THE ROSS ABDUCTION CASE.

THE interest in this extraordinary case, which had subsided in a great degree, until very recently, has now been revived by reason of some de-rogatory statements concerning the Ross family, and the denial of the same under oath by Mr. Ross. The dispatches in the News yesterday stated that the twenty thousand dollars reward for the discovery of the Ross child and its abductors was still in force.

A Germantown correspondent of the Reading Eagle, professing to be a neighbor of Christian R. Ross, the father of the child, wrote to that paper, Sept. It, that Ross was a debauchee and a bankrupt, that his wife had left him and had the child in her enstedy, and that another woman took her place in the family and still kept it. The correspondent continued thus—

"Some months before the kidnapping, Mr. Ross received letters from the first and only wife, asking and demanding the children. It will be recollected that even up to this time he had refused to show any of the letters he received, and it will also be borne in mind that the attempt was made to steal both the children. It was not until three days after the kidnapping that the fact was made public, and at that time the child was safely in the hands of its mother or its friends in the West. We think Mr. Ross knows now, and always did know, where his child is, but refained from making it public for many reasons. As regards the advertisement, the blackmalling note, etc., we think they are all forgeries, written either by Ross himself or his friends, intended to divert attention from the facts."

This communication was extensive the reason. There are two sets of force of the tree; the context of the reason. There are two sets of the reason the soil for the use of the tree; the other of the roots, which extend and keep the tree in position, affording at the same time channels for the conveyance of the matter absorbed by the fibres.

This communication was extensively copied in the public papers.
The Germantown Telegraph of Sept. chill had the following—owide a space in the newspapers, it is now generally believed—and was by many at the beginning—that no thieves or sharpers, for the sake of ransom, had any hand in it at all; in a word, that no crime was committed, and that the boy is not harmed or likely to be. If such is the fact then somebody has incurred a responsibility to the cemmunity which will not be easily got rid of."

Shade and Forest Trees. SPRING CITY, Sept. 6, 1874. Editor Deseret News:

Will you please publish, at earliest convenience, the best kind of shade or ornamental trees, and most prefitable, in your judgment, to cultivate in the valleys of Utah, combining thriftiness of growth, quality of timber, beauty and cleanliness of the tree?

By answering the foregoing through the NEWS, you will confer a great favor upon me, and per-haps upon many others of the read-ers of your valuable paper. Trees also for forests of many acres. The rapid decrease of our native timber naturally suggests inquiries of the foregoing kind. Very truly, Your friend and brother,

OF PROPER SOIL. Each kind of tree has a peculiarly its own. In that soil it will do better than any other tree.
The subject, then, is one of some moment.
Science may some day explain this with exactness. Practice and ex-

Lauras—Sassafras. One of the most interesting trees that can be in the landscape. The glaucous green of the foliage is so uncommon, and is one of the first to aid in forming that beautiful picture of autumnal forest scenery which has so emaptured European travellers, and gives the American landscape. Paulomia imperiatis.—The only known species is a native of Japan, and thrives admirably in America. It is as rapid a grower as the allanthus, the wood and trunk of the tree also resembling it. The leaves are rather coarse, looking like large melon leaves; but the beauty of the large clusters of sky blue flowers, which appear in June, covers all blemishes. It will thrive in any good loam. It would make an interesting street tree.

Populus dilitata—Lombardy Pop-lar. A well known and formerly very popular tree, on account of its easy and rapid growth and singular fastigiate appearance. In the Fall the leaves turn to a rich, golden yellow hue, equalled by few other Ulmus Americana - American Elm. This fine tree is very popular in many of the northern States, and deservedly so, for few trees can compare with it in the easy gracefulness of its appearance. It is essentially a round headed tree and when old frequently becomes quite pendulus. Propagated by seed, sown as soon as ripe, in May.
