I regard he meetings of the Saints as resting times, when we are refreshed. The influence of which we here partake, we retain and carry away with us, that we may pursue the journey of life with the greater energy and zeal.

The science of theology has appropriately been termed the science of all sciences, for it deals with the things of heaven as well as of earth. It is possible that we may put too much faith in the mere knowledge embraced in the science of theology. ike all other sciences it has a theoretical and a practical side, and practical theology is requisite for the welfare here and the salvation hereafter of mankind. A man who acquires profound knowledge of any science, and yet refuses or fails to make any practical use or application of such knowledge, is virtually an ignorant man.

The Israelites in the days of Moses were wilfully and criminally ignorant, when they refused to cast their eyes upon the brazen serpent which was placed before them for their relief. They were told that if they would look with the eye of faith upon that emblem they would find relief from the stings out those who refused to do this fell victims to the scourge.

There is a difference between religion and theology. Why, even devils have a knowledge of theology, greater in some respects than men have; but such of the reptiles which scourged them, knowledge of theology, greater in some respects than men have; but such knowledge will not save them. Our knowledge of theology should be practically empleyed in the construction of the fabrics of our lives.

In the atructure of salvation, the knowledge and intelligence a man may have will be of use only in the degree in which he employs them in the erection of that great building. The Temple.

The Lord said that that mount should be surrounded with a boundary; and if any man or animal should pass that bound, the same should be taken out and slain, for having trespassed on holy ground. In the temple of Solomon was an apartment called the Holy of Holles. Unly the High Priest was permitted to enter there, and he was required to prepare himself for weeks, with fasting and prayer, to go into the holy place. When a heathen prince undertook to enter there by force, his body was found lying before the curtain which separated the Holy of Holles from the rest of the Temple.

ated the Holy of Holies from the rest of the Temple.

The Lord has set apart one day of the week to be a hely day. In it He has commanded us to do no unnecessary labor. On one occasion, is the camp of Israel, a man was seen violating the Sabbath day by gathering sticks. He was taken before Moses, and sentenced to suffer death by being taken outside the camp and stoned, that being the punishment for the ofthat being the punishment for the of-fense he had committed.

As it was of old so is it today. The Lord has established holy offices, and appointed men to act therein. He has is a holy day unto the Lord Unless we recognize the authority of the Lord Saints-holy beings? Are our bedies such that the Holy Spirit will delight to dwell therein? Are our minds sus-ceptible to holy influences? These are the characteristics of Saints. The spirit of prophecy rests upon all such.

All Israel has the privilege of this spirit. Moses said he wished that all Israel were prophets. And today all who keep the laws of heaven are en-who keep the laws of heaven are entitled to the spirit of prophecy.

Judgment will be rendered according to unerring principles of right. We cannot be saved by the good deeds of others. Our own lives here govern our future condition. We have taken upon us vows of faithfulness to our Father, and our actions will be judged in the light of those vows. We are not to see that others should live their religion. that others should live their religion, but that we obliterate sin from our selves and qualify ourselves for sal-

We frequently judge others, and because we do not look from the same standpoint, judge them to be wrong.
It is not our province to judge of those things we understand not, and which are not within the field of our action The Levites had charge of the Ark of the Lord. On one occasion the Philistines seized it, but to them it was a cause of terrible scourging, till they iremoved it from their midst. When it was being re-turned one of the Israelites thought there was danger that it would fall, and put forth his hand to steady it. He had been warned, but heeded not the warning, and he was stricken with death. Today men are appointed to perform certain duties. There are others who, by fault finding and unjust criticism, seek to steady the ark, and upon them will come the vengeance of a just God if they continue such a as the actions of the world are concerned. But the faith of God in their hearts buoys them up. They know that their Master lives, and are willing to lay down their lives for that testimony.

With us, the practical exercise of the principles of truth brings to us the blessings. To know what we should do and then fail to do it will not benefit us; on the contrary it will bring condemnation. There are many who bear the name of Saints who do not fulfil their duties. If we lived our religion ne power could stay our progress. God deals with us accord-ourselves and no one else for the disourselves and no one else for the distress we are in today. It is because we are neglectful.

The world say they will destroy Mormonism. They tried to destroy the Gospel when they crucified our Lord. But his work went on; Mormonism is His Gospel, and it will go on to triumph

His Gospel, and it will be triumph.

The Prophet Joseph told the Saints they would be persecuted until the nation would be arrayed against them. Today we see the fulfilment of that prophecy. It has also been declared by the Almighty that His work will triumph. Some may say there is no fulfilment of prophecy in it; they say this because they have rejected the light.

The Saints should be prayerful and humble before God. Men call us ignorant; let them do so. We have the testimony of Jesus, which is worth more than all else. We have in that greater knowledge and greater power than all who have not received it. This testimony has rested upon the Saints in every land.

IDEAL BROILING.

Broiling can be done in the even of the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door, more perfectly than over the live coals.

Lay the steak, chops, ham or fish on a wire broiler or meat rack, placing it in as ordinary bake pan to catch the drippings.

Allow it to remain in the oven with the door closed 15 or 20 minutes. No turning is required. At the end of this time it will be found nicely cooked ready the serve.

THIS IS THE IDEAL WAY TO BROIL MEATS There is no taint of coal gas or smoke, and the meats are more tender and better in flavor than those broiled over the coals. The convenience of broiling in the oven will be appreciated by every house-keeper, and adds another to the many reasons why the Charter Oak Range or Stove with the Wire Gauze Oven Door should be preferred to all others now in the market.
