AFTERNOON SESSION.

Permanent Officers Take Reins—Stirring Speeches Made.

When the permanent chairman, N. T. Porter, assumed the chair at the opening of the afternoon session, he thanked the convention for the honor of being selected as its presiding officer and in a short speech declared that his position was firm, believing that Democrats should stand firm even when they are in the minority. He then called for the report of the committee on platform, the committee was not needed, as the permanent officers were called upon to speak, but not being present, B. H. Roberts was found on the convention floor and escorted to the stage. Mr. Roberts made a brief speech, confining his remarks to five minutes time. What he did say was in eulogy of W. J. Bryan and an endorsement of the principles of Democracy.

Mr. Roberts was followed by William H. King and Mr. King will be followed by Judge Powers.

PERMANENT ORGANIZATION.

M. T. Porter Selected as Chairman—John Herrick for Secretary.

The committee on permanent organization rendered its report to the convention as the order of business of the afternoon session. N. T. Porter was named as permanent chairman with the following as vice chairmen: Thomas Judt, D. M. Miller, G. C. Whittemore, George H. Derr, J. H. McDonald and Mrs. H. J. Hayward. John Herrick was selected by the committee as secretary.

AMUSEMENTS.

Theater—A tremendous audience that recorded over the $1,200 mark in the box office, came out last night to welcome back an old favorite, Mr. Henry Miller. His play was "The Great Divide" which for several seasons past has been so widely discussed in the newspaper and magazine world, being as bitterly assailed on one side as it has been highly praised on the other. Salt Lake's opinion will be divided like that of other communities where Mr. Moody's wonderful creation has been seen, for wonderful it is in spite of what can be said against it. Moody is a master of English, and his dialogue, his story, and the big idea back of the title of the piece—for "The Great Divide" refers to the moral chasm between the man and the woman in the play, even more than to the locality where the action is laid—indicate the scholar and poet. That the theme on which the play is built is a revolting one, even Mr. Moody's warmest admirers cannot deny, and even the points which he endeavors to make that it was fate or providence that brought the man and the woman together, the moral awakening of the man, his repentance, and the good done by the woman, strong as they are, cannot efface from the minds of the audience, the memory of the shock which the earlier episodes of the play impart.

The rendition of the play was wholly admirable. We look back over Mr. Miller's long train of successes, since the day he visited us "The Wife," "Held By the Enemy," "Shenandoah," "Sowing the Wind," and a host of other notable creations, and we can see season by season how he has gone on climbing. His work as Stephen, quiet, unassuming, intensely magnetic, throughout, will be ranked as one of his finest endeavors. Indeed, nothing in all of his career has equalled the strength he gives to that superb finish of the second act, where his figure, silhouetted against that wonderful sky line, stands out as he breaks down in grief when his wife takes her brother's hand and leaves the terrible web behind her. The manner in which he held the attention of the audience during the long stretches when he was apparently doing nothing on the stage, and when the business called for only the quietest and most suppressed emotion, was a rare tribute to his powers.

Very excellently was he supported, Miss Edith Olive, while she is not a Margaret Anglin, filled her very trying role with care and intelligence. Mrs. Whiffen had a warm reception on her entrance and did some rarely fine dramatic work in her brief role. Laura Hope Crews was charming throughout in the part of Polly and an old friend, Charles Wyngate, did the part of the brother very capably.

The scenic settings were effective throughout. The second act with its beautiful stretch of sky and the old house on the hill, was a marvel of the painter's art.

"The Great Divide" runs through the week with a Saturday matinee.

KILLED UNDER ELEVATOR

Edward Prudence, Fifty-Five Years of Age, Meets Death While Working in Judge Building.

Neglect to look out for a descending elevator, after he had been repeatedly warned, resulted in the instant death at 11:30 this morning of Edward Prudence, aged 55, of Park City, at the Judge building. Prudence, who is an old time resident of the Park, was unable to find work at home, so he came here, and for the last six weeks had been employed at the Judge building, now fast approaching completion. He was in the habit of hiding his shovel in the pit of the west elevator, and when not using it, and at the hour named, was on the cellar floor. Prudence wanted his shovel to clean up some rubbish for removal to the street, and stepped to the edge of the pit to get it, as the elevator came swiftly down. Lee Edwards, the elevator boy, of course, did not know what was going on underneath, and as usual, dropped his cage into the basement. The floor of the cage struck Prudence as he was rising after picking up his shovel, crushing the right side of his head to a pulp, and breaking his neck.

Fellow workmen called to the elevator boy, and rushed to the pit, but on removing Prudence, he was found to have been instantly killed. The body was removed to O'Donnell's morgue, and the undertaker wired the two sons of the deceased at Park City. They will be here this evening. Prudence leaves a wife, daughter and two sons at the Park, where he was an engineer at the Ontario mine. The accident occasioned considerable commotion in the building, but no blame is attached to any of the workmen, as warnings had been given to all employees having business in the cellar, to look out for the elevator.

The temporary absence of protective wire netting around the elevator shafts during the completion of the interior of the building, makes special care imperative for people having business in or around the elevators. One man stood on the fifth floor today, looking down the shaft, when the cage came up and struck him, knocking him back into the hallway senseless. Had the cage been running at full speed, the man would probably have been killed.

CONVENTION STARTS TODAY

Primary Officers of Various Associations in Various Stakes in Session.

THIS MORNING'S EXERCISES.

Among the Features Was the Singing of the Children and Addresses by Officers.

The officers of the Primary Association of the different stakes, convened in the Salt Lake Assembly hall at 10 o'clock this morning. The lower portion of the building was well filled with ladies representing the Primary work and the children already made, the singing being conducted by the Primary chorister of Boxelder stake. The first song, sung by the congregation, was "Be in Time." A prayer was offered by Elder John C. Sharp.

After roll call of the stakes and the reading of the annual reports, a group of Primary choristers sang "Days of Summer Glory."

Counselor Clara Beebe, gave a welcoming address to the Primary officers. President Louis B. Felt had been appointed to give this address, but feeling unequal to the undertaking, Mrs. Beebe took the responsibility upon short notice.

A little girl from Boxelder stake sang, from the Primary song book, an appropriate song.

Mrs. Little T. Freeze spoke to the meeting upon the subject of "Loyalty." Aurelia S. Rogers made a brief speech, following the same subject. Mrs. Freeze had spoken to, emphasizing some of the points already made, and expressing tender interest and love for the Primary work and workers everywhere.

President Louis W. Shortliff of the Weber stake addressed the meeting, giving much credit and encouragement to those engaged in the Primary work.

Prest. Louis B. Felt apologized to the congregation for the weakness which had prevented her taking her allotted part in the program, and then made an address of welcome and instruction to her co-workers in the Primaries.

Elder John C. Sharp, a member of the high council of the Ensign stake, one appointed by the stake presidency, to visit the Primaries, associations in that stake, spoke of the pleasure and satisfaction he, with his companion, Elder John C. Cutler, Jr., took in visiting the Primaries in their labors, and gave high commendation to the ladies who labor so earnestly.

Elder Albert Love of the Jordan stake spoke briefly of some of his experiences in Sabbath school.

Counselor May Anderson gave some instructions and notices in regard to future features of the convention.

The congregation sang "In Our Love, We Deseret." Mrs. Ida B. Smith dismissed the meeting with prayer.

At the afternoon session a lecture on "Discipline" was given by President Seymour B. Young.

DEATH OF MISSIONARY.

Elder Avert Lucious Hale of Perry, Idaho, Succumbs to Typhoid.

Avert Lucious Hale, an elder laboring in the Central States mission, died of typhoid at St. Joseph hospital, Independence, Mo., last night. Word reached this city in the form of a telegram from S. O. Bennion, president of the mission, to the president's office.

The deceased missionary lived at Perry, Bannock county, Idaho, and was the son of Jonathan H. Hale and Eliza Clegg Hale of Mound Valley, Idaho. He was born Sept. 19, 1887 and was set apart for his mission Sept. 17, 1907.

His relatives are now on their way this morning and the body will be taken to Idaho for interment.

TRY TO FORCE ISSUE.

Defeated in Large District, "Americans" Divide It for New Plan.

A scheme to defeat the will of the taxpayers in the matter of repaving Main street is said to be the object of peculiarly active operations being carried on by members of the "American" contingent of the city council, and even said to include Mayor Bransford.

It will be remembered that a resolution passed by the city council to resurface Main street from South Temple to Fourth South street was presented to property owners along the street, and was overwhelmingly defeated. It was deemed by the owners that times were not propitious for shouldering the vast expense which resurfacing would entail, just after the passing of the financial stringency, when most every business enterprise was struggling to get on its feet again; and in view of the fact, also, that the city treasury is without funds and could not carry its portion unless private citizens agreed to carry the expense for a year or two.

Notwithstanding the protest of the property owners along the street against the proposition to repave, "Mayor Bransford and others have been peculiarly active" in interviewing business men and property owners on the street between Second South and Fourth South streets, with the alleged object of cramming down the throats of the taxpayers the expense of repaving the two blocks named, regardless of their protest. The plan to resurface the street was objected to by owners of all varieties of political belief, "Americans" being just as emphatic in their protest as anyone else. But the proposed segregation of the street into sections looks like an attempt to place the expense of paving the street on to the owners whether they will or no.

WEATHER TALK.

The fine weather is still here, with more of the same sort in view for the next two days. Maximum temperatures are not very high over the country, except in Arizona. The low barometric pressure continues over the plateau, extending northeast to central Canada, causing precipitation over portions of Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, South Dakota, Manitoba and the British Northwest territory. Heavy rains are reported at North Platte, Omaha and Winnipeg. Precipitation is also reported over portions of the Ohio valley and Atlantic states. Over the North Pacific states, lake region and Alberta the barometric pressure is high, causing fair weather over most of that district. The north Pacific high pressure will cause continued fair weather in this locality tonight and Saturday.

The level of the great lake still keeps rising, so that it is now at 4 ft. above the zero mark, and with still even better things to hope for.

George Austin acted as master of ceremonies and he stated briefly that 40 years ago this summer Father and Mother Austin were on their way to Utah, having crossed the Atlantic with the first body of emigrants that came over in steamship, and crossed the plains in the last company that traveled by wagon.

After partaking of a fine dinner, an impromptu program was given. Mr. Thomas R. Cutler being the first speaker. He recalled many interesting facts about the life of the state, with the Austin family at Lehi, and paid a high tribute to the memory of "Father" and "Mother" Austin as to their integrity, honesty and to the great work they had done in assisting in the development of the state. He referred briefly to what the Austin boys had done and are doing in making the best sugar industry a success both in Utah and Idaho.
