DIPLOMAS AWARDED VOLUNTEER NURSES

Social Hall Scene of Graduation Last Night of Corps of Relief Society
Red Cross Band.

Social Hall last night was the scene of a notable affair when the Relief society nurses class of 1909 held their commencement exercises under the auspices of the general organization of the Relief society. The hall was crowded with friends of the participants in the affair and those promoting it, and the stage also was utilized for seating the big body of spectators. Beginning at first under difficulties and in a humble way the institution last night demonstrated a brilliant success of the kind which has been the history of its founder and instructor, Mrs. Margaret Roberts, must have been justly proud.

The stage was banked with flowers in the way of bouquets toward the nurses, together with President Bathsheba Smith, her counselors and board of directors, together with Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Emma Empey, superintendent of the nurses, work, Mrs. W. H. Hilt, former superintendent, and Mrs. Ida Dusenberry, counselor of the general society. Mrs. Dusenberry introduced the participants in the program which began with a hymn by the audience, followed by a prayer by Bishop T. F. Clawson. Miss Edith Grant sang a selection with piano accompaniment by Miss Jean Spencer, and Mrs. Hilt sang a solo. The choir, led by a piano duet, Miss Leah Farr gave a charming class poem, and this was followed with an address by Mrs. Margaret Roberts, who said that because the class in whose honor this affair was taking place had heard her voice so much, she would make her present address brief.

She spoke of the aims of the organization, and then the exercises closed with a benediction. The graduates were then made up on the graduates and believed they were noble women who would do credit to the Relief society. She ended with an all hall and gospel to the Relief society, and then to be called to arduous undertakings.

Miss Ruby Thornton made the response to this, eulogizing the instruction work, character and personality of the graduates, and then the exercises given by her in the class which could not fail to help them upward and onward.

Horace Enstien rendered vocal selection of the songs which were rendered across the platform and received their certificates from the hands of President Bathsheba Smith. Mrs. Ida S. Dusenberry gave the exercises, eulogizing the work upon which they would be engaged and illustrating her remarks with many happy illustrations. Miss Edith Grant sang again under the auspices of the Relief society, and then the exercises closed with a benediction.

Following are the graduates: Miss Sylvia Nelson, Hyrum; Miss Eleanor Johnson, Jordan; Miss Alice Johnson, Orderville; Miss Jessie Woolley, Salt Lake; Miss Kate Anderson, Salt Lake; Miss Harel Lake, Junction; Miss Edith Wade, Panguitch; Miss Ada Bell, Panguitch; Miss Abby Workman, Hatch; Miss Medora Trueblood, Salt Lake; Miss Lettie Richards, Snowflake, Ariz.; Miss Pearl Metcalf, Gunnison; Miss Annie Blazard, Pocat; Miss Edith Johnson, Pocat; Miss Mary Crockett, Pocat; Miss Violet Lloyd, American Fork; Miss Jennie Robinson, American Fork; Miss Ruby Thornton, American Fork; Miss Media Mackley, Tione, Utah; Miss Mary Johnson, Tione, Utah; Miss Willie C. Kitchen, Burley, Idaho; Miss Jane Butler, Blamard, Idaho; Miss Lillie A. Brown, Davis, Idaho; Miss Eliza Bird, Davis, Idaho; Miss Mary Grover, Salt Lake; Miss Caroline Leary, Salt Lake; Miss Jean Spencer, Salt Lake; Miss Bessie Taylor, Granite; Miss Mary Benion, Granite; Miss Leah Farr, Granite.

Beatrice King and Ernest Quayle Receive Marks of Honor.

Miss King's subject was "The Stage as a Factor of Civilization," while Ernest Quayle spoke on "The Dangers of the Stage." There were nine entries in the girls' contest and three in the boys'. Some of the speeches, though failing to secure the medal, were very meritorious. The girls' speeches were as follows: Violin solo, Morris Andrews; girls: "The Grand Army of the Republic," Mercedes Gilson; "American Pledge," Blanche Bates; "Civic Improvement," Blanche Bates; "The Danger of Excessive Legislation," Ernest Quayle.

The boys' speeches were as follows: "The Danger of Excessive Legislation," Ernest Quayle.

The following program will be rendered at the Twenty-second ward tabernacle in the evening, commencing at 8:30: Music by the choir; invocation; selection by the ward orchestra; address, Elder J. M. PRESSES START AGAIN FOR UNION PRINTERS

Strike of Pressmen and Press Feeders is Adjusted at Meeting of Opposing Factions.

The strike of feeders and pressmen, involving about 50 men directly and upwards of 200 indirectly, came to an end late yesterday afternoon, and this morning the men went back to their places in the various job printing offices of the city.

The strike had been out all the week, and all efforts to adjust the differences failed until a committee of the allied printing trades took up the matter yesterday morning. At the meeting which was held in the Federation of Labor hall a committee was appointed, consisting of Frank Anderson, representing the bookbinders; Albert Hay, the web pressmen; W. A. Mackay, the typographical union; and Joseph Watts, the press feeders, and Fred Taylor, the pressmen. During the afternoon they conferred with the employers in a session lasting several hours when a decision was reached which is satisfactory to both sides. The men did not get all they wanted but the increases ran from 9 to 16 per cent, with time and a half for overtime until midnight after which they are to be paid double. Time and a half is also to be paid for Sundays and holidays. The shop rule, which was the main obstacle in the settlement of differences, was dropped, and the adjustment of the Structural Iron Workers' union reports no change in their position. He says they have plenty of funds on hand and they are willing to remain out until their demands are granted. It was reported at the meeting of the union last evening in Eastman's hall that the contractors for the Church and extension building at North Main street had granted the increase of 50 cents per day, though as it is comparatively a small job, it will not materially diminish the number of men out.
