants. The merchant got hundreds of dollars that would have gone over the wheel into the gambler's net, and furnished a few days' orgies in the slums of a city in the valley or on the coast. The merchant got the money, the housewife, the children, the man himself got the goods."

BURGLAR GOT NOTHING.

Mistook Innocent Tin Box for One Containing Valuables.

A sneak thief, provided with a skeleton key, entered the studio of Anton Pederson in the Commercial club building last night and made good his attempt to break into a small tin box struck the fancy of the burglar who probably thought the box contained valuables. The box was taken out and broken open, but as there was no money or anything else of value except to Mr. Pederson, the burglar left the box in the doorway.

It was found about 2 o'clock this morning by Officer Galtbraun who took it to the station. This morning Mr. Pederson called at headquarters and regained his battered property.

SPEAKS ON AIR CASTLES.

Unitarian Minister Ridicules Doctrine Of Vicarious Atonement.

In his sermon on theological air castles yesterday morning, in the First Unitarian church, Rev. Frank Fay Eddy said in part:

"O wonderful mind of man. To itself an enigma and ever fashioning for itself new words and twisting old puzzles into new forms. No man in religion than anywhere else is it its destiny to remain satisfied and questioning. Why should we content ourselves in the old air castles? Why try to perpetuate the Jewish Yahweh? Why try to segregate the little fragment of literature contained in the Bible and call it sacred? Why accept that curious combination of the ideas of the Alexandrians and the Jewish idea of sacrifice that is the doctrine of vicarious atonement in Christianity? What are they but shadow forms, impermanent ideas?

"Have no fear because the minds of men are leaving this theological air castle. We are outgrowing this phase of faith, we must have new concepts. It has taken us a long while to get away from the geo-centric conception of things and the little idea of God that went with it. At last we are beginning to realize what it means to live in a universe and our God must grow to satisfy our minds and all expressions of our religious impulses must sound a more universal note. Therefore we are deserting the old systems of religious thought that I have called theological air castles. They have a natural place in the past; they still have inhabitants in the present; but to the future I doubt if they will be more than the deserted air castles of religion."

"We have apparently arrived at the end of an epoch in religious history and the time has arrived when thinking men are constrained to build for themselves new religious houses of ideas for a habitation of faith. The noblest personalities of modern life can find little spiritual satisfaction in the ideas of our fathers. Even when they profess nominal allegiance to the faith of their fathers they browse far afield to satisfy the spiritual cravings of their nature. It is difficult to say just what theological reconstruction will take place but certainly the deep hunger is for a faith that is inclusive of all that is natural and universal."

WANTS A NEW TRIAL.

Wm. R. Jones Makes Such a Motion in Tribune Libel Case.

An attempt is being made by William R. Jones, Jr., superintendent of the county infirmary, to secure a new trial of his libel suit against the Tribune and to that end he has filed a motion for a new trial in the district court. He sued the Tribune, Joseph Lippman and Frank J. Seifert for $125,000 damages because of the publication of certain alleged libelous articles concerning his management of the affairs of the county infirmary. The jury returned a verdict in favor of defendants.

Mr. Jones now moves the court to set aside the verdict of the jury and grant him a new trial on the following grounds: Irregularity and misconduct on the part of the defendants in publishing and circulating during the progress of the trial newspapers in which unfair, partial, unjust and sensational comment were published and circulated among the jurors trying the case and the public generally, thereby prejudicing the minds of the jury and the public against this plaintiff and his witnesses and thus preventing the plaintiff from having a fair and impartial hearing and trial in said case, all of which will more fully appear from affidavits to be filed in support of his grounds for a new trial.

Insufficiency of evidence to support the verdict. Insufficiency of evidence and a total want of evidence to sustain the perjury charged by the defendants against the plaintiff. Insufficiency of evidence and a total want of evidence to sustain the plea of justification of perjury. Errors in law occurring at the trial and duly excepted to by the plaintiff. Errors in giving certain instructions to the jury, to which the plaintiff excepted.

Errors in refusing to give certain instructions requested by the plaintiff, and to which refusal exception was duly noted.

followed the above were given. Always be honest, upright and fair; never try to do some deceitful act and then hide the head like the ostrich in the sand. Ponder and think of what is right, and do it and not juggle with that which is not truthful and upright. In the boys' section Dr. Silver addressed about 50 upon "Looking Forward." The boys were attentive listeners to the advice given them about forming new resolutions and sticking to them always.

The complaint alleges that plaintiff, who is eight years of age, attempted to pass between the tracks of a freight train which was obstructing the street crossing, when the train was suddenly started and he was thrown down and the wheels of one car passed over his right leg, severing that member from his body. It is claimed that the boy was assured by a brakeman that the train would not start for 20 minutes and hence he tried to pass between the cars.

EXPANSION OF SOUTHERN TRADE.

The wonderful industrial progress made by the South in the year just closed, is emphasized by the fact that the Southland leads all the rest of the country in the proportion of banks established, as shown by recent reports of the United States Treasury Department.

Promoters of such enterprises never locate in an unprosperous, unprogressive community. That fact in itself is a recognition of the progress being made in all industrial lines, and the development of these industries, vast though they have been, are in a measure small, as compared with what could have been accomplished if the means were at hand of giving the proper sort of publicity to the various enterprises. The latter need has demonstrated to one of the largest general advertising agencies the importance of maintaining a thoroughly equipped office on the ground.

Nelson Chesman & Co., of St. Louis, General Newspaper and Magazine Advertising Agents, have established a branch office at Chattanooga, Tenn., and will do a general newspaper and magazine advertising business throughout the South. In these days of rapid-fire service distance counts immensely, and the location selected for this latest branch of the Chesman Agency not only facilitates the work of securing desirable contracts but also insures quick and unusually efficient distribution of copy for customers in distant parts of the country.

With their organization they present a splendid medium for the promotion of southern trade, expanding it in home and carrying it into new territory, and accordingly invite the accounts of responsible concerns, and the record of the Agency fully justifies an acceptance of their invitation.
