

FOUND DROWNED IN JORDAN RIVER.

Carrie Haggum, Domestic in Employ of Supt. Masters of U. S. Smelter, the Victim.

MURDER OR SUICIDE, WHICH?

Was Missing on Saturday When She Walked Out of the House Never To Return.

The finding of a dead body of a woman in Jordan river yesterday morning promises to develop into a mystery that has as its solution a cold blooded murder or a suicide. The residents of West Jordan are divided in their opinion as to the cause of death, one faction taking one side and another the other.

Carrie Haggum, a domestic in the employ of the household of Supt. Masters of the U. S. smelter at West Jordan, on Saturday afternoon mysteriously disappeared from the house. Two boys who were out shooting yesterday morning discovered her body wedged against the piles of the Rio Grande bridge that crosses Jordan river. She had undoubtedly met her death by drowning.

On Saturday morning the woman complained that she did not feel in the best of health and she lay down during the morning. Upon the return of Mrs. Masters, however, she was up and around, preparing dinner. Mrs. Masters congratulated her and asked her how she was feeling whereupon she received the answer that she (Carrie Haggum) never felt better in her life. The woman was bright and cheerful and Mrs. Masters went upstairs to change her street attire. Upon coming down again the servant was nowhere to be seen. Search was made for her and there were parties out looking for her until 11 o'clock on Saturday night. Yesterday morning her body was found as related. The body was in a bent position when taken from the river, but there were no marks of violence upon her.

An attempt to communicate with Mr. Masters today by telephone for further details to throw some light on the mystery was only productive of the statement that "the matter better be kept out of the papers."

DEAD IN HIS BATHROOM.

Sad Termination of the Career of Cornelius Harrington.

Cornelius Harrington, of the Trenchard-Harrington Furniture & Carpet company, was found dead in a private pool at the Warm Springs on Saturday afternoon about 5:30 o'clock. He had evidently been dead for an hour or more, as he entered the pool at 2:30 o'clock and that was the last time he was seen alive. Upon entering the pool he turned Mrs. Barnes, the proprietress, that he would probably be in the water for some time and that he did not want to be disturbed.

Nothing more was thought of him until about 5:30 o'clock when, feeling that something was wrong, Mrs. Barnes had one of the attendants get a ladder and look over the partition. The attendant was unable to see Mr. Harrington, so with the assistance of Atty. C. S. Patterson, who was bathing in the large pool, the door to the private pool was forced open. The body of Mr. Harrington was found in the bottom of the pool. It was removed and the police were at once notified and the body was then taken to Hall's undertaking parlors.

Mr. Harrington was about 35 years of age and was born in Nebraska. He came to this city about three years ago and was employed by a large mercantile establishment here until about a year ago, when he engaged in the furniture business. He was unmarried and leaves three brothers and a sister, who have been notified of his death. One of his brothers will arrive in the city today and take the remains back to Nebraska for burial. Mr. Harrington had been in ill health for several days and had been taking treatment at the Keogh-Wright hospital. On Saturday he left the hospital and said that he would try the baths. It is presumed that the hot water overcame him and he fainted and was drowned.

Amusements

At the Grand tonight the entirely new play "The Hills of California" will open its engagement. The statement that this play had been seen here before was an error. The drama entitled "California" rendered at the Grand last spring, was an entirely different play and company. The Denver Times gives "The Hills of California" a strong recommendation.

The concert at the Grand by Held's band last night was as usually highly attended. The band scored a good impression, and the vocalist of the evening, Miss Price was heartily applauded for her work.

ADMITTED HER WRONG.

Woman Illegally Registered Weepingly Tells Her Story.

It is a well known fact that there has been a great deal of illegal registration work. One specific case is cited. A woman, who works in a well known business house and who came here in February from the east, took the oath that she had been here a year. She informed the man who was interested in securing her registration that she had not been here long enough to vote. He told her that the period of time cut little or no account, of course the illegal act was detected when the woman broke down and wept, saying, "Well, I did no more than half a dozen of the girls who came here since I did." The matter was brought to the attention of County Atty. Westervelt, who has had the matter under consideration since Saturday night for reasons best known to himself has thus far refused to issue a warrant although pressed to do so. The disposition of those who are looking into that and another similar charge is that the woman should not be punished as severely as the man who induced her to register and the registrar who is said to have been familiar with the facts.

REPUBLICAN RALLY.

Five Speakers Talk to Big Audience in Theater on Saturday Night.

The Republican rally at the Salt Lake Theater under the auspices of the Young Men's Republican club on Saturday night brought out a good crowd. A. F. Lawson of the Viking league was master of ceremonies and introduced the speakers of which there were five. Earlier in the evening there was a parade, headed by a band, and enlivened by a shotgun brigade and fireworks, which had the effect of drumming up a big crowd.

Senator Kearns was present at the meeting and occupied a box. It is stated that he was asked to speak but begged to be excused. The prominent speakers from a political standpoint, were Hon. Frank Knox, the candidate for mayor, and Hon. James T. Hammond, secretary of state. The business interests of the city were represented by Louis Cohn, and the labor unions were championed by P. E. Hart, president of the Building Trades council. The other speakers were George L. Nye, candidate for city attorney, and Attorney Joseph E. Frick. Ex-Congressman George Sutherland was invited to give the address but declined on account of not being in harmony with recent convention work. City Attorney Nye was the first speaker. He painted a picture of the present state of the Republic and incidentally scored the Democrats. Mr. Hart, as a laboring man, stated that he had been a life long Republican, and urged all within the sound of his voice to vote the Republican ticket straight tomorrow. Louis Cohn spoke to some length and during his speech asserted that the election of a Democratic mayor would mean that the state would go Democratic next year.

Mr. Knox was greeted with applause when introduced. He made a stirring speech and asserted that he was for no class legislation and was not entangled by any pledges or promises as to individuals. He also affirmed that he believed that taxation should be equal; that it should be levied on all persons and property alike and that there should be no discrimination. Secretary of State Hammond took the floor as his theme at the outset and then went on to outline what the Republican party had done in general and for the West in particular.

The last speaker, Joseph E. Frick, compared the merits of the Republican and Democratic parties from the standpoint of a Republican and in conclusion held that the Democratic party could not amount to anything starting anywhere.

Ringed Noises

In the ears (how disagreeable they are!) become chronic and cause much uneasiness, and even temporary distraction.

They are signs of catarrh; other signs are droppings in the throat, nasal sounds of the voice, impaired taste, smell and hearing.

Catarrh is a constitutional disease, originating in impure blood, and requires a constitutional remedy.

"I suffered from catarrh in the head and loss of appetite and sleep. My blood was thin and I felt bad all over most of the time. I decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla and now have no symptoms of catarrh, have a good appetite, and sleep well. I heartily recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all my friends." R. Lora, California Junction, Iowa.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over twenty years and tried various remedies without finding a cure. Seeing statements of cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla I resolved to try it and four bottles entirely cured me. I have never been troubled with catarrh since, and at the age of 74 years, an enjoying excellent health." WILLIAM SHREMAN, 1030 6th St., Milwaukee, Wis.

BATTLE BETWEEN INDIANS AND POSSE IN WYOMING.

In South Dakota and were violating the game laws of the state.

The sheriff's posse rounded up the redskins Saturday, and demanded their surrender. The Sioux, who were from the Pine Ridge agency, opened fire and a sharp fight ensued, in which Fossenberg was instantly killed and Sheriff Miller mortally wounded, dying half an hour later. His body was brought to Newcastle for the remainder of the posse this morning. Members of the posse report that at least six Indians were killed and several wounded, among the latter being Chief Eagle Feather, who is being brought here a prisoner.

A new and large posse has started after the Indians who are in the country surrounding the scene of the first fight and another battle is expected if the Indians again refuse to surrender.

GOVERNOR WAITS INFORMATION.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 2.—Gov. Chatterton is waiting for additional information before ordering troops to the scene of the trouble with the Indians. The governor has called on the commissioner of Indian affairs to assist in bringing the murderers to justice. He will also insist that no more Indians be permitted to leave their reservations to hunt in Wyoming. Under the law every Indian outside of "the state must take out a gun license which costs $50 and go with a professional guide when they hunt. It is held that every Indian who fails to do this violates the laws and the general government as guardian of the red men is responsible to the state for the payment of the license.

The present trouble has been brewing for a long time and now that the Indians are aroused it is feared there will be a serious outbreak before they are made to understand that the laws must be respected.

(Special to the "News.")

Washington, D. C., Nov. 2.—The commissioner of Indian affairs has received a letter from Senator Warren asking for information, in which he says he has received, from reliable sources, news of an alleged outbreak among the Crow Indians, Wyo. Commissioner Jones says that the department has not received any news whatsoever of that character and that he believes they are only rumors which are sent out every once in a while.

(Special to the "News.")

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 2.—Rosebud agency is swarming with Indian rangers who are determined that no one shall escape. Eagle Feather had several times sent word to Sheriff Miller that he would not be taken, the Carlisle graduate being well educated as he said and having a knowledge of law and the rights of Indians, he was an old offender having been under the ban of the authorities for several years. Sheriff Miller's last words as he lay on the battlefield, his head supported on the arm of brave Jim Davis, one of his trusted deputies was "Tell my wife and babies, Jim," he could say no more. He tried to utter other words but death came.

W. S. McCornick returned yesterday afternoon from California, where he has been in attendance on the convention of the American Bankers' association. Mr. McCornick says that the remark at the convention was one of confidence in present security and reasonable anticipation of a future free from commercial panics. The water had been squeezed out of an enormous aggregation of inflated stocks, and a hard pan basis had been reached, so that the financial operations of the country may be conducted on a more reliable understanding of just what existing conditions are.
