SHOCKING FATE OF YOUNG WOMAN

Jumps to Her Death from Railroad Bridge to Escape From Engine.

SESSION OF CITY COUNCIL.

July Jury List—Wedding Licenses—Merchants Want Peddlers to Pay License—Junction City Briefs.

Ogden, June 23.—Ellen Mole, nineteen years of age, daughter of Frederick Mole of Salt Lake, was fatally injured Sunday evening by jumping from the railroad trestle work of the Union Pacific railroad at that place and receiving injuries from which she died several hours later.

Information received in this city yesterday afternoon by Vice President James W. Abbott of the cement company from his son James, is to the effect that young Abbott in company with Miss Mole was walking across the bridge at about 3:30 o'clock Sunday evening, when they heard an engine approaching. Young Abbott jumped to the river 20 feet below and shouted for Miss Mole to do likewise. Whether the young lady jumped or was knocked from the bridge by the engine is not known.

Although badly bruised, young Abbott succeeded in getting the young lady from the river upon the river bank and then summoned help. Miss Mole was removed to her home and medical assistance rendered, but it was found that her neck had been broken and she lingered in an unconscious condition until her suffering was relieved by death.

Engine No. 247 of the Union Pacific, which was in charge of Engineer T. D. Perrins and Pilot-Conductor S. P. Miller, and a fireman, reached Ogden about a half an hour later, but none of the crew knew of the terrible accident until informed by the superintendent's office yesterday. The men stated that the headlight of the engine was burning clearly, and that they noticed nothing on the bridge. An investigation of the affair is being conducted by Superintendent Whitney.

The body of Miss Mole will be brought to Ogden tomorrow. The notice of the funeral will be announced later.

SUZZALO SPEAKS TO LARGE CROWD

Noted Educator Discusses in Interesting Style "Educational Sociology."

SOCIETY MORE THAN LAW.

Amplifying This Theme, Noted Lecturer Corrects Error and Presents Pertinent Subjects for Thought.

The first of the series of lectures to be delivered by Dr. Henry Suzzallo under the auspices of the university summer school was heard at the public library last evening. There were present as many persons as the hall would seat, and the speaker had the undivided attention of his listeners. The subject discussed by Dr. Suzzallo was "Educational Sociology," and the following are a few of the expressions of the noted lecturer:

"When we reflect upon the obstacles that must have been overcome before we reached this stage, we do not marvel longer at the statements in the daily press that tell of crimes and criminology, but we marvel at the order which there is. It is not astonishing that immense crowds of people, having the same goal in desire, crossing a street should do so in an orderly manner? Is it not remarkable that society has placed such control over itself?"

"We do not know that we have a stomach until it pains us, or a head until we have the headache. So it is with the social organism. So long as all is orderly there is no strife, but a misadjustment in the social relationship is like a misadjustment of the bodily organs, the stomach or the head."

"Society is more than law, more than statute, more than code. Half of the laws which govern us are written; the other half are not. The clothes we wear are not prescribed by statute, nor are the tools we use. Society is controlled by human usage, custom and tradition."

"If two men want two different things there is peace, for each becomes the master of that which he desires and there is consequently no cause for conflict. But if two men want the same thing it is different. There will be peace just the same, but it will be the peace of the weaker under the stronger. This is not social order."

"Social order may be illustrated by the law that governs children at play when they seek their 'king of the mountain.' The same is true when a mining property is properly located, and the law and regulations are observed. It is true, too, of the recognized right of the road, the turning to the right in this country and to the left in England and Canada."

"There is social order because you are the interior of the body, the beneficiary of the struggles of the past."

"There are two classes of social control. One is the war club, the worst means; the other is the free and liberal education. The war club controls from the outside, external, coercion, control imposed by others. It is the control brought about by physical violence, the army and the navy."

"The opposite pole we have, not the coercion of the army, but the coercion of the idea, the spirit in the bosom of men. This is freedom."

"Perhaps no more apt illustration can be given than that which is afforded by Russia and the United States. Terribly stated, Russia represents the brute force, the control by coercion, and the United States social control by education."

"Social control and order may be brought about in two ways. One is by education. It is very expensive, but in the long run it is by far the most economical. Coercion lasts only while you are there, but education lasts for all time."

"Speaking of the high position occupied by the teacher, Dr. Suzzallo said: 'We have a navy and a great diplomatic system. These we use to protect and guard the temporary frontier. But in order to establish the permanent frontier it is necessary that the great herds of children, little savages, if you will, be won over to civilization. The teacher is the agent through which we acquire civilization and culture. She is charged with the duty of winning these young men and women over to these desirable conditions.'"

PLANS ARE LAID FOR GREAT CAMP

General Wedgwood Arranging Details of Joint Maneuvers For August.

TWO TRAINS NECESSARY

Both Leave This City August 1 and Arrive in Dole Creek August 2—Will Cook Meals En Route.

Adjutant General Wedgwood has returned from his southern legal trip, and is busy arranging the details of the part the Utah National guard is to take in the coming Wyoming general maneuvers. In an interview this morning, he said that the object of the encampment is to bring together the militia and the regulars for practical military work, so that the militia will profit by experience which could only be gained through such association. Moreover, the militia officers will learn practical details in handling men, particularly in the way of concentration of troops. The law, as amended, places the national guard on a much more nearly equal footing with the regulars, except that, of course, the former do not give continuous service. One special idea in these encampments is to work out details in the matter of concentration of men at short notice to move large bodies of men, both militia and regular, from one place to another in the shortest time, and with the greatest economy and effectiveness.

The troops at the Wyoming encampment will include men from as far east as the Mississippi, and as far west as the Presidio at San Francisco. The signal corps of the state will be attached to the detachment of regulars from San Francisco, so that they may be instructed in the use of appliances, apparatus, material and maneuvers. The battery will be attached to the field artillery of the regular army, in company with the Charlie light artillery of Denver, and given all the instruction possible in that special line of work. The Utah infantry will be attached to the brigade of regular infantry.

The present tentative plans are for the first military train out of Salt Lake to leave at 3 p. m., Aug. 1, arriving at Dole Creek station for detouring at 4 a. m. on the second day. The second military train is scheduled to leave at 2 p. m., Aug. 1, arriving at Dole Creek at the same time as the train leaving in the morning. The first train is to be made up of five stock cars for the horses of the battery, quartermaster's department and mounted officers, three flat cars for the battery equipment and ambulances; one box car for freight and equipment, one baggage car, one kitchen car, two tourist cars for the enlisted men of the battery and company B of Ogden, and one standard Pullman for 13 officers. The second train will include one baggage car, one kitchen car, six tourist cars, one standard Pullman, and one standard Pullman for 13 officers. All meals are to be cooked and served on the train, and no stops are to be made except as the railroad service may require. The second train will be occupied by companies C and H, regimental headquarters and band, hospital corps and signal corps of this city; E company of Richfield; F of Mantel, D of Mt. Pleasant, and A of Nephi; the enlisted men occupying the tourist cars, and the officers the Pullman. Arrangements have been made with the D. & R. G. for a special to bring E, D and F companies from the south. A company arriving on the regular train. The cars of the southern companies will be switched over to the Short Line depot immediately on arrival so that there will be no loss of time, beyond what is required to transfer the men from one train to another. It is the aim and purpose to do everything orderly, with neatness and dispatch.
