FORTY-SIXTH CONGRESS

CONGRESSIONAL

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, 22.—The army bill was placed on the calendar. The morning hour expired and the army bill was again considered.

Withers said the bill as it came from the House did not suit the committee exactly, yet the session being so far advanced and only the appropriation bill being passed, the committee did not amend or alter it.

The bill was read.

Blaine moved to strike out the second section, providing that no military appropriation is to be paid for the subsistence or transportation of troops at the polls for a police force on election day, but only to protect against domestic violence on the part of the officers or the Governor, rejected, 28 to 20, a party vote.

Blaine moved to add to the section a fine of from $500 to $5,000, and punishment by imprisonment from six months to five years on whenever carries deadly weapons to the polls at a congressional election.

Withers claimed that it was out of order, being new legislation.

The chair ruled that it was general legislation.

Blaine held that it was germane, and that year it had been so declared by the chair. He made a constitutional argument in favor of the admission of his amendment, claiming that the chair in his ruling was virtually saying to the Senate that it must pass bills precisely as they come from the House or not at all.

The chair held to his ruling because of the rules being imperative.

Edmunds sustained the ruling of the chair, and in conformity therewith offered the following amendment:

Nor shall this section be held to apply to any case in which the employment of the military power of the United States is authorized by the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof. Rejected. Yeas 18, nays 27.

Kirkwood offered the following:

Provided, further, that nothing in this provision shall be construed to prevent the use of troops when necessary to enforce the lawful execution of any law of the United States, or to prevent the use of troops when necessary to protect the property of the United States, or to protect the property of the United States, or to protect the property of the United States, or to protect the property of the United States, or to protect the

AMERICAN.

A Row in the West Point Examinations.

WEST POINT, 22.—Lewis Simpson, a colored friend of Whitaker, testified he had laughed at Whitaker for suggesting that the note of the committee should be shown to the Commandant. Witnesses thought

Whitaker was unjustly treated; he thought the officers and cadets were prejudiced, but never saw anything wrong on the part of the officers.

Mitchell (colored) testified he had heard of the three colored cadets threatening to fix Whitaker. The examination of the entire corps of cadets took place on Monday.

Some sensation was caused by the questioning of Cadet McDonald, who was suspended for striking Whitaker two occasions, which shows Whitaker did not resist. When asked whether it was a rule that a cadet must fight when struck, Mc-Donald replied that the rule prohibited him from striking.

Townsend said, sarcastically, "Except in the case of a colored cadet."

Freeman (colored) indignantly protested against these remarks on the floor of the academy.

Townsend said he wished it understood that he was not afraid to strike.

The court then retired, and Gen.

Scotfield, who had been a witness of the whole scene, and who was apparently laboring under great excitement, stepped up to Townsend and remarked most emphatically, "I think you are very much mistaken if you think that we do not teach, or ought not to teach a boy to resist a color who has been beaten."

He then said that he would not desire that opinion to go upon the records and be judged in Washington. They may teach that in the Bible, but they do not teach it here.

General Scott then retired, and refused to listen to Townsend's rejoinder.

Mr. Townsend was then addressed by Lieutenant Keith, caused by Whitaker, in these words: "I don't think there is anything to justify your sitting here and insulting us because we are colored. We are here to learn, and we are not to be in-sulted by you. We will not listen against it to anyone."

The court then came in and read the following statement: "The Court finds that the following statement is correct: 'I don't think there is anything to justify your sitting here and insulting us because we are colored.

We are here to learn, and we are not to be insulted by you. We will not listen against it to anyone."

The court then retired, and Gen.
