LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES

EASTERN.

Ratified.

WASHINGTON, 18.—At 4:35 the Senate ratified the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty by a vote of 51 to 12. The amendments proposed by the foreign relations committee, being those heretofore published, were agreed to.

Various.

The agents of the British lines of steamers between the U. S. and English ports have made an inquiry whether, under the laws of the U. S., their vessels may transport passengers from place to place in the U. S.; the government has declined to authorize such proceedings.

It has been decided by the government that the valuation of iron ores on their importation should not be limited to the cost of digging and transporting to the place of shipment, but should be valued at the place of shipment the same as ores of the same quality and richness shipped at other places.

It appears that all efforts to effect a change in the office of the first comptroller of the treasury have failed. Secretary Bristow said, today, that the President had no intention of removing Controller Taylor, and it is equally certain that he does not intend to resign.

The Adjourned Caucus.

The adjourned caucus of the republican senators, this afternoon came to no conclusion in reference to the disposition of Frelinghuysen's resolution approving the action of the President in Louisiana affairs, and advising the continued recognition of the Kellogg government. Some of the senators could not support the resolution in its present form, and doubted the propriety of the further agitation of the subject, as a compromise was pending which promised to restore peace to both parties; they also urged the consideration of a resolution to prolong the special session, but without doing any good. The friends of the resolution urged that its opponents, if not disposed to condemn the President, should not hesitate to approve his past course, as silence would be construed by the enemies of the administration as an implied censure. The debate, which was spirited, failed to bring the parties any nearer together and finally a committee was appointed to draft a substitute for the resolution, with a view to reconcile all the republican senators, and avoid, if possible, any provocation to debate on the part of the democrats.

Decision Rendered—The Debate on the Reciprocity Treaty.

The case of Moses Hyneman, complainant, vs. U. S., respondent, No. 843, was decided in the court of commissioners of the Alabama claims to-day, Judge Porter delivering the opinion. In Dec., '62, the complainant shipped, from New York, by the steamer Ariel, certain merchandise destined for San Francisco. When the Ariel had prosecuted her voyage about as far as Cuba she was pursued, fired on and stopped by the rebel cruiser Alabama. The Ariel had on board 667 passengers, including 140 U. S. marines and their officers, too many to be taken on board the Alabama or to be sent adrift in small boats, and the Alabama's commander extorted from the master of the Ariel a ransom bond, executed by the master, for himself, the owners of the ship and of its cargo, agreeing to pay the sum of $261,000 to the President of the confederate states, thirty days after the conclusion of the war. On the arrival of the goods at San Francisco the owners of the steamship placed the matter in the hands of professional adjusters. They fixed the sum which would be payable by Hyneman as his portion of the bond at $48,805, and his portion of the expenses of the adjustment at $7,873. He paid the last mentioned sum in gold, and he claims to recover it from the money awarded the U. S. at Geneva. The judge in deciding the case, says its peculiarity is that the payment of the bond was never demanded and, as the facts show, never could have been enforced, and it must be regarded now as an instrument utterly void in law. The claimant suffered nothing at the hands of the Alabama, which did no damage whatever to the Ariel or her cargo, and did not exact from her the payment of a dollar of money. The apprehension on the part of the owners of the Ariel, that they might at some time be required to pay led them to demand the money from the claimant. He, to save the trouble of a contest over it, paid the sum required. If he has lost by the transaction he has been unfortunate, but it is plain to us that his loss is not one directly resulting from damage caused by the Alabama, as these terms are employed in the act of Congress whence our powers are derived.

In the debate on the Hawaiian treaty, in executive session, Booth opposed the treaty. He contended that it would not cheapen the price of sugar, as only some fifteen million pounds are now annually imported from the Sandwich Islands; but it would cause a considerable loss of revenue, a loss that would prove larger from year to year with the increase of the production of Sandwich Islands sugar, which is to be expected under the stimulus of this protection for the planters. He also argued that the ratification of the treaty would affect the California sugar refineries injuriously, by admitting high grades of brown sugar to compete with the refined article. He also believed that ratification would lead to difficulties and complications with foreign governments.

Jones, of Nev., supported the treaty in a short but earnest speech.

During the discussion of the Hawaiian treaty to-day, Sargent said that overtures had already been made to the Hawaii government by the Pacific colonies of Great Britain for a similar reciprocity arrangement, which the necessities of the islanders would certainly compel them to accept if we rejected their pending offer to make a reciprocity treaty with ourselves. He admitted that it would not cheapen the price of refined sugar, but he insisted that it would lessen the cost of the sugar which is used on the poor man's table and in the mining camps of the Pacific coast. Replying to an argument advanced by Senator Booth, that we were not likely to need the Sandwich Islands for purposes of defence or naval operations, as this country had never had but three years of foreign war, Sargent said this argument might as well be used to advocate the dismantling of our fortifications and the abandonment of the navy. He insisted that the Sandwich Islands are of the utmost value, not only as a coaling and naval station, but as a strategic point of importance, commanding the entire commerce of the U. S. on the Pacific.

Failure.

BALTIMORE, 18.—The failure of Hooper, Reese & Co., bankers and brokers, is announced, through being short on gold.

Convicted of Murder—Heavy Snow.

CINCINNATI, 18.—Andreas Egner was, to-day, convicted of the murder of Herman Schilling last fall; this is what is known as the tanyard murder.

A heavy snow is reported in Southern Indiana and Ohio, to-day; there has been none here.

Loss by Flood, &c.

PITTSTON, Pa., 18.—The loss by the flood here exceeds half a million. The ice is again gorged at Ransom, three miles above here, to the height of twenty feet; the gorge extends up the river about five miles. The Lehigh Valley Railway track, is completely covered with ice six feet deep. Many miners here have stopped work, being unable to ship coal. No trains have reached here either way yet. There is the greatest anxiety as to the effect of the movement of the gorge when the weather moderates.

Suspended—Suspected Poisoner—Snow.

CHICAGO, 18.—Barclay, Voorhees & Co., a small firm of bankers, suspended to-day, liabilities $100,000. Their assets are said to be more than enough to cover their liabilities, but they are mainly real estate.

Theodore Malinski, the husband of the woman and father of the children found poisoned on Tuesday, was held by the coroner's jury to-day, without bail, to await further investigation.

Dispatches from various parts of Iowa show that there have been a very heavy snow and high wind all day. It began to snow here at 7 p.m. this evening, and still continues, and is drifting badly.

$100,000 Fire.

NEW ORLEANS, 18.—The front of a square on Deland street, between Rampart and Dryades streets, including Thompson's stable and about twenty animals, was burned to-day; loss $100,000, mostly insured. Several firemen were injurned, and a negro and white man are believed to be burned to death.

The Waters Rampant.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., 18.—The river has been falling slowly this afternoon, and is now nearly two feet below yesterday. For five miles below here the ice is jammed in a solid mass. The depot of the Lehigh Valley Railway and about twenty houses were flooded at Forty Fort, and a little below, and on the other side of the river, from Plainville, the ice is piled up and has turned the water out of the channel cut through the cemetery, and is flooding the flats and rushing down through the main streets of Kingston, badly frightening the people. Fences and trees were swept away, and a large barn that had withstood the floods for many years was carried off. All the telegraph poles on the flats have been carried off. Great fears are felt at Kingston lest another rise should carry the water through the channel formed through the cemetery, and come down on the town, in which event the loss would be very great. It will take ten days to clear the Lehigh railway of ice should the water fall and there be no further rise.

Too Much Water.

SUNBURY, Pa., 18.—The prospects below Watsontown, on the west branch, are about the same this evening; the town is in no danger, but farms, below, are flooded and the river is running through the fields.

Damage by Flood.

COLUMBIA, Pa., 18.—The ice in the Susquehanna here began running out this afternoon, and at 8 this evening it carried away the winding bridge of the tidewater canal at Wrightsville, and moved a pier of the Columbia bridge, rendering it impassable for trains. The ice and water have considerably damaged the Pennsylvania railway tracks; west of here the ice is piled on the track, delaying the trains, and cutting down telegraph poles. At Marietta the tow path canal is torn out, and a number of boats are stranded on the Pennsylvania railway company's tracks.
